MOTHER, 2 SONS ASPHYXIATED

LINCOLN WOMAN AND TWO CHILDREN FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Bodies of Mrs. W. C. Wallace and Harold, 9, and Richard, 3, Discovered in Gas Filled Kitchen Late Saturday Afternoon — Believed Triple Tragedy Occurred Preceding Day—Officers Say Woman a Suicide But Notes to Relatives Give No Motive.

The bodies of Mrs. Winfield C. Wallace, 34, and two of her children, Harold 9, and Richard, 3, were found in the gas filled kitchen of their home, 1106 North Twenty-ninth street, shortly after 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Friends of the family discovered the triple tragedy, when they called at the home, and failed to arouse any one.

Although Deputy Sheriff Hulfish, acting coroner, pronounced Mrs. Wallace's death suicide, and turned over to Sheriff Claude P. Hensel three notes and a sealed insurance policy left by Mrs. Wallace, authorities late Saturday were unable definitely to assign a motive.

A sister-in-law of the dead woman expressed the belif that removal of Winetta, Mrs. Wallace's 14-year-old daughter to the detention home last Tuesday, was the cause of the suicide. Similar sentiments were expressed by her two closest friends. That Mrs. Wallace had been subject to hallucinations recently was indicated in a report of Miss Ada Barker, secretary of the Social Welfare society. The three notes gave no indication of a motive. The sealed insurance policy, which will be turned over to County Attorney Towle remained late Saturday night the only likely source of additional information.

Husband's Whereabouts Unknown.

Mrs. Wallace had been separated from her husband, a circus concessionnaire, for three years. His whereabouts is not known, according to a brother, C. A. Wallace, clerk at the Savoy hotel. Mrs. Wallace had been receiving a mother's pension of $30 a month, from the county and was also receiving aid from the Social Welfare society, acing to the brother-in-law.

According to neighbors, none of the family had been seen since late Friday afternoon until the rear door was forced to admit investigators to the gas-filled home. Mrs. A. C. Hudson, who lived next door, reported that the last she had seen of Mrs. Wallace was late Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Wallace's baby boy had run away that afternoon, according to Mrs. Hudson. Neighboring children brought him back, and Mrs. Wallace followed him into the house shortly afterwards.

The next time Mrs. Hudson's attention was called to the Wallace home was when two friends of Mrs. Wallace called at her home about 4:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The two women, Mrs. Carrie Mode and Mrs. Lulu Hastings, both of 135 South Thirtieth street, reported they could rouse no one at the Wallace residence but that they had noticed a strong odor of gas.

John Brox, 5321 Colby avenue, brother of Joseph Brox, Carroll, Neb., the landlord, appeared then, and inquired of Mrs. Hudson concerning the Wallaces. He said he had called to leave a note with the woman, concerning a call to be made next Tuesday by prospective pur-

Man Fires At Boys Taking Gas From Car

A. W. Elliott Believes Wounded One of Pair Caught In Act.

Surprising two youths attempting to siphon gasoline from the tank of his automobile parked in the driveway of his home shortly before 10 o'clock Saturday evening, A. W. Elliott, 1935 South Seventeenth street, opened fire on them with a revolver after they refused to halt at his command, wounding one of the youths, he believes. They escaped in a large touring car parked nearby.

Detectives Goodwin and McCurdy, investigating the affair, made the rounds of the hospitals, but no one had applied for treatment of a gunshot wound, they reported.

Fires Several Shots.

According to Mr. Elliott, a woman living on the floor below first saw

Roy Roberts, Who Escaped Over Wall Five Years Ago, Is Back in Nebraska Pen

Prisoner, Once Under Death Sentence, Returned Here From Missouri Prison; Has Eight Years To Serve On Murder Charge.

Nearly five years after his sensational escape with Jack Grant, a fellow convict, during a terrific lightning storm, Roy Roberts was returned Saturday evening to the state penitentiary to continue serving his 25 year sentence for killing Vernon Connent, a Lincoln county man. He still has about eight years of his original sentence to serve, Warden Fenton said.

Grant was returned to the penitentiary two years ago after being located in Vancouver, Canada. He is now serving a 1 to 10 year sentence for escaping custody.

Roberts was located by prison officials sometime ago when he was committed to the Missouri penitentiary for automobile stealing. His sentence there expired Saturday and Deputy Warden Dan Kavanaugh was waiting for him at the door to return him to the Nebraska prison.

Once threatened with lynching and then under death sentence for the murder of Connent, Roberts began serving a 25 year term for second degree murder in 1917. On appeal to the Supreme court from his original conviction of first degree murder, he obtained a retrial and was later convicted of the lesser offense.

Connent disappeared mysteriously in the summer of 1914 and Roberts was then arrested on suspicion but was later released. He was arrested a second time and charges

Could Build Sugar Fence Around State With 1929 Output

Nebraska produced 294,000,000 pounds of beet sugar, or the equivalent of 2,940,000 one hundred pound bags in 1929, according to figures compiled by the state and federal bureau of crop statistics.

If these 100 pound bags could be laid end to end they would make a fence around the entire state, with still enough left over to supply 37 per cent of Nebraska's annual sugar consumption, the report states.

FARM BOARD IS FACING TEST ON WHEAT SURPLUS

PLAN OPPOSED BY OUTSIDE INTERESTS

McKelvie's Tour Was To Urge Farmers to Join Co-operatives.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(U. P.)—The first agricultural emergency of 1930—a large wheat surplus and a short market for the commodity—confronted the federal farm board tonight.

Chairman Alexander Legge called a meeting of the board for Monday to study the national situation, and act on the recommendations of the national advisory committee for wheat, proposing creation of a $25,000,000 grain stabilization corporation to steady the lagging price.

Congress, in its farm relief program, provided for such machinery to cope with emergency situatons, and the money to establish a grain stabilization corporation is already available from the $150,000,000 appropriated as a revolving fund for the board.

Agricultural leaders believe the board will authorize creating of the corporation as soon as possible, as stocks of wheat are increasing daily and storage facilities are already crowded, but pending actlon by the entire board, Legge refused to comment on the wheat situation.

Outside Opposition.

Several high executives of the United States chamber of commerce including Julius Barnes, and a number of boards of trade have objected to the government undertaking the stabilizatcn, as the corporation will buy surpluses held by co-operative marketing associations, to relieve the market of the glut.

Congressional leaders of the farm bloc, unsatisfied with the progress the pending tariff bill has made toward farm relief, hold that the decision of the board on whether such a machine should be established is the first real test of the adminis-

GAS TAX SPLIT ON NEW BASIS

Counties Shares Will Be Determined by Number Cars In 1929.

Lancaster Among Forty Losers According To New Ratio.

When the next monthly distribution of gasoline tax funds is made by the state treasurer's office among the ninety-three counties of Nebraska, which will be about March 1, a new basis of allotment will govern it and the proportionate shares received by the various counties will be increased in some cases and reduced in others.

Hitherto the one-fourth split of gasoline tax revenue which went to the counties has been divided up according to the number of motor vehicles registered in 1928. Beginning next month the apportionment will be figured on the registrations for 1929. The 4-cent gasoline tax law provides that what each county is to get month by month shall be its pro rata amount based on the number of motor vehicle licenses issued during the previous calendar year.

Under this system of calculation, the basis is to be changed only once each year. As the gasoline tax collected by State Treasurer Stebbins in January was computed and paid on shipments received by dealers for December, the money taken in during January went in with last year's business; but February receipts will count as the first month's income for 1930, and they must be divided on the new basis.

Fifty-three Counties Gain.

While all of the counties licensed more automobiles and trucks in 1929 than in 1928, some gained considerably more than others, thereby increasing their percentages of the total, which entitles them to a greater share of that part of the gasoline tax fund set aside for improving county roads. The ones that made only small gains will get less because their percentages of the total last year were smaller than before.

Fifty-three counties increased more than the average for the whole state and accordingly will receive more money than otherwise, while forty which fell behind the average will draw less.

To ascertain how each county will fare in the change about to be made, a double tabulation has been made showing what it got out of January gasoline tax revenue, figured on the 1928 basis, and what it would have received from the same fund if the allotment had been calculated instead on 1929 motor vehicle registrations. The difference between these two sums, in

HOOVER HEADS FOR FLORIDA ON FISHING JAUNT

First Vacation in Eleven Months Of White House Incumbency.

WILL REACH LONG KEY EARLY MONDAY

Four Boats Will Be In Presidential Deep Sea Fishing Fleet.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(Sunday)—President and Mrs. Hoover and a small party of fishermen friends and their wives left Washington at 12:27 a. m., Sunday in a private car attached to the second section of the Atlantic Coast Line's crack Havana Special, for a week's deep sea fishing off the Florida keys. The train will make only a few stops necessary to discharge passengers. The presidential party will detrain at Long Key, Fla.

A Week of Fishing.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—President Hoover leaves Washington tonight at midnight, headed for Florida and the first vacation in the eleven months of his white house incumbency.

Ahead of him is a week of deep sea fishing in the gulf stream off Long Key, a fishing camp located midway between Miami and Key West.

Barring only the weekends spent at his nearby Virginia mountain camp, Mr. Hoover has remained steadily at his desk since March 4, and while he is physically in good shape, the nervous strain of the long hours and the multitudinous duties have told on him. It is at the earnest suggestion of his aides he is taking the week's holiday.

Reaching Long Key early Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and a small party of intimate friends plan to put off in a tiny fleet of houseboats and leave the world behind them for seven days. Until Monday, the 17th, they will cruise and fish for the giant game fish that inhabit those southern waters, and enjoy complete isolation.

Small Party Making Trip.

Fishing companies of many a season will make the trip. They include Harlan F. Stone, associate

TEACHER DIES OF MENINIGTIS

Joseph Butler, Garland, Succumbs to Disease Saturday Night.

Other Patient's Condition Still Serious But Given Chance To Live.

Joseph Butler, 22-year-old high school principal who was one of two patients brought to Lincoln from Garland suffering with spinal meningitis last Thursday, died at 7 o'clock Saturday evening at the Lincoln General hospital.

Butler had been ill since last Sunday. A half dozen or more Garland people called to see him during the first part of the week before his ailment had been diagnosed.

Vernon Podolski, 15-year-old Garland youth who is suffering from meningitis at the Lincoln General hospital was in a critical condition at midnight Saturday although physicians declared there was hope for his recovery. He was stricken with the disease at about the same time Sunday as was Butler.

Young Podolski was brought to Lincoln Thursday from the farm home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. O Podolski. Thursday shortly after Butler was brought here. He had been attending a rural school four miles from Garland.

Town Virtually Quarantined.

After it was determined that the patients were suffering from meningitis. Dr. John Thompson, who attended them, notified Garland people to take all precautions possible to prevent spread of the disease. The town board of health then closed schools and churches and banned all public gatherings. Townspeople were requested not to leave Garland.

Where Butler and Podolski contracted the disease is unknown according to Dr. Strough. Cultures have not yet been taken in an attempt to locate a carrier of the germs.

The type of meningitis which caused Butler's death is highly contagious. Pneumococcic spinal meningitis, from which Thomas H. Vanderhoof is suffering, is not contagious, however. Vanderhoof, University of Nebraska sophomore who was taken ill Sunday at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house, was still in a serious condition Saturday night but attendants at the Lincoln General hospital said that it was believed he would recover.

While residents of Garland, a town of about 300 people located in Seward county 25 miles northwest of Lincoln, are uneasy they are not unduly alarmed Dr. George W

JURY IN BRADY MURDER TRIAL IS DISCHARGED

Unable to Reach Verdict After Deliberating Almost 96 Hours.

Nine for Death Penalty, Two For Life Term, One for Acquittal.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 8—(U. P.)—Judge J. D. Moore discharged the jury which heard the trial of John W. Brady, charged with the knife killing of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, at 4:22 p. m., today.

Deliberation fell short of ninety-six hours by but twenty-three minutes.

The jury stood nine for the death penalty, two for sentencing Brady to life imprisonment, and one for his acquittal, it was revealed after the twelve men had been discharged.

There were from twelve to fifteen ballots taken. The vote was the same on every ballot.

Foreman For Acquittal.

J. R. Keltner, 58, foreman of the jury, was the one holding out for the former judge's acquittal. He merely said: "I had to stand by my convictions."

The hearing on the change of venue will be held at 11 a. m. Monday. Dayton Moses, chief of the defense counsel, refused to say what stand he would take, declaring that he must confer with other members of the defense staff before making an announcement.

Earlier in the afternoon, the defense had filed a motion to discharge the jury. While it was pending, state's attorneys filed a similar motion, with the addition that the

POLICE SEEKING HIT-RUN DRIVER

Mrs. H. M. Fitts Struck By Coupe On North Fourteenth Street.

Police were hunting Saturday night for the hit-run driver who struck Mrs. H. M. Fitts, 1345 Butler avenue, near Fourteneth and Holdrege streets, at about 7 o'clock. She was knocked to the pavement, receiving severe laceration on her face and head, and suffering considerably from shock. A passing motorist, according to police, followed the car, but had not reported the result of his chase late Saturday night.

Mrs. Fitts, with her daughter, Virginia, had alighted from a bus near the fair grounds, and were walking north on Fourteenth street, when a small coupe struck Mrs. Fitts from the rear. The autoist did not stop, she told Lieutenant Davis. Everett Selders, who passed by at the time took Mrs. Fitts and her daughter to their home, where they were attended by Dr E. R. Ryerson.

FIRST PROPOSAL LAW COMMISSION GIVEN APPROVAL

Complying With President's Demand for Centralized Prohibition Enforcement Authority, Lower Chamber, Without Record Vote, Passes Williamson Bill, Transferring Bureau to Justice Department — Mitchell Becomes Virtual "Dry Czar."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8— (I. N. S.) — Complying with President Hoover's demand for centralized prohibition enforcement authority, the house today, without a record vote, passed the Williamson bill, transferring the prohibition bureau of the treasury to the department of justice. The measure was approved and sent to the senate as written by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell with one exception.

THE WEATHER.

The weather outlook for the week beginning Monday follows:

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys: Unsettled most of week north portion with frequent periods of snow, generally fair south portion, except for one or two periods of precipitation southeast portion; temperature considerably above normal west and south portions, and near or somewhat above northeast portion.

Nebraska: Mostly cloudy and colder Sunday; Monday fair, rising temperature in northwest portion.

Kansas: Cloudy and colder Sunday; Monday mostly fair, colder in southeast and extreme east portions.

Attempts of a wet-dry combination to force important amendments were howled down as the overwhelmingly dry house evidenced its determination to give Mr. Hoover the weapons he wants to enforce the Volstead act.

Under its terms, the bill makes Attorney General Mitchell the virtual "dry czar." He not only will command the district attorneys, as he now does, but will direct all dry agents and have a veto power over the treasury in the granting of industrial alcohol permits.

Challenge From Wets.

The bill proposes the fourth reorganization of prohibition enforcement since the Volst 1 act was passed, and was agreed to by the wets with a challenge to the drys to admit defeat if the new enforcement regime fails.

It also is the first proposal of the Wickersham law enforcement com-

Wheeler Will Demand a Senate Inquiry Of Enforcement Bureau

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—A sweeping inquiry into the operations of the prohibition enforcement machinery of the nation was demanded in a resolution drawn today by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, for introduction in the senate Monday.

The measure would demand a senatorial investigation into the prohibition bureau.

"There has been much evidence of irregularity and many charges of corruption," he said. "It is time the public is informed of what is going on in the bureau, because we all know prohibition enforcement has broken down, not only in the large cities but throughout the country, in western districts, including my own state."

The senate judiciary committee, of which Wheeler is not a member, would conduct the proposed inquiry, and would begin its work in connection with consideration of the Williamson bill being passed by the house transferring enforcement for the treasury to the justice department.

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO BUT ONLY SLIGHTLY HURT

Betty Mae Mullendore, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mullendore, 1555 R street, escaped with head lacerations and bruises, when she was hit by a car driven by Miss Jeane Bobbitt, 2325 Garfield street, at Seventeenth and R streets, about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The baby was taken to a service station, and attended by Dr. George H. Walker. It was sometime before the child's identity could be ascertained, and she was taken to the Delta Gamma sorority house until her parents could be found. According to Mrs. Mullendore, the child had followed her brother down the street. The girl's injuries are considered slight, and she was resting better late Saturday night, the mother reported.

OMAHA POLICE HUNT GUNMEN

Bakery Driver Shot By Two Youthful Negroes.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 8—(UP)—All detectives in Omaha tonight were seeking to arrest two negro boys, 16 or 18 years of age, who shot and probably fatally wounded Andrew Anderson, 48, bakery wagon driver.

Chief of Police Pszanowski expressed belief the two youths sought for the shooting of Anderson may be the same two who Tuesday shot J. C. O'Brien, taxi driver.

Anderson was taken to a hospital where the shot fired was found lodged in his abdomen. Attending physicians state he has but an even chance for recovery.

Both Anderson and O'Brien were shot with .22 caliber revolvers. Both were shot when they attempted to resist being held up by the negroes.

YOUTHS FACE MURDER TRIAL

State To Ask Life Term For Stepbrothers At Grant.

GRANT, Neb., Feb. 8—(U. P.)—Two youthful stepbrothers will go to trial in this village among the sandhills this coming week on charges of murdering two alleged bootleggers who were too slow on "the draw."

It was at a turkey shoot near here Sunday, December 29, that the first event took place in a liquor hijacking that resulted in the deaths of Babe Snyder and Axel Johnson, alleged bootleggers, and the filing of first degree murder charges against the two stepbrothers, Joy Crow, 15, North Platte high school student and part Indian, and Paul Duffy, 16.

At the trial that will open possibly Tuesday morning, the state will ask that they be sent to the penitentiary for life.

Whether the youths will go to trial separately or jointly the defense attorneys have not indicated. Their plea is expected to be self-defense.

County Attorney George B. Hastings will be in charge of the prosecution while District Judge E. C. Eldred will preside. With the court session opening Monday, the trial of the youths will not be reached before Tuesday, it is expected.

As Rogers Sees It

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 — Remember in one dispatch I told you I had a red hot tip that Mr. MacDonald might propose something pretty sweeping? Yesterday he did it. He proposed to sink all our battleships and all France's submarines. Of course he would sink theirs, too. But they don't need the big ships. They don't have to go as far for their wars as we do. We have no naval bases. We have to go away off and fight all afternoon and then have enough sandwiches and gasoline to get back to Newport News on, while England's naval bases are as monotonous as speakeasies. He didn't offer to abolish light fast cruisers, and France's submarines are her ace in the hole. But our delegation know all these things and we are still in safe hands.

Yours, WILL.

POTEET HEADS VET COUNCIL

Posts of Five Service Organizations Form Central Body.

Money Projects Using Names of Groups To Be Regulated.

Veteran organizations, through the medium of a representative group known as the Lincoln Veterans council, have assumed responsibility to authorize or disprove all projects presented by any persons with the object of deriving money from Lincoln people using the name of a veteran's organization as authority. Marcus L. Poteet has been selected chairman, O. C. Bell, vice chairman, and John D. Brady, secretary-treasurer of the body. These officers will have a tenure extending to January 1, 1931.

The council is composed of O. C. Bell, Grand Army of the Republic; Dr. C. W. Sherfey and John D. Brady, Spanish War Veterans, William Lewis Camp No. 2; Nathan Grossman, Post No. 1450, and Col. George C. Price, Post No. 131, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Glenn Carpenter, Disabled American Veterans, and William Holt, Harry Rokahr, Frank O'Connell and Marcus L. Poteet, American Legion.

The commanders who are ex-officio members are: Ross Perschell, Post No. 1450; J. W. McKiblin No. 131, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Dr. C. W. Sherfey, United Spanish War Veterans; Andrew G. Church, G. A. R.; T. A. McCleery, Disabled American Veterans, and Ed Westerveldt, American Legion.

Cite False Campaigns.

Throughout the past three or four years, individuals from outside the city have come into Lincoln and conducted financial campaigns using as a drawing card the name of some of the veterans' organizations. These persons have approached Lincoln people with their proposition and have collected money from them, saying that the money would not help the national organizations but the local chapters as well. In many instances this was found to be untrue, and, if the local chapters were helped at all, it was only a trivial sum, while the promoter carried away most of the profits of the campaign.

The chamber of commerce was the first organization to realize that control of these projects of outside promoters was necessary. The chamber created a committee known as the veterans committee, and all promotion in the name of Veterans organizations was approved or disapproved by the committee.

During the time that the committee of the chamber was functioning, a need was felt by members of the veterans organizations that control of questions directly affecting them should be supervised and scrutinized by the organizations themselves. Commanders of the various posts appointed a member to attend a conference at which members of other organizations attended and plans were discussed to effect a controlling organ.

Submit Constitution.

The first meeting was called December 22 and representatives from each post of veterans organizations in Lincoln were present. A discussion of ways and means whereby such a body could be organized was held, and the group agreed that a constitution should be drawn and submitted to the individual organizations.

The constitution was drafted and submitted to the various posts with the result that the Lincoln Veterans council became an actuality Sunday, Jan. 2.

The organization is composed of one member from each post at large with an additional member for each five hundred members or major fraction thereof, with the paid up membership of the preceding year as a basis for compilation. Besides the regular member of the council, the commander of each post is an ex-officio member without a vote.

In order that the smaller organizations might have a more powerful voice in the government of the council, it was allowed that each organization could have two members on the council with one-half vote each. It is also stated in the constitution that any commander of any post may cast a ballot in the absence of the regular official member.

The aims and objects of the organization are laid down rather rigidly in the constitution. It is the object of the council to have all outside promotion activities of the member organizations submitted to the veterans council for approval or disapproval.

The activity of the council is not limited to the perusal and judgment of outside promotion schemes. It has also been authorized to discuss, with a view to eliminate conflicts in dates and securing maximum co-operation, all inside promotion activities. It is further stated that all promotion plans must be submitted to the council before any public announcement is made.

OFFICERS OF NEW VETERANS COUNCIL

MARCUS POTEET.

O. C. BELL.

JOHN D. BRADY.

The Lincoln Veterans Council, organized to prevent outside promoters from conducting campaigns on behalf of organizations in Lincoln without authorization of the organizations affected, is composed of representatives from five veterans groups. Marcus Poteet is chairman of the council, O. C. Bell, vice chairman, and John D. Brady, secretary-treasurer.

Independent Producers Ask For Tariff On Oil

Franklin Ridicules Statements That Country Is Facing Petroleum Shortage.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(INS)—Appealing to the house ways and means committee for a tariff on oil to save the independent producers of the nation, Wirt Franklin of Oklahoma City, Okla., president of the Independent Petroleum association, today ridiculed statements that the country is facing a shortage of oil in the future.

"Any one of the states of California, Texas or Oklahoma can furnish the oil supply of the entire United States," he said.

Franklin charged that foreign oil importations are being used to drive the "little fellows" out of business and concentrate control of the oil and gasoline industry in the hands of four or five great companies.

When the independent producers have been driven out of business, the public will pay higher prices, he asserted.

FOUR CANDIDATES FOR MARSHAL JOB

Sheriff Fred Jump Latest Entry To Seek Appointment To Federal Position.

Sheriff Fred M. Jump of Keith county is one of the candidates seeking the lucrative federal appointment as United States marshal for Nebraska. He is making a vigorous canvass for personal endorsements of party leaders.

George S. Austin of Orleans is receiving considerable support in his canvass for the marshalship. He has the backing of State Chairman E. L. Ferneau and may also get some help from National Committeeman C. A. McCloud.

Dennis H. Cronin, the present marshal, and J. B. Nickerson, clerk of the Federal court for the Lincoln division, are other contenders for the place.

The impression prevails that until the contest for United States district attorney is decided nothing wil be done about naming the marshal. District Attorney J. C. iKnsler of Omaha has the backing of Senator Norris for reappointment, while Senator Howell favors C. E. Sandell of York.

URGE SUPERVISION OF DELINQUENTS

Lillian Johnston Addresses League Of Women Voters Saturday.

Declaring that children discharged from state reform schools should be under the supervision of the state bureau of child welfare, Miss Lillian Johnson, director of the bureau, addressed forty members of the Lincoln League of Women Voters at the Lincoln hotel Saturday afternoon.

Miss Johnson quoted Mrs. Nellie Benson of the board of control as having said that someone should supervise these children and logically it should be the child welfare bureau. Miss Johnson also pointed out that her staff at the present time was entirely inadequate to meet the state's problems.

Miss Ada Barker of the Social Welfare society spoke on "City Problems." She stated that a social agency is not a business since it is impossible to estimate human life as a business product. She predicted that eventually social welfare workers would organize their own profession, practicing on a fee basis.

Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis who was to have spoke at the meeting was unable to attend, but will speak at a special meeting to be called March 1.

LITERARY SOCIETY ANNUAL BANQUET

Union Literary society, one of the three literary societies at the University of Nebraska, held its fifty-third annual banquet Saturday night at the Lincoln hotel.

Table decorations and features of the program carried out a unique Indian theme. Miss Margaret Nielsen presided as toastmistress. Short toasts were given by Frank Chapman, Evadna Jefferson, Harl Andersen, Inez Fossler and Russell Lindskog.

The entertainment included a group of readings by Gilbert H. Doane, university librarian and councilor of the society. Rodney Phillips and Ingeborg Nielsen gave a piano duet, Inez Fossler and Dorothy Green, a violin duet, and Don Carlson, a vocal solo.

T. P. A. DIRECTORS PLAN FOR ANNUAL MEETING IN MARCH

Plans for the annual meeting and election of officers for Traveler's Protective association, Lincoln post C, were announced at a meeting of the board of directors at the Lincoln hotel Saturday evening. The meeting will be held March 8 and will be followed by a stag party.

State President Leo Kurtz outlined the activities of the state organization. George Ludden reported that a considerable gain had been registered in membership. The annual dinner dance, it was announced, will be held March 1 at the Lincoln hotel.

NEW EVIDENCE OF RECOVERY IN BUSINESS

Main Progress Made In Steel Industry During Past Week.

Stock Market Firm, But Irregular; Money Rates Easier.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(INS)—Definite evidences of recovery in basic industries, continued decline in commodity prices to new low levels, a further easing in money rates with the lowering of the rediscount rate to 4 per cent, and a firm, but irregular stock market, were the high lights of the past week in the business and financial world.

The main progress thus far has continued in the steel industry, which has been stimulated by an increase in automobile manufacturing and sizeable demands from the railroads building construction interests and farm machinery makers, and mill schedules averaging approximately 7; per cent represent a decisive upturn in a little more than a month.

Sharp declines in both cotton and wheat are conspicuous elements in carrying the commodity price level, as measured by Bradstreet's, to the lowest point in eight years. The price of the March cotton last week was driven more than $3 a bale below the farm board loan value, and about $20 a bale below the price of the March cotton a year ago. March wheat dropped to $1.12 against $1.30 the same period last year.

London Rate Reduced.

The reduction in the local rediscount rate on Thursday followed similar action at London on that day. Lowering its rate from 5 to 4½ per cent, the Bank of England made the fourth downward revision in four months, while the New York Federal Reserve bank in changing its rate from 4½ to 4 per cent, effected the third reduction since the speculative upheaval last autumn.

The favorable steps taken here and at London had been foreshadowed, and reflected the further improvement in the international credit situation. The level of brokers' loans at New York remains much below the high point touched during the period of stock market boom, although the total increased $57,000,000 in the latest reported week.

The vigorous stock market advance, which set in late in January, has continued through the opening week of February. Practically all the leading stocks have joined in the rise and many issues have broken through their December high levels. Reactionary tendencies which set in on Thursday, following announcement of the reduction in the Bank of England rate, were also in evidence on Friday, as professionals sold the list heavily on the assumption that the good news was out, but the market rallied briskly in the final hour of Saturday's abbreviated session, and net changes for the week were decidedly on the side of the advance.

A Building Increase.

For the first time in nine years, the January total of building and engineering contracts exceeded the total of the preceding December, according to F. W. Dodge corporation. It is true that last month's increase over the immediately preceding month was only 2 per cent, but the month of January normally falls behind December, and has done so consistently even in the biggest boom years. In January 1921, the contract increase over December, 1920, marked the turning point from a prolonged building recession; this January's contract record may likewise mark the turning point of the current recession. In addition to the 2 per cent increase in contracts, January had the highest recorded volume of contemplated new construction.

Automobile production in January is estimated by the American Metal Market, for the United States and Canada, at approximately 300,000 units. This contrasts with 125,445 in December, and with 422,538 in January, 1929. Production appears to be increasing unevenly. The Ford company is reported with a daily production of 6,000 in place of the intended 8,000; other companies are not definitely reported.

Freight loadings for the week ended January 25 continue to prove disappointing. The total for the latest week at 862,621 cars, is a decrease of 63,853 cars from the corresponding week last year.

Wheat Course Erratic.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—Wheat futures moved over an erratic course today with a moderate trade. Other grains followed wheat with short covering over the week end a feature.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ¼c higher; corn ¼ to ½c up; oats unchanged to ⅝c higher. For the week prices for wheat were off ⅞ to 2⅝c; corn up ⅝ to 1⅝c and oats ¼ to ⅝c higher.

Wheat generally displayed easiness during the week with heavy selling by longs and lack of aggressive support. New low prices on the crop were reported. Poor export demand, continued weakness in outside markets and bearish Canadian news were outstanding depressing factors. Foreign news continued bearish with France and Russia both offering wheat freely.

Federal farm board developments were mixed. However, on severe declines, a letup in the selling was evident, as traders were inclined to go slow pending the further outcome of farm board action. The farm board will meet in Washington Monday and consider a proposal of forming a stabilization corporation to handle the wheat surplus for the co-operatives.

Corn scored moderate gains in the week's trade with excellent support, especially for May. Some buying was credited to houses with eastern connections. The cash demand showed a slight improvement and country sales were moderate. Weather conditions over the belt were clear and generally favorable for movement to market.

Hog Prices Advance.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—Hogs advanced 65c during the week with top today at $11, the highest since last September. Declining receipts here and at other principal centers influenced the upward movement. Shipping outlet narrowed somewhat, but local killers purchased quite freely. Most of the desirable hogs went at $10.75 to $10.90 late in the week. Packing sows moved at $8.50 to $9.50. Receipts for the week were 206,000 against 242,000 last week and 240,000 a year ago.

Cattle receipts for the week were estimated at 36,000 compared with 43,000 last week and 46,000 a year ago. Despite the light receipts, the general trend of the market was lower. Compared with last week, steers sold steady to 25c lower; mixed yearlings, heifers and cows 25c off. Calves dropped $1.

Steers topped at $15.50. Beef cows ranged from $6.50 to $9. Lowest this season. Plain to good heifers brought $8 to $11. Calves halted at $15.

The market for lambs dropped 25c and is at the lowest point in almost four years. Receipts were liberal at 83,000 against 70,000 last week and 55,000 a year ago. Demand was exceptionally slack. Top was $12.50 for choice lightweight lambs.

Chicago Cotton Active.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—Trade was active on the cotton exchange here today with short covering a feature. Final prices were up 2 to 15 points. March closed at 1507; May 1535; July 1562 and October 1560.

For the week prices were down from 116 to 149 points. New lows for the season were established during the week. Trade was exceptionally heavy and declines drastic.

The heavy unloading movement was attributed to weakness in outside markets and unfavorable farm board developments. Support was limited and mainly credited to shorts.

Many traders, especially on Monday, when prices dropped $2.50 a bale, showed disappointment in the fact that the Federal Cotton corporation failed to support the market. As the week progressed, news reports credited the federal farm board with doing everything possible to sustain values, but traders were inclined to be bearish, and unloaded at almost every opportunity.

Weather conditions over most of the belt were generally mild.

MOTHER, TWO SONS FOUND DEAD IN HOME

chasers of the house. Mr. Brox and the two women then forced the rear door and discovered the bodies.

Oven Jets Open.

Mrs. Wallace was lying face upward on the floor, with her head near a small gas range. The oven jets were wide open. The body of the older boy was lying on a couch in a corner of the room, and that of the baby on the floor at his mother's feet. The four-room cottage was saturated with gas. The kitchen doors and windows were securely fastened.

The notes were found on the kitchen table. Remnants of their last meal had been pushed to one side. A deck of playing cards were piled on the table.

Police and Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician, were summoned but the mother and children had long passed beyond human aid.

Contents of Three Notes.

None of the three notes found at the home gave any clue as to the cause of the suicide. One was addressed to a Mrs. Gourlay; another to "Al and Effie' 'and the third to "K and Lulu."

The one to Mrs. Gourlay read: "Please call Effie and Al at Savoy hotel if anything happens to us over here. Lots of good luck to you both. Mrs. Wallace."

All and Effie have been identified as Mr. and Mrs. Al Wallace. Mr. Wallace is a brother-in-law of the deceased woman. The note to them read: "Please take care of Winnetta now. Anna Savoy hotel. Give the radio to Winnetta please."

The note to K and Lulu has been identified as being addressed to Mrs. Carrie Mode and Mrs. Lulu Hastings, sisters, living at 135 South Hastings. The note read: "To K and Lulu. Winnetta is at the home. Help to take care of her please. I do not know what more. 135 South Thirtieth."

Leaves Insurance Policy.

Besides the notes a sealed envelope containing, according to Sheriff Claude P. Hensel, an insurance policy, was found, addressed on the outside to "Al and Effie Wallace, Savoy hotel."

According to Mrs. Effie Wallace, Mrs. Anna Wallace had called earlier in the week to ask if Al Wallace would act as a guardian to see that the children got the money from the insurance.

Mrs. Effie Wallace was only informed of the insurance a few days ago. She indicated that the other Mrs. Wallace had been quite concerned about the insurance, especially to see that the little girl was provided for.

Mrs. Effie Wallace was confident that at that time there had been no intention of suicide. "She was happy and cheerful." Mrs. Effie Walace stated. But that the suicide was caused by despondency because of the removal of her daughter to the detention home was the belief expressed by Mrs. Effie Wallace Saturday night.

Asked Renewal of Pension.

Mrs. Anna Wallace had been at the county court house during the past week according to District Judge Chappell and Mrs. W. M. Morning, juvenile probation officer, to see about renewal of her mother's pension from the county which was to expire in a few weeks. She was assured that it would be renewed. She had been getting $30 a month from the county.

District Judge Chappell had had previous experience with Mrs. Wallace, having come into contact with her situation while serving as Municipal judge. Sometime in 1925 or 1926, he said, the woman's husband had been brought to court on a charge of failure to provide for his wife and children.

A job was secured for him, Judge Chappell stated, and for some time he supported his family. Then, according to the judge, Mr. Wallace disappeared suddenly, no trace having been had of him since.

"Mrs. Wallace seemed happy and fine," Judge Chappell said Saturday night in discussing her appearance earlier in the week at the court house. He added that she seemed "to be in the best spirits I had ever seen her."

Daughter To Detention Home.

He stated that she had been having considerable difficulty with her oldest child, Winnetta, recently although the girl had not appeared in juvenile court. Winnetta, records at the detention home revealed, was taken to the home Tuesday in connection with some juvenile delinquency.

All of the children had been at the detention home for care previously. Mrs. Wallace had an operation at the University of Nebraska hospital in Omaha last summer, according to Mrs. W. M. Morning, juvenile probation officer. At that time, the three children were cared for at the detention home for several weeks.

Later they were returned temporarily while Mrs. Wallace underwent further examination at Omaha. The youngest of the three was called the "cutest kid we ever had" by one of the employes at the detention home.

Aided By Welfare Society.

According to Miss Ada Barker, of the social welfare society, aid had been given Mrs. Wallace to supplement the money furnished her by the county on her mother's pension. The social welfare tried to bring her up to the standard budget adopted for needy families, Miss Barker stated Saturday night.

She reported that the social welfare had followed the family since shortly after Mr. Wallace's disappearance. Last July she reported Mrs. Wallace underwent a major operation at Omaha and came back after several weeks in a nervous condition. This persisted and she went back to the hospital twice for further examination according to Miss Barker.

Although at first she was merely nervous, according to Miss Barker, in the last two months she had told visitors of unusual sights and sounds seen and heard at night. Social welfare workers, according to Miss Barker, tried to persuade Mrs. Wallace to see a doctor again but she refused. Meanwhile, unable to get her to seek medical aid, Miss Barker said attempts had been made to work something out with court officials to relieve the situation. Calls had been made by society workers weekly, Miss Barker stated. She was not certain when the last visit had been made.

Troubles Related.

Mrs. Mode and Mrs. Hastings who were Mrs. Wallace's closest friends, expressed the belief Saturday night that the suicide was due to a fear of Mrs. Wallace that she would lose her children. They said she was slightly deranged and had been delving into spiritualism recently. They said Mrs. Wallace had put up a courageous fight against numerous difficulties for many years and only recently had assumed a brighter outlook.

Mrs. Mode [illegible]t on Monday, Mrs. Wallace had walked with her from Eleventh and O streets to Twenty-seventh and O streets. At that time Mrs. Wallace felt much better about her circumstances, according to Mrs. Mode.

Monday noon, Mrs. Wallace had called Mrs. Hastings and told her that she was to take her daughter to Mrs. Morning, juvenile probation officer, Tuesday. She asked Mrs. Hastings to "pray for her please."

Mrs. Mode and Mrs. Hastings fear that the shock of having her daughter taken away from her was too much for her casting her into a deeper depression than those of recent months from which she had seemed to be escaping. Intuition led them to go to Mrs. Wallace's Saturday afternoon, both women, who are sisters, and Mrs. Wallace's closest friends, said.

Mr. Mode, likewise had passed the house earlier Saturday and felt prompted to stop, but continued home, his wife said.

Married 14 Years Ago.

The Wallaces were married fourteen years ago at St. Paul, Minn. They became acquainted while both were engaged at the Victoria hotel here. Mrs. Wallace originally came from New York City, according to her sister-in-law, and was an adopted child. Her foster mother is believed to be employed in a doctor's office.

Mrs. Wallace had been employed as a waitress at the Lincoln Country club, and at the Lincoln hotel, prior to her marriage. She was known to her Lincoln friends as Anna Marie.

When last heard from, Mr. Wallace was connected with the F. J. Taylor shows of Omaha, playing middle western stands. Prior to that he was connected with the Hagenbeck Wallace circus.

The bodies of Mrs. Wallace and her two children are being held at Splain and Schnell's pending funeral arrangements.

The couple was married yesterday at the jail. Mrs. Alonzo Hays, wife of the sheriff, was a witness.

"If I knew Oscar would get life I would love him and hope for the day of his release so we could be together," Miss White said.

case be transferred to Williamson county on a change of venue.

The defense then withdrew its motion. Judge More called the jury to the court room, asked if the members still felt that an agreement was impossible and on an affirmative response, discharged it.

Judge Brady was accused of stabbing Miss Highsmith to death on the night of November 9 when she returned to her home after being out in a motor car with another man.

Witnesses testified the jurist was intoxicated. A defense of insanity produced by the effects of excessive indulgence in liquor was entered.

Today was the twentieth since the trial started. The jurors were retired at 4:55 p. m., Tuesday.

Because of the prominence of the defendant, the case attracted statewide interest. A full week was required to select the jury.

Agreement Impossible.

ROY ROBERTS IS BACK IN PRISON

were filed against him when it was learned that he had forged Connent's name to a number of postcards addressed to Mrs. Connent purporting to tell her that her husband was safe and was working in the harvest fields.

On the night of their escape from the prison, Roberts and Grant had been given permission to work later than usual in the shops. Early in the evening one of the most violent storms of the season broke over Lincoln. About 9:30 p. m. the lights on the penitentiary walls went out. It was first thought that the break in current had been caused by lightning but an investigation revealed the broken wire and the rope and other equipment the two men had used in scaling the walls.

Law enforcement officers were notified throughout the state and a thorough search was made for several days following, but no trace of the men was found until Grant was arrested in Canada two years later, and Roberts was identified as a prisoner entered in the Missouri prison under the name of Harry Ross.

DR. T. M. RAYSOR HEADS ENGLISH FACULTY OF UNI.

lowship. He has also taught at the Texas A. & M. college, and at the University of Minnesota. Dr. Raysor recently spent three days in Lincoln in interviews with members of the English department and others, and made a very favorable impression, according to university authorities.

To Publish Book Soon.

He has written many critical articles, mostly dealing with early nineteenth century English literature. He has at present in page proof the first volume of an elaborate two-volume work on Coleridge's Shakespearean criticism. This book will be published within a few months and is to be followed by an edition of Coleridge's non-Shakespearean criticism, which is now ready in rough draft, waiting to be put together for revision. He has secured permission to use the family documents of the Coleridges for a full-length life of Coleridge, on which task he will embark soon.

"Dr. Raysor comes to the University of Nebraska with the highest endorsement of the men with whom he worked as a student at Harvard and of colleagues and administrative officers at the institutions where he has taught," commented Dean J. D. Hicks of the college of arts and sciences, who was in charge of the selection of the new chairman.

Sherman Now On Leave.

Dr. Sherman, former head of the English department, is on leave of absence until September 1, 1930, when he will become emeritus dean and professor of English. He had served as chairman of the department since 1882. During the past year the department has operated under a faculty committee of which Prof. S. B. Gass is chairman.

The department of English is the largest department on the university campus. The first semester last year the total course registration was 3, 968. During the second semester it was 3,577. Twenty-two faculty members cared for these students.

Dr. C. W. M. Poynter, who has been acting dean of the college of medicine at Omaha since September 1, 1929, was named dean of the college and superintendent of the medical college hospital. Dr. Poynter took the place of Dean J. J. Keegan, who resigned last year. He joined the university faculty in 1905 as professor of anatomy. He also served during the war as acting dean. Dr. Poynter became chairman of the department of anatomy in 1919.

Walker Is Advanced.

Prof. Gayle C. Walker, who has been acting director of the school of journalism and assistant professor, was advanced to director of the school and associate professor. Prof. Walker was named acting director of the school June 1, 1926, following the death of Prof. M. M. Fogg, the first director of the school. He became assistant professor in 1927.

Dr. Hal W. Stoke, associate professor at Berea college, was elected assistant professor in the department of political science. Dr. Stoke received his A. B. degree from Marion college in Indiana in 1924. He received his A. M. from the University of Southern California the next year and received his Ph. D. this year at Johns Hopkins. His appointment is effective September 1.

Dr. William Van Royen, now assistant secretary of the Netherlands chamber of commerce in New York City, was elected instructor in geography for the coming year. Dr. Van Royen is a native of Holland and has traveled widely over the continent of Europe. He completed his work for a Ph. D. degree in the graduate school of georgraphy at Clark university. The appointment is effective September 1.

Clifford D. Spangler, instructor in economics, was granted leave of absence for a year and a half, during which time he will be connected with the state insurance department.

tration's agriculture relief program.

Officials of the agricultural department are also studying the situation and co-operating with the board in an endeavor to solve the knotty problem.

Meantime, the board members and the general counsel of the board are studying the recommendation made by the advisory committee. The general counsel will submit his conclusions to Legge early Monday before the board meets.

Situation Critical.

That the situation is critical was shown by Legge's trip to Chicago to confer with officials of the $10,000,000 Farmers National Grain corporation and the tour of Samuel R. McKelvie, wheat representative of the board, through the grain regions to encourage individual farmers to join co-operatives.

What the wheat situation will be in June, when the winter wheat crop begins rolling into the markets, no one can foretell. The agriculture department's annual outlook report, however, points out that foregin demand for American agricultural products for the first half of 1930 will probably be lighter than for the same period in 1929, but that demand would probably increase during the last half of the year.

Decide To Reduce Acreage.

MOSCOW, Ida., Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—The Genesee Farmers union, one of the most successful co-operatives in the northwest and which handles more than 1,000,000 bushels of grain a year in its own elevators and warehouses, went on record today as the first group of farmers in the nation to take voluntary action to reduce their acreage for 1930.

In support of the action advocated by the federal farm board, the membership voted to reduce this year's wheat acreage by 25 per cent.

The resolution adopted declared that the move was made "in the hope that other wheat producing sections would co-operate in the movement of curtailment."

Take Over Membership.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 3—(U. P.)—The federal farm board's grain marketing agency, the Farmers National Grain corporation, tonight had the right to buy and sell grain in the local grain pit.

The Farmers National Grain corporation's application to take over the membership in the Minneapolis chamber of commerce has been approved by the chamber's directors.

one of the boys carrying a can of gasoline from his car. She notified Mr. Elliott, and he, armed with a gun and a flashlight, determined to investigate. As he appeared outside the house one of the youths left Mr. Elliott's car and ran towards his own, parked a short distance down the street.

Mr. Elliott called on him to halt, but the boy continued his dash for the automobile. Mr. Elliott fired several times. The fleeing youth staggered as though struck, but managed to make the car, in which the other youth was sitting. One of the bullets hit the right rear fender, Mr. Elliott told police.

This same car and its occupants blocked their driveway when he and his wife returned home earlier in the evening, Mr. Elliott stated, but when he asked the driver to remove the car, he complied readily, according to Mr. Elliott.

About a gallon of gasoline was taken from his machine, Mr. Elliott reported. He gave police a good description of the pair and their machine.

each instance, is what the county's gain or loss for that month would have been if the change had been made then.

The January fund distributed among the counties was $149,443, being one-fourth the net proceeds of the 4-cent gasoline tax. This is considerably below normal, and later on the counties will get $200,000 a month, more or less, from this source.

Lancaster Among Losers.

Lancaster county is one of the forty that loses under the revised basis of allotment. Had the January distribution been made on 1929 figures, this county's share would have been diminished by $177.86, or over 1½ per cent. In each remaining month of 1930 it will forfeit a proportionate amount, in comparison with what it would have got on the 1928 basis.

Douglas county, on the other hand, would have been a gainer to the extent of $620.76 if January revenue had been paid out on the 1929 basis. In March and succeeding months, Douglas will reap a corresponding benefit, its share being boosted over 3 per cent above what it has been receiving heretofore.

In the appended table the sums given are not those actually alloted for January, but what each county would have got if the money had been split up according to 1929 motor vehicle registrations and the gain or loss it would have incurred thereby:

HOUSE APPROVES "DRY" TRANSFER

mission to receive approval of either branch of congress. Its passage in the senate is expected.

Representative Gasque, democrat of South Carolina, led the minority in an attempt to give the attorney general complete control of industrial alcohol. Another group led by Representatives Clancy, republican of Michigan, W. E. Hull, republican of Illinois, and Cochran, democrat of Missouri, proposed retention of the industrial alcohol division in the treasury.

Gasque's amendment was defeated, 145 to 47, while Clancy's was defeated, 98 to 25.

Says Control Divided.

Gasque declared the bill leaving the permit division in the treasury continues divided control of prohibition enforcement and is "a jest to the people of the country."

Clancy declared the big industries, which use millions of gallons of industrial alcohol, fear the joint control proposed will ruin many business firms by causing delay in the issuance of permits.

The house retained, 110 to 30, an amendment secured in committee by Representative Schafer, republican of Wisconsin, a wet, requiring the attorney general to dismiss any agents who violate the penal provisions of the Volstead act. Dry leaders fought it.

The amendment, Schafer said, would require dismissal of agents who enter homes without search warrants or manufacture or transport liquor. It may be construed, it was said to prevent reformed bootleggers from being appointed agents.

Schafer, who has charged prohibition agents with wholesale disregard of the law, declared that it would force dismissal of hundreds of agents.

Move To Amend Jones Act.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—The movement of leading house drys to amend the Jones "five and ten" act, enacted last year by congress as the last word in prohibition legislation, gathered force today when Representative Stobbs, republican of Massachusetts, dry member of the judiciary committee, introduced a bill cutting punishment for minor prohibition law violators.

Representative Christopherson, republican South Dakota, chairman of the judiciary committee in charge of the Hoover law enforcement commission's court commissioner bill, announced that he would support the Stobbs bill. He had planned to introduce a similar measure of his own.

The movement grew out of opposition of dry members to some features of the crime commission's "juryless trial" bills, which provide for initial trial of minor prohibition cases before United States commissioners.

Dean Roscoe Pound of the commission explained that owing to the Jones law, a district attorney could charge a man before a commissioner with a minor violation, and if he pleaded not guilty, go to the grand jury for an indictment charging a felony, which carries a five year sentence.

A Powerful Club.

Pound admitted that this placed a powerful club in the hands of district attorneys, and Christopherson and Hammer, democrats of North Carolina, announced that they favored amendment of the Jones law to prevent a prosecutor from changing the charge once it had been made.

The Stobbs bill provides a maximum penalty of $500 fine or six months' jail sentence, or both, for minor prohibition violations, as recommended by the crime commission, and perhaps the Jones law penalties of $10,000 fine and five years imprisonement to stand for greater offenses.

The measure defines minor offenses as follows: Unlawful possession of liquor; single sale by a person not an habitual violator; unlawful making of small quantities of liquor; assisting in transportation of small quantities if not an habitual violator.

TEACHER DIES OF MENINGITIS

Strough, declared Saturday night in a telephone conversation. There are no cases of illness in the town at the present time, he said.

There is danger of persons exposed coming down with the disease anytime within ten days after they were exposed although the likelihood of this grows less each day. Precautions that exposed individuals are taking at Dr. Strough's advice are to use an argyrole solution for the nose and an antiseptic gargle for the throat.

Relatives Come To Lincoln.

The death of Butler was a blow to residents of Garland, where he had been principal of the high school and basketball coach since September 1927. His mother, Mrs. Carrie Butler of Daykin, came to Lincoln after her son was brought to the hospital here but had gone back to Daykin Saturday. She returned here Saturday evening.

The following other survivors of Butler also came to Lincoln late Saturday night: A brother, Laurence Butler of Beatrice; a brother-in-law, Garland Walker of Powell; and three sisters: Mrs. Edith Kennedy, and Mildred and Vivian Butler, all of Beatrice. They were staying at the home of Mrs. Ethel Umphres, 612 North Fifteenth street, who is an aunt of Joseph Butler.

Butler was born March 26, 1907 at Powell, Nebr. He received his elementary and high school education at the Powell public schools and later attended Peru Normal for two years.

The body is at Alba Brown's chapel pending the funeral arrangements.

Probably the outstanding event of the convention will be a luncheon Wednesday noon, honoring retail merchants who have done business in this state twenty-five years or more. Each will be given a medal as an expression of appreciation by the association of the service the recipient has given the state, Mr. Watson states.

Beachly of Lincoln is in charge of arrangements for the entertainment and Mrs. Ford has charge of the luncheon program. Mrs. C. H. Freadrich is chairman of the reception committee.

The keynote of the convention is "How to Meet Chain Store Competition." This will be discussed Wednesday afternoon at an open forum. This will include consideration of an educational campaign on supporting community enterprises.

Nebraska grocers and meat dealers, retail dry goods and ready-to-wear dealers, and retail shoe store owners, will hold annual meetings in conjunction with the federation. STATE LEADS IN NURSE EDUCATION

Has Most Attendants With Four Years Of High School Credit.

Nebraska leads all other states in the percentage of nurses who have had four years in high school before they entered training, according to the report of a national survey recently completed, and copies of which have just been received here. The survey was made in connection with the grading of nursing schools.

Next to Nebraska in the ranking was Oregon, with Minnesota a close third. All three states ranked above 90 per cent. Arkansas with 41 per cent was at the bottom of the list, the report shows.

A first survey was made in 1927. Every factor in connection with the educational background of more than 6,756 nurses was taken into consideration. The nurses included were in private duty, public health and institutional work. Of 2,203 who had entered the profession within the previous five years, only 56 per cent had finished four years of high school, and, according to the report, probably represented the average for the entire group.

Schooling Required Here.

The present study of 63,088 students in nursing schools in May, 1929, shows 73 per cent, indicating, the report states, that there has been a rapid increase in the standards for entrance to training schools.

A tabulation of the states according to their ranking shows that Nebraska's percentage is 92.39. Nineteen schools were surveyed, and 843 nurses questioned.

Inquiry among Lincoln trained nurses brought out that Nebraska's position with relation to the nation is probably due in part to requirements here being better balanced. In some states the requirements are higher in some instances, but lower in others. In this state there has been an effort to maintain a high level in all matters and this has held up the average, it is believed.

Nebraska has a four-year high school requirement. It was enacted some years ago. However, prior to the enactment of the law, the state nurses association had recommended that hospitals set up such a requirement and this was being followed generally before the act was passed by the state legislature. It was this, it has been declared by officials of the nurses association, that made it easy to have the law approved when requested.

COMPANY SUES TO COLLECT $700 ON MONUMENT STONE

Claiming that accidental substitution of the word "granite" for the word, "marble" in a contract for a monument stone had prevented collection of the $700 cost of the stone, the Monumental Sales & Manufacturing Co. filed suit in District court Saturday seeking court amendment of the contract and judgment for the cost of the stone.

The firm claims that prior to November 26, 1928, it prepared sketches, specifications and a sample of silver-gray marble for Bridget Neylon against whom the suit is brought. The defendant later ordered a monument. In writing the order, the petition claims the word "granite" was used instead of "marble" but the contract was carried out according to the intention of the parties, it is claimed.

The defendant accepted the stone but has refused to pay for it, the petition alleges. The court is asked to make the contract conform to the original agreement and to give judgment for the $700 cost of the stone.

UNDERWRITERS HEAR WHATLEY

National Head Tells Of Advances In Insurance.

Move To Consolidate Five Clubs Into State Group.

Growth and beneficial results achieved by the National Association of Life Underwriters and contemplated changes in methods of selling life insurance were discussed by S. T. Whatley, Chicago, national president of the association, Saturday afternoon at a meeting of the Underwriters of Nebraska at the chamber of commerce.

More than 200 insurance men from all parts of the state met for a luncheon sponsored by the Lincoln Life Underwriters association at noon and heard Mr. Whatley and Lloyd Dort, state insurance commissioner, speak in the afternoon.

The national association, which has a present membership of 22,000, has developed understanding and secured abolition of cut-throat sale taetics between insurance men, Mr. Whatley stated. Although 180,000 insurance agents are listed in the United States, members of the association write 75 per cent of the total amount of insurance sold each year, he said.

While no special membership campaign efforts are being made, in accordance with his policy announced upon his election at the Washington convention last year, a larger membership is needed to insure constructive insurance legislation, Mr. Whatley explained.

Is Social Engineer.

"The life underwriter of today," he said, "is a social engineer. His responsibility is carried beyond the creation of an estate for an individual; his problem now is also to study and determine its distribution. I like to think of insurance as a business and not a profession."

Insurance agents should talk more life insurance and less death insurance, Mr. Whatley advised. "It is as important to insure against living too long as dying too soon. The present tendency is to stress protection too much. Since most of us are inherently selfish, it is difficult to interest many persons with an argument for protection that appeals only to their unselfish side. An argument for combined savings and investment along with protection will meet a better response."

"The insurance business is undergoing an evolution, Mr. Whatley said, predicting an eventual transition to the system employed in England where people talk entirely in terms of the income, rather than the estate, left by the individual.

"The weekly income the family of a deceased could enjoy from insurance, if the principal was not used, may be determined by striking off three ciphers from the total amount of insurance. Thus, for example, insurance of $25,000 would give the family an income of $25 a week."

Lauds College Courses.

Teaching of life insurance courses in colleges will have a resultant effect upon insurance sales staff personnel and sales of insurance, Mr. Whatley explained, declaring that insurance courses are already offered in 107 colleges and universities, and that that number will be doubled in two years. The influx of college students in the insurance business will mean better service to the policy holder, because of the students' extensive study of the subject, and will also form the most intelligent buying public that insurance agents have yet had to cope with, for thousands of students, who for various reasons decide not to enter the insurance business, will have a comprehensive knowledge of insurance after completion of these courses.

It was unanimously agreed that presidents of the five Life Underwriters clubs in Nebraska should form a committee to consolidate the local groups into a state organization. The local meeting was in charge of W. H. Logan, president of the Lincoln club, and the program committee was Allen R. Beach, Robert R. Gray and Walter Whitburn.

Discussion after the speeches was upon four subjects, "Thrift Societies," "Selling Stock In Nebraska," "Plans for Co-operation with the State Insurance Department," and "Plans for Future Meetings of the Nebraska Association," with a leader and three speakers, each from a different association, for each topic.

BUILDING BOOM IN SOUTHEAST

Projects In Dixie States Are Third Largest In Country.

ATLANTA, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—Falling in rapidly with President Hoover's program to maintain the general prosperity of the nation, the southeast tonight was on the verge of one of the greatest building booms in its history.

This was revealed tonight in the monthly report of F. W. Dodge corporation which showed that North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and eastern Tennessee during January announced contemplated projects aggregating $119,854,200.

This total, according to the report, is three times greater than the aggregate figure for December or for January of last year.

The southeast was behind only two regions of the country, the metropolitan New York area and the Pittsburgh territory. The New York district's total was run into staggering figures due to a large subway project.

4-H Club Leaders Discuss Problems

Discussions of problems confronting 4-H club leaders in Lancaster county were held Saturday afternoon by nearly fifty leaders under the direction of J. F. Purbaugh, county extension agent, and L. I. Frisbie, state extension worker.

Emphasis was placed upon the importance of persuading club workers to keep accurate records of their work. Numerous incidents of club achievement were recounted during the program and events leading up to parental approval of the 4-H club program in families where club membership had first been opposed.

Other problems taken up were advantages of definite meeting time, problems of developing initiative, measures to secure 100 per cent attendance, and co-operation of parents, the part club workers could play in community programs, and the difficulties encountered in first-year club work.

SLANDER SUIT IS WON BY PASTOR

Unfrocked Illinois Minister Awarded $10,000 In Damages.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 8—(U.P.)—Damages of $10,000 were awarded Rev. John A. Logan Warren tonight at the conclusion of the second trial of his $50,000 slander suit against five members of the Methodist Episcopal church at Durand, his former pastorate.

Immediately after the opening of the jury's sealed verdict, defense counsel filed a motion for a new trial. Arguments on the motion will be heard next week by Circuit Judge Fisher.

The first trial of the suit, which grew out of the unfrocking of the minister in 1927 after he was charged with misconduct with Hazel Lamb, resulted in a $20,000 judgment against the defendants. The award was set aside by the granting of a new trial.

POPE CONDEMNS SOVIET RUSSIA

Asks World to Pray For End of Anti-Religious Movement.

Criticises Governments For Not Accepting His Suggestions.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 8—(U. P.)—Pope Pius XI suggested today that the whole Christian world join in solemn supplication to God for cessation of the anti-religious movement in the soviet union, which he scathingly condemned.

In a letter to Basilio Cardinal Pompilj, vicar-general of Rome, the pope attacked "the horrible and sacrilegious wickedness perpetrated in Russia against God and souls."

He criticised the governments which failed to accept his suggestion advanced at the time of the Genoa conference in 1922, that freedom of worship and respect for church property be made a condition for diplomatic recognition of the soviet.

Ask Prayer March 19.

The pope said he was certain the whole Christian world would unite with him on March 19, or on some other suitable occasion, in solemn supplication to the Almighty, and he invited the bishops and Catholics throughout the world to pray for cessation of "the moral and material destruction of immense regions constituting a sixth part of the globe."

He announced he would celebrate a mass of "atonement in supplication and rehabilitation" in St. Peter's cathedral on March 19 or Saint Joseph's feast day.

In the letter the pope recalled his efforts toward "checking the terrible persecution and sparing the Russian people serious evils."

He said the "holy see asked the governments represented at the Genoa conference to agree to a common attitude toward Russia; namely, to exact freedom of religious worship and respect for church property as a condition for recognition of the soviet union."

Attacks Governments.

If the suggestion had been accepted, he said, "many evils would have been spared Russia and the whole world." He affirmed that the suggestion— which he considered beneficial especially to hierachies which are separated from the Catholic unity—was dropped "in consideration of material interests which would have been better safeguarded if the different governments had respected the interests of God."

He deplored the efforts of the soviet government in what he described as perverting youth and contaminating young men's souls through "all sorts of vices and the most shameful aberrations of materinalism."

The promoters of such inquities are striking at both God and religion, he said, "but only succeeded in destroying intelligence and human nature itself."

Whaling Vessels In Antarctic Push Hunt For Wilkins

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—All whaling vessels in the sea of ice at the South Polar region are aiding in the search for Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, who has been unheard from for ten days, a copyrighted dispatch today to the New York American stated.

Victor Olsen, radio operator on the Melville, base ship of the Wilkins expedition, who sent the dispatch, revealed that in the last message sent by the explorer by radio from his ship, the Scoresby, he said he would send no further news "for several days, dut to a change being made in radio equipment." This was taken as a possible explanation of why radio calls to the Scoresby have not been answered for more than a week.

Sir Hubert, with three aviation assistants, left the Melville to search for a takeoff site on a proposed flight over Ross sea and the polar cap.

BECK IS SEEN AS VARE SUBSTITUTE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 8—(U. P.)—Representative James M. Beck, republican, Pennsylvania, who delivered the much discussed prohibition modification speech Friday was mentioned in political circles here today as a possible substitute for William S. Vare as a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator.

Two reasons are advanced for the selection of Beck to carry the Vare banner in the spring primaries.

The first is that Vare, because of ill health, may be unable to stage the fight which is anticipated should the present disagreement between Pennsylvania factions continue.

The other reason arises from the similarity noted in the position of Beck and Vare in the matter of prohibition enforcement.

BETTER ALCOHOL CONTROL URGED

Doran Would Allow U.S. To Probe Dealers' Records.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(U. P.)—Prohibition Commissioner Doran recommended tonight a strengthening of laws controlling industrial alcohol, so the government can go into dealers' records beyond the original purchaser and find the ultimate disposition.

Doran made this recommendation in a lengthy pamphlet dealing with industrial alcohol, the second in the treasury's $50,000 educational campaign. He declared the government has checked diversion as far as possible under present laws. Corn sugar alcohol now has been developed as the principal source of contraband liquor, he said.

Less than three per cent of the 106,960,458 gallons of industrial alcohol produced last year went into bootleg channels. Doran estimated. Corn sugar production, he said, increased from 150,000,000 pounds in 1921 to 960,000,000 pounds last year.

Roads Bill Signed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(INS)—President Hoover today signed the bill appropriating $31,400,000 as joint aid to the states for the construction of rural post roads.

John D. is 'Neighbor John' At Ormond Beach; Prefers Plain Folks to Celebrities

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8—"Neighbor John," they call John D. Rockefeller at Ormond Beach.

For the last eighteen years he has been coming to this beauty spot, with its many royal palm trees, situated on the shores of the Halifax river. Year after year he has arrived about December 15 and remained until around May 1, when he return to his estate at Pocantico Hills, Tarrytown, N. Y.

"We love him as a neighbor," said George H. Rigby, mayor of Ormond Beach for the last fifteen years, to International News Service today. "He is one of the crowd."

Ormond Beach is thronged with millionaires, but, as such, they do not interest Mr. Rockefeller. He does not care for celebrities. He likes people—not necessarily rich people, either. He warms up to the "folks" he meets at the golf links on week days or at Ormond Union church, which he attends on Sundays—people who seem to really like him and to whom he doles out his limitless supply of brand new dimes.

Thel ate President Warren G. Harding was a frequent visitor at Ormond Beach, but so far as known he did not visit with Mr. Rockefeller. An intimate friend of the "oil king" tells the story Mr. Rockefeller once renegel at meeting no less a celebrity than the Prince of Wales.

Host To Cardinal Mercier.

This happened about ten years ago when Mr. Rockefeller was at his Tarrytown estate. Cardinal Mercier of Belgium, who had done so much splendid work during the war, came to America. Somebody on his staff, so the story goes, arranged through John D. Rockefeller, jr., that the cardinal might visit the elder Rockefeller. The cardinal stayed for three days and Mr. Rockefeller enjoyed the visit.

Three months later, however, the king and queen of Belgium came to the United States and somebody on their staff thought it would be a good idea if the king and queen could visit Mr. Rockefeller, sr. Once again, through John D. Rockefeller, jr., the visit was arranged and royalty came to Tarrytown.

Six months later the Prince of Wales came over. Some one on his staff had heard of Cardinal Mercier and the Belgium rulers visiting John D. and thought it would be a capital idea for the Prince of Wales to do likewise. The result was John D. Rockefeller, jr., telephoned his father trying to arrange the appointment. According to the story, Mr. Rockefeller, sr., said:

"No, son, there isn't anything doing. I'm fed up on this king business."

This story was told to the writer today by a close friend of Mr. Rockefeller who has been his guest both here and at Tarrytown. He was illustrating how "democratic" John D., really is.

First Visit 18 Years Ago.

Mr. Rockefeller came to Ormond Beach eighteen years ago and for six years lived at the Ormond Beach hotel. Eleven years ago he moved to the Casements, a beautiful but small estate overlooking the expansive Halifax river. There the household is presided over by Mrs. Fannie E. Evans, a cousin of the late Mrs. Rockefeller. Also staying at the Casements is Mrs. Matilda McCormick Oser, Mr. Rockefeller's grand daughter and the wife of Maj. Max Oser. Mrs. Oser is a former Chicago girl, the daughter of Edith Rockefeller and Harold F. McCormick. The later is now married to Ganna Walska, the opera singer.

TAFT CONTINUES TO GAIN HEALTH

In No Immediate Danger, But Still Very Sick, Doctor Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(UP)—A bulletin issued by physicians of former Chief Justice William Howard Taft at 7 p. m., tonight said their patient had had a satisfactory day and had taken more nourishment.

The bulletin read:

"The chief justice has had a satisfactory day and has taken more nourishment."

It was signed by Dr. Thomas A. Claytor and Dr. Francis Hagner.

Mrs. Helen Taft Mannin, daughter of the former chief justice, arrived at his home here tonight to remain over the weekend.

The condition of Taft was so encouraging today that his brother, Horace, who came here yesterday, returned to his home.

Brother Is Pleased.

Horace Taft, who is head master at Taft school, Watertown, Conn., said he was greatly pleased by the former chief justice's progress toward recovery, and felt his presence no longer required. The visit by the educator was regarded by physicians as having a great deal to do with Mr. Taft's cheerfulness and continued improvement during the past four hours.

"The chief justice is in no immediate danger," Dr. Hagner said, "but he is still very sick. We hope, however, to have him up and around before very long."

Young Woman Admits She Killed Chicagoan

CHICAGO, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—A pretty young woman, Mrs. Dorothy Bove, 25, confessed to police here this afternoon she had fired the shot which killed Pasquale Calabrese in his apartment today.

Mrs. Bove was arrested in her home after police seized Mrs. Stella Crowley when she displayed great interest in a newspaper story of the crime. Mrs. Crowley said she was in the apartment when the shot was fired, but insisted Mrs. Bove was the slayer.

When questioned, Mrs. Bove admitted the shooting, police said, but stated she fired only when Calabrese tried to attack her.

The shooting followed an alleged wine party.

SEEK TO CANCEL STOCK PURCHASE IN BETHANY BANK

Two suits were filed in District court Saturday seeking cancellation of contracts to purchase stock in the First State bank of Bethany and cancellations of promissory notes given at the time the contracts were made. Several similar suits had been filed previously.

The suits Saturday were in behalf of Charles A. Phillips, jr., and George R. Whitlock. They are made against the bank and against the state department of trade and commerce.

Phillips asks cancellation of a contract to purchase five shares of stock, voiding of a note, and judgment for $160 already paid on it. He also asks cancellation of ten shares presumably trasferred from George R. Whitlock. Whitlock asks cancellation of a contract to but twelve shares, voiding of a note and judgment for $500 already paid.

Both claim they were solicited in April 1929 and assured that the bank had been examined and found in good condition. They ask the cancellations and return of funds on the grounds that the bank's condition was misrepresented.

CHICAGO POLICE ASK CITIZENS TO AID CRIME DRIVE

Officials Are Practically Helpless to Stop Reign Of Terrorism.

City Preparing to Pay Employes in Scrip As a Last Resort.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—Like military police in a riot-infested area, citizens stepped in tonight to curb the reign of violence, killings, bombings, shooting and robberies, when it was demonstrated that city officials by themselves were practically helpless.

Five thousand policemen patrolled the streets in an effort to stop hoodlums and gunmen, their minds perhaps more on their homes than duty, homes where there has been no salary check for more than five weeks and where poverty and want is beginning to be experienced.

Unable to stop the terrorism, police have turned to the Chicago Association of Commerce and to big businessmen, not only to handle the crime situation of the city, but the financial situation as well. Banks have refused to honor tax anticipation warrants and now city officials have asked businessmen to subscribe to $27,150,000 in tax warrants so that city employes might be paid. Negotiations for the sale of the warrants were still underway tonight with nothing definitely decided.

Crime Continues.

Crime continued throughout the day. One man was shot and killed by a woman who later confessed. More than sixty robberies, burglaries and holdups were reported. Two kidnapings were being investigated.

One murderer, however, was sentenced to die in the electric chair and another was denied a new trial after being found guilty of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Meanwhile, the city went ahead preparing new tax anticipation warrants which will be issued as scrip to employes as a last resort. No employes have yet asked for the scrip, the general opinion being that the rescue committee of Silas H. Strawn would be able to sell $54,000,000 in warrants for cash with which to pay off firemen and policemen. There are 40,000 city employes that have received no pay since December.

Trying to Sell Warrants.

H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education, was in New York attempting to sell school tax warrants to a group of eastern bankers, but, according to latest reports, had little success thus far.

"Six men of courage" were to be picked by the Association of Commerce to study the crime situation with State's Attorney John A. Swanson and Police Commissioner William A. Russell. This was decided after Swanson told Russell that curbing crime was primarily a police problem and that he and his office would act only as prosecutors.

Financial Aid To National Contest For County Winners

Financial assistance will be furnished any Lancaster county judging team which wins first in a state contest to assist the team in representing the state in national competition, the county fair board decided at a meeting held Saturday in the office of the county agricultural agent.

The board also authorized Frank Wallace, president of the board, to appoint a committee to confer with the Lancaster county real estate board in regard to financing a special county exhibit at the state fair.

Two major classifications were added to the premium list. Ayrshire cattle were approved for a new class of dairy stock. In the past, only Holstein, Jersey and Guernsey breeds have been given awards at the county fair. Several classes of dairy goats were also established. No awards have been given previously for milk goats. Several minor classification and premium changes were also ordered.

The board also provided for appointment of a superintendent for demonstration teams to have charge of their work similar to the work of other department heads at the county fair.

Frank Walker of Waverly is president of the board. B. F. Preston, who lives northwest of Lincoln, is secretary.

FRANCE IN MOOD TO OPEN ATTACK AT NAVY PARLEY

No Consideration Has Thus Far Been Given To Her Proposals.

Tardieu May Accuse Stimson and MacDonald Of Running Meeting.

LONDON, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—The guns of criticism were being trained from three different quarters tonight upon the detailed and "nearly synonymous" naval disarmament programs announced by the United States and Great Britain.

Of least importance is the American objection to Britain's proposal that aircraft carriers be reduced in tonnage and gun calibre. Slightly more sinister is the unfavorable reaction from Tokyo regarding both proposals, but most dangerous of all is the attitude of France.

Britain and America are so closely in accord on all major questions confronting the five-power conference that even the most pessimistic observers do not feel that the aircraft issue will furnish a very serious obstacle.

Japan has shown its absolute willingness to participate in any disarmament agreement provided she is granted sufficient tonnage for her defenses, so it is likely her present objections to the Anglo-American programs can be overcome.

Unknown Quantity.

But France, at least so far as these detailed and somewhat revolutionary programs are concerned, is the "unknown quantity." She may burst forth at any moment with an attack upon the British and American proposals that will rock the present peaceful foundations of the conference.

Premier Andre Tardieu of France, whose task it will be to answer these proposals on behalf of his nation, is at present in Paris, conferring with his cabinet on domestic and foreign affairs. When he returns to London early next week, it is virtually a foregone conclusion that he will have something of the utmost importance to say regarding the Anglo-American programs.

M. Tardieu left for Paris just at the time the British and American proposals, which involve battleship parity at reduced levels, strict limitation of submarines and restriction of all auxiliaries, were being announced. Newspapermen who attempted to interview him at the station found him taciturn, glum and frowning.

His departure has been followed by absolute silence, a silence that viewed in the light of certain aspects of the Anglo-American proposals, is sinister, to say the least.

Plenty to Talk About.

Just what M. Tardieu intends to say when he makes his awaited statement is a matter for conjecture only. There is no doubt of one thing—he will have plenty to talk about.

To begin with, both the British and American proposals launched viciously at submarines, the "favored children" of the French maritime fleet. Britain pressed for total abolition, and failing this, for limitation in numbers and strict regulation of undersea activities in wartime. America chimed in with the latter proposals.

Secondly, the British proposals made no concessions whatever to the French demand for disarmament by global tonnage, which would mean merely a lump tonnage allocation under which the countries concerned could build any type of vessel they chose.

The British proposals did not even pay much attention to the French "transactional" scheme, which would provide for a half-way measure between global and categorical tonnages. Britain suggested the allowances of certain minor transfers, but in general, the program set forth her preference for disarmament by categoies completely.

It is possible M. Tardieu will accuse Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald of running this parley as a tripartite conference instead of a five-power affair, of giving absolutely no consideration to the French demands and of creating an Anglo-American hegemony detrimental, if not directed against the interests of France.

Mayor Walker Leaves For Florida Vacation

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—(UP)—Mayor James J. Walker left here tonight for a two weeks vacation to begin at Long Key, Fla., almost at the moment President Hoover and a party of friends set forth from Washington for the same spot.

There is a strong possibility that the mayor and the president may fish side by side.

Walker's plans are subject to change without notice. He probably will spend several days with his wife at Miami. He may "ferry over" to Havana for a day or stop off at Palm Beach on the way north. A group of New York and Philadelphia friends will accompany the party.

Hospital Bookkeeper And $25,000 Missing

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 8—(UP)—An estimated shortage of $25,000 in the cash accounts of the Kentucky Baptist hospital here is understood to have been uncovered by an audit started after the disappearance of Robert H. Bibb, hospital bookkeeper, January 29.

Suspicion was aroused late in January when another employe reported to officials of the institution that Bibb was not recording cash receipts in the ledger. He was placing the credits only on individual account sheets, it was learned.

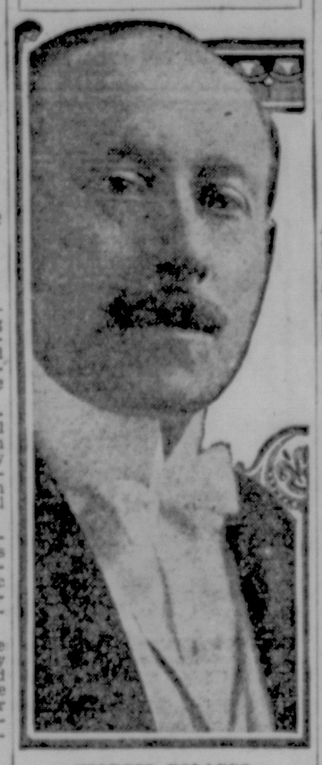
Polacco To Direct Chicago Orchestra



GIORGIO POLACCO.

Who will direct the Chicago Civic Opera company orchestra in its broadcast over the CBS network Sunday.

CHICAGO CIVIC ON AIR SUNDAY

Famous Opera Orchestra Will Broadcast Over CBS Network.

The Chicago Civic Opera company orchestra, which has twice appeared before Lincoln audiences, will be featured on the Theater of the Air over the CBS network Sunday evening. The orchestra will broadcast from the Boston opera house, where it has appeared during the past week in the first stop of its 1930 tour, and may be heard through KOIL, Council Bluffs, and KMOX, St. Louis, from 8 to 9 o'clock, central time.

The musicians will be under the baton of Giorgio Polacco, who conducted the "Il Trovatore" and "Faust" presentations when the operatic organization appeared at the University of Nebraska coliseum. They will play the score of Bizet's great opera when the Chicago Civic company brings "Carmen" to the coliseum next month.

The musical staff of the orchestra number 100 people including directors, assistant conductors, librarians and musicians. Long hours of rehearsals in order to perfect the difficult scores makes the life of an operatic orchestra member a busy one.

All members are skilled musicians, artists on their own particular instrument, for the exact musical ability demanded by scores of the great composers demands perfect execution at all times.

A majority of the musicians in the Chicago Civic orchestra have been with the organization for more than fifteen years and are familiar with the musical scores of more than 100 operas.

PROTEST HINTED AGAINST HUGHES FOR COURT POST

Norris Says New Yorker Inquired How to File Objections.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—(I. N. S.) A rather mysterious protest against confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States may be filed with the senate judiciary committee when it meets Monday to act on the appointment, Chairman Norris, republican, Nebraska, announced tonight.

Norris said he was visited by a New Yorker, who asked for directions in filing a protest against confirmation of Hughes for the highest judicial post in the land. Norris told his inquirer to file it with the judiciary committee. The visitor, the senator added, did not reveal the nature of the possible protest.

Norris Lists Cases.

Norris, meanwhile, made public a list of all the cases in which Hughes appeared before the Supreme court as counsel for litigants. There were fifty-four corporations on the list.

These included the General Electric Co., the United States General Electric Co., Swift & Co., B. F. Keith vaudeville exchange, Victor Talking Machine Co., Beech-Nut Packing Co., Hanover Fire Insurance Co., Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., Los Angeles & Salt Lake railroad, Trenton Potteries Co. Aetna Insurance Co., Springfield Boiler Co., DeForest Radio Telephone & Telegraph Co., U. S. Industrial Chemical Co., Anaconda Copper Mining Co., Piedmont & Northern Railroad Co., Wabash railroad, Motor Products corporation and the Interborough Rapid Transit Co.

Makes No Comment.

Norris made public this list without comment. He only said he had collected it for the information of the senate. It was noticeable that he included the Trenton Potteries Co., in which Hughes opposed the anti-trust laws; the Interborough Rapid Transit case in which Hughes opposed a 5 cent fare in New York City; and the General Electric (WGY) case in which Hughes declared broadcasting stations had a property right in the air.

Touching on the potential protest against Hughes, Norris said: "I do not know the nature of the protest. If it is only of a trivial character, we will dispose of it Monday and promptly report Mr. Hughes' appointment for confirmation by the senate. If the protest is of serious nature, the nomination will be referred to a sub-committee for a full hearing and investigation, thus delaying his confirmation indefinitely."

Hyatt led the victorious Pittsburgh team with eight points. Notre Dame tried 10 men during the course of the game, but only three of them were able to score field goals.

Gophers Trim Illini.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 8—(UP)—Continuing their climb in the percentage column, the University of Minnesota basketball team tonight defeated Illinois, 26 to 21. The score at the end of the half was tied, with nine points each.

PENN RALLIES TO DEFEAT CORNELL

Missouri Tossers Trim Iowa State

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 8—(U. P.)—Missouri stretched its string of Big Six conference basketball victories to five tonight when the Tigers triumphed over Iowa State five, 43 to 34. The game, played in Brewer fieldhouse, was witnessed by a crowded house.

The Missourians took the lead in the opening period and except momentarily, when the score was tied two-all, held it throughout the game.

The lead was not so good, however, that the Iowans were not a threat and the long distance bombardment of Roadscap and Woods during the last period kept the Tigers worried. The Iowa aces accounted for 24 of their team's 34 points.

Slow-Breaking Attack.

Missouri, resorting to a slow-breaking offensive, took most of its points from within the foul line. Craig, Tiger captain, accounted for 15 points.

Roadscap, Iowa flash, caused the Tigers the greatest trouble and Johnny Waldorf and Collings took turns guarding him. Fouls were frequent and each team was forced to substitute and change lineups frequently because of players being put out of the game via the foul route. The victory leaves the Tigers on top of the conference scramble. The score at the half was 21 to 14, with the Tigers ahead. The score:

HOW TO PLAY GOLF.

Closed Stance One of Power; Open of Control.

BY BOBBY JONES.
Present Open Champion.

IT is a fine thing for the golfer always to remember what he can do with his feet. Many times a tendency to hook or slice can be corrected by an intelligent adjustment of the stance, or if the player has advanced far enough to attempt such things, he can in the same way bring off a pull or a fade at will. It is not so much that the altered position directly affects the stroke, but that variations are induced when the player places himself in positions most encouraging to them.

The closed stance is regarded as the hooking stance and the open stance as more likely to produce a fade or slice. The reasons are obvious. To assume a closed-stance position the player pulls his right foot back away from the ball so that it rests several inches behind the line drawn through his left foot parallel to the line of flight. This accomplishes two things; first it encourages a round flat swing with a free turn away from the ball; and, second, it sets up a certain amount of resistance in the left side at about the time of impact. Addressing the ball in this position encourages the player to hit outward at the ball, and when he exaggerates the maneuvre he has the feeling that he takes the ball upon the club face and swings it around to the left.

THE closed stance is essentially the long driving stance. I always use it when I want a little extra distance with the driver or brassie. When I employ it I am morally certain that I can hit as hard as I like without fear of cutting the shot into a right-hand bunker. Francis Ouimet stands in this way for almost every shot with the wooden clubs. When Francis strays from the line, his error is almost always on the hooking side, caused by too much resistance by the left side of his body.

The open stance, on the other hand, is not a position of power but rather of control. With the right foot advanced, the player stands more directly over the ball, and he has much more difficulty in turning his hips and shoulders during the backstroke. From this position he cannot easily accomplish a flat swing hence he is apt to be more upright.

The open-stance advocate will be more likely to slice than to hook, and will likely play most of his iron shots with a slight left to right drift. In the open position, the player faces more toward the hole. Even at address, his left hip is moved backward out of the way of the path of the hands, and at the same time the right side is advanced so that it becomes an impediment to a round sweeping swing. These two factors encourage cutting across the ball, which is a characteristic of the players who use this stance.

IT so happens that to cut a drive is one of the first things possible, while to cut a pitch is nearly always desirable. Making allowance then for the irregularities of the ground which might produce variations, the stance undergoes a transformation from the teeing ground to the putting green. In playing the big shots, the drive, brassie, and long irons, I like to see the player stand with his right foot slightly back of or at least on line with his left and for the shorter irons and pitches use an open stance.

J. H. Taylor uses probably the widest open stance in the world, and while Taylor's feet are never on line, he widens the opening as he nears the green. I have seen him play a pitch shot when he was facing almost directly at the objective. I do not know that Taylor was ever noted as a long driver. Certainly he is not one now, and I think his open driving stance indicates that he never was, but he is a marvelously accurate player with every club, especially the mashie. Strangely enough, even with his very open stance, he manages a moderately flat swing but it is the acme of compactness and firmness.

BUFFALO BOXERS IN TITLE BATTLE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 8—(U. P.)—The world's light-heavyweight boxing crown, deposited on the shelf last year by Tommy Loughran, veteran Philadelphia ring warrior, will be handed by the New York state boxing commission Monday either to the fun-loving Jimmy Slattery or rugged Lou Scozza, Buffalo Italian.

Scozza and Slattery, both making their home here, meet here in a 15-round bout, the winner to be declared holder of the light-heavyweight championship. The match was clinched last month when the boxing fathers of the New York commission declared the men the outstanding contenders. Awarding of the title, however, was made with the proviso the winner defend it within 60 days against Maxie Rosenbloom of New York. Slattery is a 10 to seven favorite.

"... The Viking is the most satisfactory car I have ever owned"

Mrs. Van Doorn and myself are more than pleased with the Viking car we purchased from you last summer.

This is the eighth car we have owned, and it is without question the most satisfactory of all.

We have driven the car, now, several thousand miles and its ease of handling, quick acceleration and efficient brakes have been a constant source of comfort and enjoyment to us both.

J. W. Van Doorn
Retired Dentist
Cleveland Heights, Ohio

Viking appeals quite as much to women as it does to men. Women admire its tailored smartness, its fine upholsteries and its luxurious appointments. They enjoy its finger-tip handling ease, its instant responsiveness, its sure, safe braking.

Men like these things, too. But even more often you hear them enthuse about its wealth of power, its smooth, swift pick-up, or the uncanny way it holds the road at high speeds. And everyone appreciates its splendid day-in-and-day-out dependability.

We know that owners like the Viking. They tell us so. And you'll like it, too, once you have examined Viking—and driven it yourself. Come in today.

Mrs. T. R. Edwards Believed Oldest Resident of Shubert Region

MRS. THOMAS R. EDWARDS.

STELLA, Neb., Feb. 8—Having lived in this vicinity for nearly seventy-one years, Mrs. Thomas R. Edwards of Shubert is considered the oldest resident of this part of the state. She is 75 years old now, having come to Prairie Union near here in a covered wagon at the age of 5.

About twenty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards retired from their farm at Prairie Union, which is between Stella and Shubert, and made their home in Shubert. This January the couple quietly observed their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary. Both are still in sound health, Mr. Edwards having recently displayed his preservation by doing some plastering and stone masonry for a friend. Mrs. R. A. Higgins of Shubert, sister-in-law of Mrs. Edwards, is the only surviving attendant at their wedding.

Mrs. Edwards was born in Wisconsin, the daughter of the late Thomas Higgins who founded the Prairie Union church near here, and for whom the Higgins school at Prairie Union was named. Mr. Edwards was born in Ohio, also lived in Wisconsin, and finally settled in Prairie Union when he was 21 years old

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards have four children, Mrs. Elsie Oswald and Roy Edwards of Pasadena, Cal., Mrs. Edward oung of Omaha, and Charles Edwards of Prairie Union. Joseph C. Higgins of Lincoln is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, and Misses Cora and Jennie Higgins, also of Lincoln, are their niece.

DEDICATE NEW GENOA SCHOOL

Weaver and Taylor Give Main Addresses At Ceremony.

(Special to The Star.)

GENOA, Neb., Feb. 8—Dedication ceremonies for the new Genoa public school building were held Thursday, February 6. Governor Weaver and State Superintendent Charles W. Taylor gave the principal addresses and Dr. C. D. Williams, mayor, accepted the $117,000 building on behalf of the community.

In the early afternoon, the high school band played several selections and the high school glee club sang several songs. County Supt. Jessie Kreidler and former County Superintendent Chloe C. Baldridge spoke praising the people of Genoa for their accomplishment.

Declaring that the trend of education is moving forward and that facilities of fifty years ago are entirely inadequate for the present, Superintendent Taylor congratulated the board of education and Genoa citizens on their new educational plant. He pointed out that there has been an increase of approximately 300 per cent in high school attendance in the past ten years and it is impossible to predict the changes in the near future.

Governor Weaver, as the principal speaker of the evening, cited the progressive attitude of Nebraska citizns in school matters and said that dedicating a school "is one of my most happy occasions." Saying that the public schools eliminate class distinction, he stressed the fact that democracy stood upon the principle "that all men are created equal."

CROP PRODUCTION PLANS DISCUSSED AT GUIDE ROCK

RED CLOUD, Neb., Feb. 8—As a part of the follow up campaign of the profitable pork special which toured southern Nebraska last October, one of twenty corn and hog meetings scheduled for the tertory covered, was held at Guide Rock Saturday with a large attendance. Numerous sugestions were made for getting the best results in the production of both crops under 1930 conditions.

This meeting along with other plans made for the campaign is the result of several conferences held this winter between representativs of th county agents, the state extension service, the Burlington and other co-operating parties. Included in the program are twenty radio talks to be made over four of the Nebraska stations, feature articles prepared for the papers of the state and an illustrated poster published and distributed by the Burlington.

Co-operation of the Smith Hughes vocational agriculture boys of the state will be asked in the building of A-type houses which will serve as demonstrators for the farmers to follow, while lumber yards over the state will send out two illustrated circular letters to their patrons offering to supply Nebraska blizzard beater A-type houses built right for a fairly uniform price or an offer to supply the lumber and blue prints to those who want to do their own work.

WEBSTER WOMEN MAKING PROFITS RAISING TURKEYS

(Special to The Star.)

BLADEN, Neb., Feb. 8—With the advent of the "turkey ring," the turkey raising industry is taking on a new slant in Webster county. One of the most outstanding among these organizations is composed of three women, Mrs. Emil Polnicky, Mrs. C. F. Eshelman, and Mrs. Dwight Kaminsky, all of whom reside south of here.

Starting out four years ago with only fifteen turkey hens and a gobbler each, the members of the ring have since developed their turkey raising project on a large scale, with over 900 birds being sold by the women at the close of 1929. Beside selling large numbers of turkeys, the women have gained good-sized profits from the eggs the fowls have produced.

The idea of the "turkey ring" was established with the aid of the poultry department of the state agricultural college. By putting their flocks together when ready to market, the women have worked out a convenient system of co-operative marketing which increases profits by quantity-lot selling.

"The Greatest Medicine I Ever Used"

Where Other Remedies Failed Miller's Herb Extract Brought Glorious Relief In a Very Short Time.

Surely Life teaches no finer lesson than that, in our search for better health or anything else, it is wise to profit by the experiences of others. Read what Mr. E. E. Johnson, a resident of Lincoln last 24 years says of Miller's Herb Extract, formerly called Herb Juice.

You do not have to take pills with this medicine.

MR. E. E. JOHNSON,
1931 U St., Lincoln, Nebr.

"I suffered from stomach trouble, constipation, indigestion and rheumatism in the small of my back and limbs for 15 years, almost past going at times; digestion was bad, food would sour on my stomach causing me to bloat badly, had severe dizzy spells and nervous headaches, could not sleep soundly or get my rest at night, lacked energy, felt tired and wornout all the time. I tried numerous remedies and treatments but with no satisfactory results until I commenced on Miller's Herb Extract. Six bottles of this great medicine has restored my health and put my system in splendid shape. Am no longer troubled with constipation, bowels are well regulated, now eat anything I want without fear of any suffering to follow, am free from rheumatism, headaches and dizziness, sleep soundly at night and have a greater amount of energy than for years. My wife has also taken a course of this medicine and gotten wonderful results. It is indeed the greatest medicine I ever used and I earnestly recommend it to everyone."

See the special representative direct from the Laboratories at his headquarters at Harley Drug Co., 11th and O Sts., Lincoln, Nebr., where he is now introducing and explaining the merits of this famous medicine.—Advertisement.

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., Feb. 8—The Tecumseh city council has granted a twenty-five year franchise to the Nebraska Natural Gas company to build its pipe lines and operate within the corporate limits of the city. The agreement is that a line will be laid to the city limits of Tecumseh in 1930. A proviso makes it possible for the gas company to supply the city with artificial gas, if, for any reason, the natural gas fails.

Archery Golf Latest Idea In Winter Sport

CLEVELAND, Feb. 7—(I. N. S.)—"Archery golf" is Cleveland's latest winter sport.

The pastime is much the same as golf, except that bows and arrows are used instead of clubs and balls. The players shoot an arrow toward target set up at each hole. When the target is hit, the player then proceeds to the next hole. Each shot of the arrow counts the same as a stroke in golf.

Two courses have been set aside here for the game. One is a 9-hole stretch and the other eighteen holes.

WINNING AGAIN!

Its 3 Major Challenges

Performance Distinction and Value...

with a larger, longer, roomier car ... with even faster speed ... with greater power ... with quicker get-away ... also challenges in good looks—in real values—in reliability and in price ...

The NEW ESSEX Challenger

The common exclamation of everyone when he has ridden in the new Essex Challenger is: "How did you do it! How did you get this greater power and faster get-away! How do you get this speed?"

"My Essex the Challenger is a wonder—but, man, this is a revelation."

It is a new Essex Challenger from front end to tail light. It is a longer, larger car. The Super-Six motor is made smoother and given a wider performance range. The motor retains every advantage you know in economy and long life. It is so distinctly modern in all the things that count that you must want to own it.

The bodies are roomy. Three won't crowd the rear seat. There is room for your hat. You don't have to squeeze in the driver's seat. The clutch and brakes operate at the slightest foot pressure. Proper balance and mechanism make it easy to steer.

This sweeping challenge is for you to know the facts. It is for you to know that a thoroughbred automobile is available at a price all can afford.

Course Record Falls as Golfers Clash In Houston Open

Espinosa Around In a Brilliant 67

Chicago Expert Is Setting Fast Pace With Total Score of 139 for Two Rounds; Tourney Ends Sunday.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 8—(UP)—Al Espinosa, steady pro from Chicago, turned in a brilliant 67, five below par, on his second 18 holes in the $2,500 Houston open tournament here this afternoon to lead the field with 72-67—139.

Espinosa's second 18 holes provided the gallery with the most sensational golf of the tournament. His drives were true, approaches almost perfect and putting some times magical.

His score was four strokes better than any of the pros entered in the tournament, which is being staged over the Rio Rico Country club course.

Three Tied for Second.

Tied for second place at the end of the first 36 holes were three pros, Bobby Cruickshank, diminutive golfer from Purchase, N. Y.; John Golden, Paternson, N. J., and Harry Cooper, lately of Dallas and Los Angeles, but playing unattached. The three turned turned in scores of 143.

Other good scores were chalked up by the players, who were driving in a warming sun, with the course almost completely dried off after the drenching rains of the past month.

Among good scores made were: Tom Creavy, New York, 144; Clarence Clark, Tulsa, 146; Wild Bill Mehlhorn, unattached, 146; Julius Ackerbloom, Little Rock, 147, and Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, 148.

The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

Helen Hicks Victorious.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 8—(I. N. S.)—Shooting a consistent game throughout the match, Miss Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I., captured the title in the twenty-fifth annual women's St. Valentine's golf tournament here today by defeating Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth of Pittsburgh. The score was five and four.

NEBRASKA WINS FROM SOONERS

Huskers Have Ten-Point Margin In Cage Game On Norman Court.

BY FAYETTE COPELAND.

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 8—(Special) — Charlie Black's charging Cornhuskers plastered the sixth consecutive conference defeat on the cellar champion Oklahomans Saturday night when the Nebraska entry in the Big Six basketball race triumphed, 47 to 37.

It was a free-scoring scramble, with the Oklahomans hitting their shots for the first time this season and the Nebraskans proving just a little better in every department of the game.

The Huskers started slowly and let Oklahoma pull ahead for five points before a Nebraska shot singed the netting, but the visitors were leading, 24 to 19, at the half and never were headed in the second period.

Huskers Show Power.

The Sooners got a glimpse of the real power combination that represents Nebraska this season when a two-minute scoring spurt wiped out all the lead Oklahoma had piled up and left the home team trailing by three points.

At the start, Don Maclay tipped the ball at will, as he did throughout the evening, but the Oklahomans rushed in to take the ball and, after a scramble in front of the basket Churchill dropped back to the free throw line to slip in a field goal before the game was a minute old.

Lewandowski then fouled Jerome and the shot was good. After a Nebraska miss, Oklahoma smothered the backboard and worked the ball down to let Meyer count a side shot for Oklahoma's fifth point.

Blackmen Get to Going.

Here the Nebraskans quit fooling. Five minutes had gone before Maclay flipped in one of his favorite side-swiping shots. Grace slipped in for a set-up, Hokuf flipped in one from near the free throw line and Fisher got a one-hand shot that was good from under the basket. It happened in about a minute and a half, and Nebraska was leading, 8 to 5. The drive continued with Fisher working a set-up and making good two free throws on Noble's foul.

Oklahoma came back with two

TRIPLE-A LEAGUES TO HOLD POW-WOW

MONTREAL, Feb. 8—(U. P.)—The proposed meeting of committees from the International league, American association and Pacific Coast league, tentatively scheduled for Chicago, June 16, is expected to modernize the present national agreement which expires Sept. 6 next year.

The International league committee is composed of Walter Hapgood of Montreal, chairman, Warren C. Giles of Rochester and George M. Weiss of Baltimore.

"Consideration of the national association agreement and such changes as the class AA leagues believe should be incorporated into the new agreement are by no means the only matters that will be within range of the joint committee for consideration," Hapgood said here.

"A standardization of salaries in all three class AA leagues will be discussed by the joint committee.

"No drastic salary reductions are expected to be recommended," said Hapgood, "but the matter of adjustment and equalization of salaries is sure to be considered."

GIANT ITALIAN IN MOUND CITY

Carnera In St. Louis To Clash Tuesday With Tulsa "Cop."

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 8—(INS)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian prize fighter, who is seeking the world's heavyweight boxing title, arrived in St. Louis this afternoon on the "Spirit of St. Louis," fast train from the east.

Hundreds of Primo's Italian countrymen and boxing fan admirers packed the Union station as the train bearing the big fellow pulled in.

Carnera fights "Buster" Martin, Tulsa policeman, here next Tuesday night.

Piled in Two Beds.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 8—(U. P.)—After demolishing a meal sufficient for an army squad, Primo Carnera, Italy's "man o'war" of the prize ring, piled himself into two beds tonight to recoup sleep lost last night in the narrow spaces of a Pullman berth.

The lower end of a hotel bed was sawed off and another placed crossways so Carnera could stretch out for slumber.

The "beeg boy," who used to earn hefty meals driving nails, was greeted by some 3,000 admirers when he stepped from a train today to start training for his scheduled 10-round bout here Tuesday night with Buster Martin, Tulsa, Okla., policeman.

Crowd Demanded Speech.

Primo, his 268½ pounds and size 17 shoes, proved no match for the crowd and he was forced to mount a platform and make a speech.

A committee representing the Commercial club and Rotary club of Crete is in charge of the pilgrimage, which is expected to include more than 100 citizens of Crete and 35 to 50 high school students.

Committee In Charge.

The Crete committee promoting the trip to the Cornhusker game includes C. M. Anderson, C. H. Velte and C. Wagner of the Crete Commercial club; Dr. A. A. Conrad and Frank Kobes of the Crete Rotary club.

Brass Tacks by Cy Sherman

NOW comes John Bull, ever a stickler for custom, to brush up on American ideas in sport and get wise to the fact that Uncle Sam occasionally has the better, more workable plan. Something quite akin to a revolution has broken loose in rowing circles at Oxford university. The annual boat race with Cambridge is only two months away and the Dark Blue, it seems, is nursing an intense desire to break up the Cantabs' string of six successive triumphs.

Crew racing on the tight little island, particularly at Oxford and Cambridge, where it has a background of a hundred and more years of traditional competition, is conducted on lines that are strictly British. Whatever was done a century ago, must be done today. What their fathers and grandfathers did was perfectly jake to the Oxonians —until that record of six successive reverses, with the fear that Cambridge may make it seven, began to stare them in the mugg, whereupon Oxford decided to rip convention up the back.

THE ripping process, to make myself clear, consisted of attaching a tin can to the team captain's dictatorship—a time-honored institution, but one that had been getting Oxford nowhere in the business of beating Cambridge in the annual regatta.

It was, in fact, a dictatorship so binding as to make Mussolino look like a rank amateur. It installed the team captain as the supreme ruler of the crew. He could pick the crew, name the coaches and even instruct the latter as to how they should train and tutor the squad.

This year's Oxford captain, one Graham, overstepped the bounds of reason when he insisted on handling an oar in the boat, although the coaches and team members knew he was incompetent physically to handle the job. And right there they bucked. Coaches and oarsmen got together, united in demanding that the offensive captain take himself out of the picture. Press dispatches relate that the Graham person, although his dignity and pride were sadly ruffled, passed in his resignation, whereupon the crew tore a leaf from Uncle Sam's experiences in sport by installing a head coach, giving the latter full control.

Oxford, of course, may not get anywhere toward beating Cambridge next April, but at least it has made a start in the direction of a system that eventually may produce substantial results.

THE British idea that the team captain shall be supreme in collegiate sport was copied by Americans during the early years of college football. In fact, it isn't a great while since the team captain was all-powerful at Yale, Harvard, Princeton and other prominent institutions of learning in the Atlantic region.

At every one of the schools in the so-called Big Three, the team captain had full authority in naming the varsity team, while the sole function of the coaches, generally alumni, was to direct the workouts, subject always to the captain's whims.

The late Percy Haughton landed a healthy wallop on the British idea at Harvard. He demanded complete control and Harvard, which bowed to the Haughton will, was rewarded by the development of a succession of teams which had

LINCOLN'S TRIP FEATURES WEEK

Capital City Five Dated Play Pair Cage Games On Omaha Courts.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Lincoln high's invasion of Omaha for a pair of games features the week's program of basketball coming up on the Nebraska high school sport horizon. The Red and Black, undefeated in Nebraska competition this season, will meet Central and Tech in Friday and Saturday night engagements.

The contests have a dual importance. Defeat in either game would seriously endanger the capital city's standing in the Missouri Valley league race, which the Browne lads are fronting at present. A setback in either combat likewise would remove the Lincoln outfit from that small group of teams that have not tasted defeat from teams within the confines of the Cornhusker commonwealth.

Lincoln the Favorite.

Lincoln won over Central and Tech by healthy margins in games at Lincoln earlier in the season and will enter the Omaha games the favorite. Basketball, however, is a game with plenty of upsets and Tech and Central may kick in with one of those dope reversals this week.

Central meets Abraham Lincoln in a mid-week game, while Tech engages South in a Tuesday contest. Each game is of Missouri conference import. North and Missouri Valley meet on the Iowa maples in an inter-state game.

Grand Island and Crete, with fairly good records, move into Omaha for weekend assignments, the Islanders engaging South and

CHOICE HELD UP AT WYOMING U.

Laramie Announcement Deferred Until Monday.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 8—(Special) — Whether John "Chappy" Rhodes will be the next head coach at the University of Wyoming will be known Monday, when the executive committee will announce the decision on the application of the Nebraska baseball and freshman football mentor.

Action was postponed at Laramie Saturday, due to the absence of J. A. Elliott of Wheatland, a member of the executive committee. He was scheduled to arrive in Laramie Saturday evening.

Approval Mere Formality.

If the approval of a coach is made, it will be pending the ratification of the board of trustees at the regular March meeting, but it is thought that the approval of the board will be a mere formality.

Rhodes left Cheyenne Saturday morning to confer with university officials at Laramie and will meet with the executive committee again Saturday night. Announcement of the meeting, however, will not be made until Monday.

Refuse Verify Rumor.

University officials Saturday refused to verify the rumor that Rhodes had been selected as coach, repeating that the announcement, one way or the other, will be official Monday.

Rhodes, after seeing the Cheyenne, Laramie, basketball game here Friday night, was introduced to the players and said that he hoped to see them enrolled in the university next year.

WESLEYAN HIGH RINGS UP NO. 13

Mitten Five Downs David City In Basket Sport By 25-11 Score.

Taking the lead in the first few minutes of play, Wesleyan high school beat David City, 25-11 Saturday night on the Methodist floor. The invaders threatened during the first period, but never were able to hit the hoop consistently enough to bid for victory.

Shirk and Parker put Wesleyan high in the lead with a goal apiece in the first two minutes of play, but the invaders came back to tie the score when Roh and Novacek tallied from the floor. Hoag's free toss placed Mitten's men in the lead as the quarter ended. The second period was slow, two field goals by Hoag being the only points made.

SHARKEY ROUGH ON SPARRING PAL

Australian Ducks Away From Training Camp At Miami.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8—(UP)—Madison Square Garden's all-star international fight card for Feb. 27 encountered a snag today when George Cook, Australian heavyweight, was reported missing from the city.

Cook, the Garden officials announced, checked out of town yesterday, complaining that Jack Sharkey was "treating him too rough."

The Australian was serving as a sparring partner for the Boston heavyweight in the latter's workouts.

Cook was scheduled to meet Raoul Bianci, Argentine heavyweight, who holds the Chilean heavyweight title, in a six-round preliminary to the Sharkey-Phil Scott fight.

Johnny Grosso, Mount Vernon heavyweight, who is Sharkey's chief sparring partner, may be substituted on the card against Bianci in Cook's place, Frank J. Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden, said.

Grapplers True to Form.

EDITORIAL IN COLLIER'S EYE, CHICAGO.

When the time limit for entrance into the heavyweight wrestling elimination tournament proposed by the N. B. A. expired it was not surprising that only two grapplers were entered—John Pesek and Jim Londos. It proves what has been contended over and over again that the majority of the heavyweight wrestling fraternity did not want open-and-above-board and free competition, honestly conducted, with impartial officials. They prefer to bring forth their own hand-picked contestants, make their own secret arrangements and pull the wool over the eyes of ruling bodies and public alike. They have been doing it for years. One could not expect them to change their spots overnight. Members of the National Boxing association now realize that everything said about this mail game is true—in fact, they have discovered that not even half the truth has been told. Pesek and Londos have come clean and we understand some of the lighter fellows are going to do likewise, but those who have been playing hide and seek in the game for many years still are doing it. We trust the N. B. A. will live up to its original declaration and bar every one of the "twisters" and their handlers for the remainder of their natural lives. They don't want to compete on the level. The only way a doctor treats a cancer is to cut it out. The 33 states making up the N. B. A. must perform a similar operation on this mat cancer and if the others do not care to do it, they can continue to allow their citizens to be hornswoggled, if they like. For the ordinary man, the heavyweight wrestlers have shown themselves in their true light—yellow all the way through. Applying a ban is light punishment indeed.

Sarazen Wins His Spurs as One of Golfdom's Greatest

Agua Caliente Victory Earns Gene Rating as Leader In Links Game

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Gene Sarazen hasn't been picking off the major championships these past few years. He's always close up, but the turn of luck hasn't just come his way, and there's a lot of luck in golf—as Bob Jones himself will tell you.

But there isn't a steadier performer than Sarazen in professional golf. It may be noticed that when there's a big stake to win, Gene is right there in the middle of the scrap, and often he "cops." Sarazen has picked up a lot of winner's shares in Florida prize events.

Established Course Record.

When Sarazen snapped up the first prize in the recent Agua Caliente $25,000 tournament, shooting a course-record 68 in the final round to upset Horton Smith and Al Espinosa, who were supposed to be fighting it out between themselves until Sarazen breezed along, he simply assumed his place again among the leading stars of the game. Gene won $10,000 with that fighting finish of his. The biggest purse ever won by a golfer—the biggest single prize ever offered to compete for.

That's Sarazen. Ever since, as a boy, he won the national open at Skokie in 1922, nosing in a stroke ahead of Bobby Jones and John Black, he has been a good game fighter when there's anything to fight for. Horton Smith may have won more prize money in tournament competition, but Horton Smith travels around and plays around a lot more than Sarazen does.

Likes the Game.

It's doubtful that any other golfer makes more money out of golf than Gene Sarazen makes. Years ago Gene decided that he wanted to establish himself in golf in a lasting way. Instead of depending upon traveling and playing in tournaments, he learned the club professional's trade, perfected his knowledge of every angle in it, and developed himself as a working club professional until he has been making more out of that end of the game than he could have made as a competing golfer.

Incidentally, of course, he has gone into the big tournaments now and then, when it didn't interfere with business, and he has done very well. And he hasn't been playing too much, enduring too much of the wearing strain of competition. Sarazen will outlast most of them. He has a level head and no bad habits, and he's industrious.

That Pleasing Grin.

Aside from his liking for golf as a profession he likes the game as a sport. I suppose most of the professionals enjoy golf as a sport as much as any amateur enjoys it. Playing for money doesn't cut all the sport out of as clean a game as golf. Sarazen certainly enjoys it. He never looks grim or sour in a golf match. He grins pleasantly and enjoys the competition, whether he is in the winning bracket or not.

I think Gene Sarazen is as fine a specimen of the sport professional as I've ever met, in any sport. Nice fellow to play around with. Full of fun and always interested in everything. He isn't blaze.

Popular With Duffers.

He never thinks he's wasting his time playing with a duffer. He is full of jokes and funny stories. And he's the keenest psychologist in golf, when it comes to the big matches.

No baseball pitcher has his batting rivals sized up more carefully than Sarazen has his rivals on the fairway. There is a story that illustrates this.

When Sarazen first popped into popularity by winning the national open he was said to be the "cockiest" little champion that ever waved a midiron. But he wasn't "cockey." He was just young, good humored, and filled with unlimited confidence because he knew what he would do, and how to do it. And he knew the other fellow, too, which instead of scaring him only added to his confidence.

For instance, shortly after winning the national open, Gene was approached with offers of individual matches ,the winner to get a winner's share of the money.

"All right," said Sarazen. "I'll start with Long Jim Barnes and Walter Hagen."

It was fixed up that way.

Immediately Gene's friends rushed to advise him. "Don't be foolish," they said. "You can get the money playing easy marks. Why risk losing your new reputation by playing the toughest opponents you can pick out.

"That's all right," said Gene. "I'll beat them. They aren't so tough."

Gene's friends wen away shaking their heads.

Had Barnes' Number.

But when Sarazen started with Jim Barnes he had Bares "psychologized." He knew that Barnes was inclined to be sour and silent, and that he hated a talkative game of golf. He also knew, of course, that a two-time winner of national open championships, American and British, was no easy rival, and that he'd have to play his best and take advantage of any breaks of luck in his favor.

So when he started with Barnes he didn't say a word. Barnes expected the chipper little Italian American to be very conversational, and was just waiting to burn Sarazen up with some dour remark. Hole after hole—six or seven holes — Sarazen walked swaggeringly, cracked his shots out with exaggerated, apparent careless, confidence, and grinned and grinned.

At last it was too much for Barnes. Walking from green to tee he turned his head to Sarazen and remarked: "You grin like a -Cheshire cat."

"It makes me grin to think of what easy money I'm winning," said Sarazen, laughing. And walked along without another word.

Probably that had nothing to do with Barnes cracking, because he was an experienced champion and not easily "kidded." But Sarazen's confidence must have shaken him, for shortly after that he "blew" a drive for the first time.

Gene always thought, after those matches, that he "had Barnes' and Hagen's numbers." But of course he didn't always beat the veteran Walter. Today, however, he is well ahead of the veterans, and even showing the best of the youngsters the way every now and then when there's a big prize in sight.

ROBSON CAGERS WIN WITH EASE

College View Hi Peels Off Decisive Victory Over Neb. City.

The College View basket tossers romped over Nebraska City, 61-10, on the College View court Saturday night. The Robson outfit was hitting on all cylinders from the opening whistle and the outcome was never in doubt. The late arrival of two regulars weakened the Nebraska City team.

Captain Morley was high point man for College View with 17 points. He was closely followed by his team mate, Bauman, who rolled up 16 points. Captain Stuart of Nebraska City was the only one of his team to enter the scoring column, his three baskets and four free throws making his team's 10 points.

This marks College View's ninth victory in as many starts. The Robson team will face Tobias on the College View floor Wednesday night. Walton will battle the College View reserves as a preliminary to this game. The College View reserves were defeated last night by the Bethany seconds, 12-7. The score:

The Lincoln Telephone quintet came through with another win Saturday night when they beat out the Omaha Bells, 22 to 20, on the Y. M. C. A. court. The first half was all for Lincoln with every man on the team bombarding the hoop. The battle was hard fought and the fouls were many. The Lincoln five led 17 to 7 at the half but the Omaha Bells came back strong in the last period to tie the score in the last minute of play. Dobson, forward on the Lincoln five, slipped a neat side shot in at the gong to give his team the two point advantage. Score:

Sailor Sharkey Raking In Rich Harvest From His Ring Activities.

BOSTON, Feb. 8—(INS)—Another millionaire prizefighter is in the making.

Jack Sharkey, heavyweight pugilist, and considered by many boxing commissions as the world's heavyweight champion, is well on his way to becoming sole owner of 1,000,000 United States one dollar certificates.

He has already acquired one-half of it, promised one-quarter of it, and the future easily holds the other quarter.

"Six years ago," said Manager Johnny Buckley, "Jack Sharkey started boxing as a preliminary boy in Boston. He got $150 a bout in those days and was glad to get it."

His Fattest Purse.

Looking back on his last three bouts and the purses they brought in the Boston heavyweight has accumulated plenty to fill the family coffers. For the Dempsey tussle he received $211,000, and the boy was sent right on his way with a running start. At the first big time bout ever held in Miami, Fla., Sharkey was paid $100,000 for licking Stribling, and for knocking out Tommy Loughran in New York he was handed a duplicate check of that received in Miami. Fighting on a percentage basis at Miami again on the night of Feb. 27, with Phil Scott, the least he will get will be $150,000.

Schmeling Looms Ahead.

Looming up ahead of him, unless Phil Scott does something unexpected, Sharkey has a purse around $250,000 in the way of Max Schmeling whom he is to meet in an open air show in New York next June. If he weathers the Schmeling mill, the remainder of the million might just as well be drawing interest.

Sharkey's biggest purse was $211,000, his share in the Dempsey fight. However, Damon Runyan has recently offered to guarantee the Boston heavyweight $212,000 to meet Schmeling for the Milk Fund.

Decides Take Per Cent.

But, according to the attorney for the fighting corporation, manager Buckley has decided to accept a percentage privilege of the gate receipts and which would bring Sharkey's share of the spoils well above $250,000.

"However," said Buckley, "For every boxer who gets a purse of $100,000, there are 10,000 kids who never get as much as $1,000 for a ring contest. It ain't all peaches and cream in the fight game."

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN
by "Columbus"

THE contrast found in amount of purses offered in the state of California with what Nebraska has to offer for 1930, or did offer during 1929, is so startling that it should be given through study by every reader of The Star interested in breeding, development and racing of harness horses in this state. Racing in California was at a very low standard from 1915 to 1922, when total amount of purses offered by fairs and race meetings was less than $25,000.

During the winter of 1922-'23, the Western Fair association was organized and brought out a program of harness races amounting to $35,000, which has been increased each season since until during 1929 the total value of purses raced for in California was $110,000. In connection with increased amounts offered, entry fees were reduced from five to three per cent.

THE stable of D. L. McDonald, Mitchell, Neb., raced at California meetings in 1929, earned $6,000, of which amount Teddy Jr. won $3,130 and reduced his previous record of 2:07¼ pacing to 2:05 over the mile track at Sacramento.

The season's record for pacers over a half-mile track in California during 1929 was 2:06½, established at Pomona by Col. Pointer and duplicated the following week at Riverside by Teddy Jr., the latter performance showing the Nebraska gelding to be even better than at any time in his racing career.

Colorado horses were successful last year at Phoenix, Ariz., where Guy Aubrey, owned by W. O. Reynolds, Denver, won the 2:10 trot and reduced his record to 2:05¼. Chancellor Cigar, owned by the Vail Hotel stables, Pueblo, won the free-for-all pace and reduced his record to 2:02¼. Stately Direct, owned by K. McDermid, Colorado Springs, won the 2:20 pace and Lou Watson, owned by H. L. Hersperger, Pueblo, won the 2:15 trot.

Previously, the Reynolds' stable raced successfully at meetings held in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah.

THE sole feature associated with racing in California at future meetings to attract attention at this date is the Futurity, opened at Pomona for foals of 1929, to be raced over the half-mile track there in 1931, when foals are two-year-olds, and another division for three-year-olds to be raced in 1932.

That stake, guaranteed at $5,000, closed recently with 91 nominations, two of that number made by J. M. Woita, Weston, Neb., owner of Lee J., 3, 2:10¼, racing so well last season for Warren Dennis of David City.

O. H. Sholes, Holyoke, Colo., named three colts and fillies, and, as he resides so near the Nebraska line, might as well be included with the nominations of Mr. Woita.

The Nebraska-bred stallions Maxey Bingen, Patrick Silk and Worthy McKlyo are represented in the stake named, the first with a filly, the second by a colt and a filly, and the last named by a filly.

ED MILLER of Topeka, Kan., a successful breeder, trainer and race driver, lived at DeWitt, Neb., during the years John Gilbert, deceased, was breeding light harness horses. So far as we are able to learn, Mr. Gilbert was not only the first breeder at DeWitt to attract attention, but was the most successful.

A trio of trotting-bred yearlings, purchased in Kentucky by Mr. Gilbert, enabled that breeder to establish a line that continued producing favorable results until the day of his death in 1928 at Red Cloud, Neb.

From the Gilbert foundation stock came a number of high class race-horses, notably Budweiser, p., 2:07¼ and Jessie M., p., 2:12¼, and a score or more of others possibly not so well known, but good performers.

From DeWitt, Mr. Miller moved to Belleville, Kan., where he continued breeding and training until a few years ago, when he was compelled to locate at Topeka owing to lack of training facilities at Belleville.

DURING his residence at Belleville, Ed Miller became associated with Frank Smith of Nelson, Neb., in breeding and racing, that business relation continuing until the death of Mr. Smith in California last summer.

During the twenty years that Messrs. Smith & Miller were jointly interested, those gentlemen bred a number of very good race horses and, in addition, purchased and raced many others, among the latter Golden Belle, p., 2:08; Hal Patch, p., 2:09¼; Eunice Frisco, 2:11¼; Starleen, 2:12¼; Sandy M., p., 2:14¼, and many others with records of 2:20 or better.

Frank Smith, while living at Nelson, Neb., served as superintendent of speed, or racing secretary as sometimes termed, a number of years and during that time made many warm friends.

WRITING of Mr. Smith brings to mind William Arnold, a veteran breeder and race driver dying in recent years whose first association with the trotter came under our observation while he was living near Nelson.

Mr. Arnold bred that handsome and fast trotting mare Red June, 2:13¾, by Redwald selling her to Tom Stark, Colorado Springs, Colo., at the Davenport, Ia., race meeting of 1900. Later, Mr. Stark used Red June as a brood mare, securing from her a number of choice foals, several gaining fast records.

The Year Books never gave Mr. Arnold credit for breeding Red June, but the writer was familiar with all the details of the mating that produced the fine trotting mare mentioned. We learned at the time that Mr. Arnold drove a team, hooked to a farm wagon, from Nelson to Red Oak, Ia., leading the dam of Red June behind the wagon.

MORRIS JONES, owner of Redwald at the time, and Mr. Arnold had some trouble regarding pasture bill and stallion service fee and for that reason Mr. Jones would never furnish Arnold with a stallion certificate, something essential when an application is made for registration.

The writer had letters from both parties to that controversy and he made several efforts to have Red June credited to William Arnold, but through the obstinacy of both men never succeeded.

SUCH instances are not uncommon and only recently the writer had two such examples of obstinacy upon the part of stallion and brood mare owners, neither of them disposed of and not likely to be.

MR. ARNOLD later purchased and developed a pacing stallion named Carlos Patch, by Dan Patch, p., 1:55¼, dam by Roy Wilkes, p., 2:06½, and at Geneva, Neb., during the fair and race meeting of 1918, gave the horse a record of 2:11¼, but was thrown from his bike sulky later in the race, fracturing an ankle.

Carlos Patch raced well for Mr. Arnold and was later sold to a Pennsylvania owner, who continued racing the stallion at the pace one or two seasons, then converting him to the trot, at which gait he gained a record of 2:15¼.

The record of 2:11¼ given Carlos Patch at Geneva still remains that stallion's best performance at the pace.

If ever afforded suitable opportunities, Carlos Patch should prove a good sire of speed, as he was bred to become a sire as well as a successful race horse. His pacing record should be much faster than 2:10 and certainly would have been had the horse been managed differently.

WHENEVER we write of Nelson there comes to mind the persistent efforts put forth by the fair association in that Nuckolls county-seat town to continue harness racing. For a number of years Nelson, Neb., and Norton, Kan., were the only towns that far west in either state to offer programs for trotters and pacers.

We are referring to the years following loss of crops in the sections mentioned, when other county fair associations decided it would not be best to continue their programs of racing. Notwithstanding all the hardships resulting from loss of crops, Nelson and Norton never neglected the trotter, pacer and runner, and that continued many years.

Only recently Norton was compelled to abandon its racing program and that fact was due to lack of patronage by owners and trainers.

There were good reasons for neglecting Norton in more recent years, as the association there insisted upon holding their fair same week as Aurora. Owners racing through the Nebraska Short Ship circuit would not leave that series of meetings and make a long ship to another meeting having no affiliation with subsequent meetings.

FOR many years racing was on the program at Norton and Nebraska owners shipped their stables to that wide-awake town, located on a branch of the Burlington, as well as on the main line of the Rock Island, and after racing at Norton could return to Nelson, Hubbell, thence to Belleville and Concordia, Kansas.

That seemed a favorite route 20 to 25 years ago, but in later years Norton failed to consider the dates of other meetings, with the result that owners refused to ship their stables to that town. Since 1920, Norton has declined rapidly as a racing, or even a training center. In previous years, it was the home of many enthusiastic horsemen and spring training was an activity not equaled at any place in that section of Kansas, or in localities in adjacent territory.

In more recent years, McCook, Beaver City, Benkleman and Imperial held meetings that materially assisted Norton, as they furnished opportunities to continue racing without extensive shipments, but even those towns have lost interest in the trotter and pacer.

AT present, racing is not encouraged by men managing fairs in the Republican valley territory of Nebraska and that goes for the portion of the valley located in Kansas, as northwest Kansas is drained by streams leading to the Republican river. Conditions in that territory are so different from those of earlier years that the contrast is painful to one conversant with the past history in southwest Nebraska and northwest Kansas.

The writer readily calls to mind the names of numerous trotters and pacers owned by men living in the Republican valley, many of them fast and consistent race horses. In addition we remember other men not classed as owners, but greatly interested in harness racing. Only the memory of those stirring and enthusiastic years and men are with us today.

There are other men, readers of The Star, that recall the years when the trotting-bred horse was a popular idol from Superior, on the east, to Haigler, on the west, and that included all of the Republican valley situated in Nebraska.

At Superior was owned the high-class pacing mare Ophelia, 2:11¼, which was good enough to win all along the line from Denver, Colo., to Cleveland, Ohio. Rattler Wilkes, 2:28½, a sire of speed, was owned at Superior during all his stud career, while Thaddeus K., 2:15¼, was bred near that city.

NELSON belongs to the Republican valley and until recent years interest in breeding and racing was keen in that county-seat town. We have mentioned William Arnold in connection with Nelson, and might add the names of Moore and Smith, two of the latter, if you please, all staunch supporters of the trotter and pacer.

At Red Cloud, racing was in vogue years ago and interest in the light harness-horse has never declined in that town, several residents owning and having raced for them both trotters and pacers.

The fastest record bearing stallion ever owned in Nebraska—Ess H. Kay, p., 2:00¾—was owned in Red Cloud by Lee Walker until two years ago. At Oxford, Gamecock, p., 2:08¼ and Galtama, p., 2:14¼, were owned by a party anxious to race them at every opportunity, and at present the speed siring stallion Peter Watson, by Peter The Great, is owned in that village.

McCook claimed Carter G., p., 2:07¼, when that fast stallion was racing successfully, and the modest village of Wilcox was the home of Tony W., 2:11¼. At Arapahoe was owned Reynolds Wright, p., 2:12¼, to indicate the extent to which the trotting-bred horse was exalted in the Republican valley of Nebraska.

Earl Collard, Philly pitching recruit, won 10 games and lost two with Shreveport. He was drafted.

Joe Sewell went through two seasons with Cleveland fanning only four times each year.

Purdue Phenom.

Johnny Wooden, sensational sophomore guard, registered seven baskets against Ohio State Feb. 3 while his Purdue team was winning by a 60 to 14 margin. He is one of he best players to come up in the western conference for some time.

Ring Racket Tends to Wreck Its Most Active Exponents

Deaths In Fist Sport Few, But Whirlers of Gloves Often "Goofy"

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—Within a week there were three fatalities as the result of ring duels—two in Michigan and one in Colorado.

This may serve as fuel for reformers to get them all steamed up again in opposition to fisticuffing as a form of cash-gathering combat. However, it won't get them far.

Forty years of more or less intensive glove duelling has proved that boxing, although a brutal sport and devastating, if prolonged through the years, really causes very few deaths if the battler is trained and fairly skillful and is not a victim of some malady at the time he goes into action.

Danger In Other Sports.

Comparison with other sports of a violent kind—like football, hockey, wrestling and polo—shows that in ratio to numbers involved boxing results in fewer deaths. That seems due to the fact that the worst that can happen to a boxer is to be clipped on the chin or cracked in the body with a glove encased fist, whereas in football a dozen men can flop onto a prostrate warrior, a wrestler can crack a spine, or a horse step upon a fallen polo contestant.

Boxing isn't basically a deadly sport. But it may wreck through excessive wear and tear.

More and More Punishment.

To earn money, a boy must fight. The oftener he fights, the more he earns. But the oftener he goes into fistic warfare ,the greater is the total punishment he must take. He may emerge with victory and showing no visible marks. But the marks are there just the same.

These body batterings—they especially hurt in later years as do many of the hard blows which land in the region of the heart. That powerful organ is encased in a stout ribbed frame, sufficient to protect it from the ordinary jolts of life. But even the best set of ribs in the world are not real shock protection for a heart when fists are frequently driven against the frame with terrific force.

Finally Becomes "Goofy."

More punches thrown for the head land low on or around the ear than anywhere else. The mastoid region is constantly battered during a fistic orgy. Other parts of the head, filled with little veins, and arteries and nerves, also are beaten—and beaten—by blows.

Those parts of the human anatomy aren't geared to stand much. It wasn't intended by nature that they were to be struck thousands of times by fists. After a while, they are ruptured or crushed, circulation of blood within the head becomes irregular, the brain is not properly fed and then "fogginess" is the result. In the parlance of the ring racket, the veteran fighter often is a "goof."

Ring Fatalities Rare.

Deaths from a single ring beating are rarities. They seem to happen in clusters, but not often enough to give reformers the chance to shriek "stop it." But pugilism reaps each year a frightful harvest in broken minds, due to battling years and, if the reformers ever want to wage a new attack against the game, the method to pursue is to pore over the lists of inmates in insane asylums.

Cushion Tourney Next At Walrus

An amateur tournament for the three-cushion championship of Lincoln is on the books for this week at the Walrus Parlors. Ten capital city amateurs are lined up to compete for the title, the entry list including P. Mills, L. Davey, F. Jirovsky, J. Storm, G. Gustavson, C. Youngren, C. Koontz, C. Knight, B. Fischer and R. Bennett. Pairings will be drawn Monday morning and play will get under way in the afternoon. Five matches will be played daily, each at 25 points.

The class A tournament in progress at the Walrus the past two weeks is scheduled to close Monday night. Lefty Wilman still is leading with 10 victories and two defeats, while Paul Mills ranks second with seven wins and two reverses.

The class B tournament had its finish Friday, with Sullivan winning first prize, his tourney record listing 16 wins and three defeats. O'Neil, Jones and Stinchcomb finished in a tie for second, while Wheeler and Sundeen tied for fifth and sixth. The high run prize went to Wilber Hummel.

long field goals and two free throws to cut the lead to one point, but Hokuf, Grace, Fisher and Maclay kept the ball flipping in consistently and Nebraska was five points in the lead at the intermission.

Grace got a long shot to start the last half, but Oklahoma again whittled the lead to one point when Roberts tipped in a miss and Churchill added four points.

Harvey Grace Injured.

Roberts at this point missed a chance to tie the score when he failed to hit the backboard after Maclay's foul. In a mad scramble under the Nebraska goal, Harvey Grace fell with an injured ankle and Coach Black made his only substitution of the evening, sending in Dutch Witte. Maclay and Fisher scored again, but Oklahoma repeated with two shots to pull within a point when Nebraska called time out.

The Oklahomans cooled off in the interval, for although Roberts immediately scored for the Sooners, the punch was gone and from then on it was merely a matter of figuring Nebraska's margin.

Huskers Hot In Finish.

Fisher tipped in a rebound shot, Witte scored, Hokuf sent a free throw on Grady's error, Witte and Maclay worked in for set-ups and Maclay sank a free shot to increase the margin a dozen points before Oklahoma scored again.

In the last five minutes, Coach Hugh McDermott substituted freely in order to get back the scoring punch, but Nebraska was sailing along with a 10-point margin when the game ended. The score:

POLO FINALS ON WESTERN COAST

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 8—(U. P.)—The crack Argentine polo team and that of the Midwick Country club, fashionable Beverly Hills society gathering place, will meet Sunday in the finals of the Pacific coast polo championships.

The South American team, composed of four straight shooting riders, is one of the best of the season seen on the Pacific coast. Approximately 15,000 persons will attend the final game little serious opposition in the eastern circuit.

Yale followed suit by conferring similar authority on Tad Jones, while Princeton gave the reins to Bill Roper, with the result that the Bulldog and the Tiger again were on even footing with John Harvard.

FOOTBALL in the other regions of the U. S. A. never has wasted any time on the vacuous notion that the team captain should be a czar.

The head coach at most schools has had complete authority to select his corps of assistants and to nominate the personnel of his teams.

This system of concentrated control undoubtedly has played an important part in the present popularity of the gridiron game. It has elevated coaching by making it almost a necessity that the coach, to retain his place in the profession, shall be a man of fine character and natural leader of men. In addition, it has made it possible to reward a coach of that type with a salary in keeping with the responsibilities and demands of his position.

The unknowing critics of football occasionally wail that the coach is influenced by his personal likes and dislikes in the selection of his teams and that "fraternity politics" often enters into his nominations. The latter charge, I am sure, has no suggestion of foundation in fact. Most assuredly, fraternityism never never has factored in the choice of University of Nebraska teams.

During the period of near 40 years that I have been permitted to observe the methods of gridiron coaches at the Cornhusker institution, I can assert, without fear of contradiction, that Nebraska never has had a head coach who gave even the slightest attention to the fraternity angle in coaching his squad or selecting his teams.

K. U. and Missouri, it appears from the press reports, have had another falling out. As a result, the annual indoor track meet of Jayhawks vs. Tigers in Kansas City, scheduled for this week-end, has been cancelled.

Kansas held out for a Friday night meet, basing its contention on the ground that Friday was the day originally selected, while Missouri represented that faculty opposition to a Friday meet had developed at Columbia, the instructors holding that studentship comes first, hence Missouri's insistence on a Saturday date.

The explanation at both Lawrence and Columbia that the cancellation has not been attended by ill feeling between the athletic departments of the two institutions must be gulped with at least a grain or two of salt. As a matter of fact, Missouri-Kansas relations of recent years have been quite as amicable as that time honored friendship between Towser and the alley tom cat.

Kansas, it seems, first gave offense by changing the date of the traditional football game between the two schools. The Jayhawker authorities arbitrarily demanded that the annual combat be staged the Saturday prior to Turkey day. Missouri had no option and, reluctant to offend or disappoint its alumni by abandoning a 30-year rivalry, was forced to swallow the pill.

PERHAPS there are other factors in the gradual drift toward permanent hostility in the two camps. Missouri, for instance, is wise to the fact that the K. U. athletic authorities secretly connived to smash the new Big Six conference before that organization fairly got under way.

Kansas, as authentic information comes to me, was ireful because it did not rank high up on the list of schools first receiving invitations to join the Big Six circle and, in a spirit of revenge, schemed to smash the conference.

The Kansas plan was to revive the old Missouri Valley conference of 10 schools, but to make the reorganization a Big Nine by dropping Nebraska from the list. Nebraska, as most everybody knows, was one of the prime movers in the creation of the Big Six and, because of K. U.'s pevye, was to be booted out via the transom. The plot, though cunningly conceived, failed when the Jayhawkers could not muster so much as a corporal's guard in the way of support.

Missouri, always a staunch advocate of the Big Six idea, has resented K. U. tactics that were little short of treachery. The disavowal of ill feeling over the track meet imbroglio—the effort to depict Tiger and Jayhawk as cronies in collegiate sport—belongs, I suspect, in the category of merry jests.

The game ended with Wesleyan high leading, 25-11, the thirteen consecutive victory for the Mitten team.

Hoag High In Points

Captain Art Hoag led the Wesleyan attack as usual and scored four times from the floor and once from the foul line to carry off high scoring honors with nine points. Parker and Shirk played well, the former gathering six points. Roh was the best David City had to offer with six points. Huffman, Wesleyan guard, who has been troubled with a bad knee, returned to the lineup for the first time in three weeks. The score:

Mayor Jimmy Walker. Primo made a hit with the feminine element.

One flapper planted a kiss firm on his lips by a quick leap, while the "beeg boy" grinned and drew his huge hulk into a ball so as to negotiate the door of a taxicab.

Cramped in Pullman.

After spending most of last night cramped in a Pullman berth Carnera, eyed the two beds with much glee.

His trainers said it took two "of these American beds" for their man—and that a Pullman berth was about large enough for half of him. The other half, they said "dropped from the sides."

Three hours after arriving Leon See, Primo's manager, had the big Italian hard at it in a gymnasium.

Crete playing Creighton Prep. Grand Island has had its good and bad moments this season, while Crete has been developing fast. The Saline county five was plenty good against Lincoln a week ago, forcing the capital city to come from behind to win in the last few minutes of play.

Wesleyan Hi and Jackson.

The Wesleyan high-Jackson return game on the University Place court is the big noise in the Greater Lincoln league. Wesleyan high won the early season setto and Jackson is out for revenge. Fairbury also plays at Jackson, while Havelock entertains Wymore and Teachers college high.

Mid-State league standings are due for a shakeup with Beatrice on the road to meet Fremont and Norfolk, Hastings appearing at Kearney and Norfolk at Columbus. The Hastings-Kearney game appears to carry to most interest. These two teams are apparently set to be leaders in the race for the state title when tournament-time rolls around.

Lexington vs. Gothenburg.

The Lexington-Gothenburg vendetta will be on when the two teams meet at Gothenburg. Curtis at North Platte is the other Southwest league game on the books.

The Carebridge-Beaver City game will carry Furnas county honors, with the latter perhaps having the edge. McCook plays Alma and Indianola, while Benkelman tackles the Imperial team on Chase county soil.

Coach Shuman's crack Venango five should have little trouble with Paxton, while Lodgepole is favored over Big Springs, as is Chappell to beat Oshkosh.

In the northwest league, the Cody-Chadron game tops the list. Coach R. R. Noyes' cagers must defend their leadership against the Cowboys.

Scottsbluff and Mitchell.

Scottsbluff, with the best record in the western conference, mixes with Mitchell. Chappell and Alliance appear at Sidney, while the Box Butte county five also stops at Kimball and Bayard.

Coach Bob Weir's Fullerton five, pace-maker in the Little Ten Alliance, has Spalding and Central City on this week's schedule. Genoa is host to Clarks and St. Edward.

The Creston "Giant-killers" will have their hands full at Pierce. Lynch at O'Neill, Battle Creek at Oakdale, Wayne at South Sioux City, Butte at Spencer at Bancroft at Rosalie are other headliners, along with the two Norfolk games.

Nebraska City Faces Test.

Nebraska City, the southeast Nebraska league leader, must win at Plattsmouth and turn back Peru Prep to keep its conference slate clean. Dawson high, the top performer in the Little Ten association of Richardson county, tackles Falls City, the county seat.

Harvard at Clay Center, Harvard at Hebron and Clay Center at Sutton is the Southern conference slate. Geneva moves outside the conference circle to play at Holdrege. Edgar is at home to the fast Ruskin team.

Wilber and Crete will argue Saline county laurels on the latter's court. Aurora plays at Seward. Games this week:

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8

The curb market moved irregularly higher in today's two-hour session, after early attempts to depress the list had failed to bring further selling, and a selected number of trading favorites closed with good-sized gains, with the best levels reached in the final moments of trading.

Electric Bond & Share rallied smartly after a weak opening and closed at 96¼, for a net gain of 1¼ points. Other features in the utility group to rebound substantially at the expense of an over-extended short interest included Allied Power & Light up 1⅝ at 49; American & Foreign Power warrants up ⅝ at 70⅝; American Superpower up ⅝ at 29¼; Commonwealth Edison up 14 at 279; Duke Power up 6 at 194; Middle West utilities up 1⅞ at 33¼; and United Light & Power up ⅝ at 38¼.

Cities Service reacted slightly to profit-taking, although a firm finish enabled it to hold its loss down to ¼ at 31⅞.

The buoyant rail market on the big board brought heavy buying into Pennroad which reached new highs for the year at 16½, and showed a net gain of ⅞ at its close of 16¼. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie R. R. was a brisk performer, recording a gain of 5⅝ at 118.

Investment Trusts continued to head upwards with advances in this list being attained by Blue Ridge up ¼ at 9½; Goldman Sachs up ⅝ at 40; Insull Utility Investors up 2¾ at 69, Lehman up ⅜ at 86 and Marine Midland up 1⅝ at 39¾.

Oils were reactionary with practically all of the active issues closing lower.

Conflicting opinions of opposing speculative forces responsible for confusing price movements of the main body of stocks in early activity on the curb market today. The greater part of the trading was confined to the professional ranks as the reactionary tendencies of the past two sessions had instilled an attitude of caution into the outside public which was apparently assuming a watchful guardedness until a clearer evidence of the trend of prices could be ascertained.

Opening prices were irregularly lower, but immediately thereafter constructive forces rallied to the support of their favorites and many leading issues recorded substantial recoveries. Among the utilities Electric Bond and Share moved up briskly from an opening of 94⅜ to 95⅝, for a net advance of 1 point before again meeting offerings. The general rank and file of utility shares were mixed with slight advances noted in Allied Power & Light up ⅛ at 48⅛, American Superpower up ⅛ at 29⅛, American and Foreign Power warrants up ⅛ at 70⅛, Commonwealth Edison up ⅛ at 285½, Middle West Utilities up ⅛ at 31¾, Niagara Hudson Power up ⅛ at 15, Standard Power and Light B up 1 at 72, and United Light and Power up ⅛ at 38. Fractional declines were recorded in Associated Gas and Electric Power down ⅛ at 46⅝, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore down ⅛ at 163¾, and United Gas down ⅛ at 19⅝.

Cities Service ruled reactionary this morning, and dipped ⅜ to 31⅛, under heavy profit taking.

Pennroad was in heavy demand in the Investment Trust group reaching a new high for the year at 16, up ⅝ for its previous close. Railway and light securities were another feature in this list advancing 3½ points to 75½. Other investment shares to move up included Goldman Sachs up ¼ at 39½, Insull Utility up ⅛ at 67⅛, Lehman up ⅜ at 85⅝, National Investors up ⅜ at 17⅞, and Shenandoah up ¼ at 10⅛.

Oils were lower with Gulf off ¼ at 135, Indian Territory down 1 at 34⅝, and Vacuum off ⅛ at 93⅜. Standard of Indiana ruled unchanged at

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8

Grains closed steady to a shade higher today. Wheat was unchanged to ¼c up, and corn ⅛ to ⅜c higher. Oats finished unchanged to ⅛c up.

Wheat started ⅝ to 1c lower with general selling on weak cables. Reports that an appeal from the western Canadian wheat pool for aid from the dominion government which appears surprising in view of an announcement by western provincial governments that they would protect bank loans, also caused selling. Around $1.26 for May fair support developed and the market recovered some of its loss. Steadiness at Minneapolis also influenced some buying here.

Liverpool closed ⅝ to 1¼ d down and Winnipeg ruled ⅝ to 1¼c off. The weather map showed generally fair conditions over the grain belt.

Corn trade was of moderate volume and mainly influenced by action in wheat. Weather conditions over the belt were favorable for movement to market. Oats were steady.

Estimated carlot receipts were: Wheat 12, corn 134 and oats 30.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

By International News Service.

The railroad stocks were the leaders in a moderate upturn of prices in the week-en dmarket. After absorbing profit taking in the leading industrials, the market was ready for a slight rally, in which the tobacco stocks and the amusement shares, with a few of the utilities ,were the outstanding leaders. Oils weakened at the start but the favorite stocks in this group also stiffened as the session drew to a close.

Pennsylvania's new 4½-point jump to 84¾ was a faeture of the rail list. Chesapake & Ohio sold up 3 points at 235; New York Central up, about 2½; Boston & Maine up 9¼ points at 112; Atchison up 3¼ and Western Maryland up 2. Warner Bros. sold above 60 in active trading and Fox breezed along to above 36. American Can dominated the popular industrials in the late trading with a 4-point jump to 138¾ but the tobacco stocks made their best records in the first hour, when American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers and R. J. Reynolds moved up sharply. Radio crossed 40 near the close.

Outside of the purely professional ranks there was little enthusiasm in speculative circles. The week-end business reports were generally favorable and commodity markets steady.

The closing spurt in industrials carried prices to the best levels of the day and closing prices showed slight advances as compared with Friday's final ranges.

United States Steel at 182½, was up ⅝ for the day. Radio close dat 40, up 1⅝; Canadian Pacific at 224⅝, up 5; Erie at 62⅝, up 1⅝; Atchison at 240¼, up 2½; Union Pacific gained 8½ at 226½; New York Central 2½ at 186½; Boston & Maine 9½ at 112.

Warner Brothers Pictures closed at 60⅝, up 2¾; Gillette up 1⅝ at 97; Stone & Webster up 5⅛ at 101¼; American & Foreign Power up ⅞ at 84⅝; Johns Manville up 1⅜ at 143.

Transactions on the big board today totaled 1,657,000 shares.

Strength and activity of the railroad and tobacco stocks, weakness in the oils and an irregular and narrow price movement in the industrials and specialties, were the outstanding features of the week-end market.

The sharp advances which have taken place since the middle of January in the speculative favorites, have induced considerable caution on the part of outside traders. Belief that the professionals were "unloading" has been indorsed by a large section of speculative Wall street and this has not helped the bulls' campaign.

Railroad stocks continued to give a good account of themselves. Chesapeake & Ohio moved up about 3 points to 231; Delaware & Lackawanna gained 4 points at 150½; Erie 1½ at 62; Boston & Maine up 7½ at 110; Delaware & Hudson up 2; Pennsylvania up 1½; New York Central up 1.

American Tobacco, Lortillard, R. J. Reynolds and other well known important tobacco stocks pushed ahead about 2 points on the average reported improvement in the tobacco and particularly the cigaret trade. Tobacco company officials denied that they were considering the prospect of an increase in cigaret prices.

Oil stocks sold off in heavy volume at the start, but rallied in the second hour on announcement that the house committee on ways and means was holding a hearing on the proposed dollar-a-barrel tariff on imported crude oil.

Stone & Webster continued its spectacular upward movement, crossing par for a new 6½-point rise to 101¾. Warner Brothers, Fox and other amusement stocks also resumed the advance which has been progressing for a week or more, Fox rising to 36¾ and Warner up nearly 2 points at 60. Stocks of the food companies, including Standard Brands and Gold Dust, also made a bid for recognition in their active turnover at slightly advancing prices. Commonwealth & Southern was the most active of the low-priced utilities and rose fractionally to 17¼.

The week-end commodity markets were fairly steady, with cotton up about a dollar a bale, wheat fractionally lower and local commodities in narrow price swings.

Prices in all sections of the stock market moved downward at the opening today, in continuation of Friday's closing reaction. The oils were under pressure. Standard of New Jersey dropping 4¼ to 62 for a block of 5,000 shares; Standard of California was at the year's lowest price of 59¼, down ¼, and Atlantic refining and Sinclair fractionally lower.

Westinghouse, at the head of high-priced specialties, dropped 3½ to 161½; U. S. Steel was down ⅝ art 181¾; Gillette down ⅞ at 94¾, and International Tel. & Tel. down ½ at 64⅝.

Rails were firm with Canadian Pacific up ⅞ at 226½; Erie up 1⅝ at 62; New York Central up ¾ at 184¾, and Western Maryland up ⅝ at 27⅞.

COTTON—The cotton market, after giving way nearly $3 a bale under yesterday's downpour of selling orders during which some 600,000 bales are said to have changed hands, strengthened in the early trading this morning. During the first hour, however, it appeared that the long expected rally was beginning, for March advanced to 15.30c, up 9 points, May to 15.54c, up 17, and July came back over $1 a bale to sell at 15.75c. The more distant months were steady at 16.05c for October, and 16.10c for January.

The market went into the final half-hour this morning with prices firm. March was at 15.25c, May at 15.49c, July 15.70c, and December 16.13c.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8

COTTON—The cotton market, after giving way nearly $3 a bale under yesterday's downpour of selling orders during which some 600,000 bales are said to have changed hands, strengthened in the early trading this morning. Prices at the opening were irregular, but fluctuations were confined to the narrow range of a 7-point loss for July at 15.47c to a 4-point gain for March at 15.15c.

During the first hour, however, it appeared that the long expected rally was beginning, for March advanced to 15.30c, up 9 points, May to 15.54c, up 17, and July came back over $1 a bale to sell at 15.75c. The more distant months were steady at 16.05c for October, and 16.10c for January.

The market went into the final half-hour this morning with prices firm. March was at 15.25c, May at 15.49c, July 15.70c, and December 16.13c.

Buy Your USED CAR From A NEW CAR DEALER

When in the market for a used car stop and carefully consider several important points before making your investment:

1. Is the car a good investment?
2. Is the dealer dependable?
3. Does the dealer have ability and facility to give service?
4. Will dealer stand behind car?

Lincoln's new car dealers are sound business men whose word can be depended upon. They have certain factory connections which guide them in the proper method of conditioning and selling used cars. When a new car dealer sells you a used car he is selling more than one car—he is selling you his reputation with the hopes that you will eventually become a new car purchaser from him.

Lincoln's new car dealers have on hand the best values in used cars which they stand behind. In most cases 60% of each dealer's used car stock is the same make which he is representative for.

You can buy better used cars from a new car dealer—at most reasonable prices.

GREAT STRENGTH FEATURES REAR FRAME OF ESSEX

The design of the Essex rear frame structure is built to specifications of great strength and maximum rigidity. This is obtained by using fundamentally sound structural principles. The forward cross member is of unique design. The section of this member is rolled into a patented square box type, in place of the usual channel, with the ends riveted and forming a projecting lip. This feature further adds to the strength of the box section.

This type of box member owes its great strength to its "non-leaking stress" feature which means that every portion of the section is uniformly stressed under load, with no weak spots open to give way or flex under heavy load.

A new type "U" shaped rear cross member "boxes-in" the ends of the parallel side sills. Its ends project outwardly and provide the means for mounting the rear spring brackets. Oval shaped lipped flanged openings in its center provide unusual stiffness against twist. The projecting ends are ribbed to resist torsional loads set up by the rear springs. The side rails fit within the "U" shape, which adds rigidity to the structure.

DE SOTO OUTPUT SETS NEW RECORD DURING JANUARY

The demand for the new De Soto Straight Eight, following the exhibition of the car at automobile shows throughout the country, has brought a heavy volume of orders to the factory in Detroit and established a fresh production record for the first month of the year, it is announced by L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the De Soto Motor corporation.

These new orders for the straight eight, which is the lowest-priced eight in the world, are responsible for carrying the total production of eights and sixes for the month well beyond the corresponding month of 1929, when the six alone was produced. The early demand for the new eight, which is a Chrysler creation possessing all of the fine performance characteristics of the six, plus the added power and improvements of the new motor, unisteel body and other features, is also ample proof that public favor is turning to eight-cylinder automobiles.

"De Soto production for January this year was 20 per cent higher than it was for January, 1929," Mr. Peed says. "This means that De Soto got off to a flying start for 1930."

DON'T DRIVE IN SECOND.

Don't drive in second gear any longer than necessary. A car speed of thirty miles an hour in second means that your engine is going much faster than at the same speed in high—and it wears out an engine to race it.

Aviatrix Loops 42 Times

Mildred Stinaff claims to have set a world's record for women airplane fliers when she looped the loop forty-two times while over the Akron, O., airport.

OLDSMOBILE-VIKING SALES INCREASING DECLARES EDDINS

An increase in retail sales for the first period in January over 1929 records is announced by Oldsmobile-Viking officials. This actual evidence, together with other sound indications, brought predictions of good business during 1930.

The announcement of new high sales records was made by D. S. Eddins, vice president and general manager, at a recent meeting of Oldsmobile-Viking dealers of the Great lakes region. It was based on a tabulation of regular ten-day reports sent to factory officials by all dealers.

"The reports from our dealers throughout the country for the first ten days in January show that they have sold at retail and delivered to buyers more automobiles during that period than they sold during the same ten days in January 1929," said Mr. Eddins.

Mr. Eddins predicted a prosperous year's business, and to substantiate this forecast he reviewed the dominant position of the automobile industry in general and of Oldsmobile-Viking in particular.

CHEVROLET SALES FOR PAST MONTH SHOW INCREASE

Unprecedented public interest in the new car has resulted in more Chevrolets being sold during January than in the same month of 1929 according to H. J. Klinger, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

Because of the large volume of sales reported from every section of the county according to Mr. Klinger the month's schedule had to be increased.

Interest in the new car is unusually large according to the De-Teau Chevrolet Co. of Lincoln. This has resulted in sales greatly exceeding those of last year according to local officials.

LATEST SCIENTIFIC DEVICES USED TO MAKE CRANKSHAFT

The manufacture of a crankshaft from a solid bar of flawless steel to the finely finished product is one of the marvels of the Buick plant. First, the steel is placed under one of the ponderous hammers in the forge plant, where it is pounded into a rough forging. From the forge it is carried by conveyors to a heavy lathe and set in place by a hydraulic hoist. Mechanically operated fingers automatically center it and the lathe starts its seemingly impossible work of turning down the line bearing surfaces.

As the material is cut away, the tools are made to bite deeper by hydraulic control until they have reached the correct depth and the rough turning operation is complete. Then the shaft is lifted to another lathe and the end bearings are turned in much the same manner.

The partially finished crankshaft is then fed into the jaws of an enormous contrivance of wheels, cogs and gears. This gigantic machine completes the turning of all bearing surfaces in one operation.

From this point on instruments that measure the ten thousandth part of an inch are constantly applied to the revolving shaft as it is ground down to a perfect dimension and polished to the brilliancy and smoothness of plate glass.

OAKLAND PLACES HOBBLE ON CARS TO LIMIT SPEED

While serving a different function, the "mechanical hobble" as used by the Oakland Motor Car Co., operates on exactly the same principle as the hobble of the old west. The latter merely was a length of rope connecting the front and back legs of the horse or burro and preventing the animal from taking a full step.

Oakland's mechanical hobble serves to prevent its new motor cars from being driven at injurious speeds while en route from the factory to nearby Oakland Pontiac dealers. It entirely eliminates the human element by mechanically limiting the speed of its new car driveaways to 25 miles per hour. It has achieved this with the "mechanical hobble," an ingenious little device of trifling cost which prevents the driver from "giving her the gas."

The new device, is designated as the "orifice governor," because it limits or governs the size of the orifice in the intake manifold through which the gasoline mixture passes from the carburetor to the cylinders.

GET BETTER MILEAGE.

If your car doesn't make as many miles to the gallon of gasoline as you think it should, maybe it's your fault. Frequent stopping and starting, the use of low and second gears, high speed on the road—all these things use up gas.

KEEP BRAKES EFFICIENT.

If you have one of the new cars with quick acceleration and high speed, remember that you may have to decelerate rapidly, and this takes equal, efficient brakes. Have them inspected.

HOPE STRONG IN SENATORS' CAMP

Washington's Crew Is In This Year With Better Outlook Than Last.

By HENRY P. EDWARDS.

Washington is not expected to be the disappointment in 1930 it was in 1929. Then, it was Walter Johnson's first experience as a big league manager and he had had but part of season of managing a minor league club prior to that. In 1929, accidents to pitchers and infielders handicapped the Nats, while Leon Goslin, the team's clean-up batsman, was in a slump that lasted practically all season. It is not reasonable to expect that all these bits of hard luck will again visit the Nats.

Not many new men have been added—for two reasons. One that the Washington scouts were unable to uncover any minor leaguers who appeared able to crowd the regular Nats out of their positions, the other that President Griffith and Manager Johnson were satisfied that the team of 1929, barring accidents, had the ability to give a much better account of itself.

Not Many Rookies.

As a result, we find only seven Washington rookies listed and three of them are free agents—Pitcher Wineapple, a college southpaw, tried briefly by Washington last Septemmber, Outfielder Powell and Outfielder Freeman, late of Uncle Sam's marines.

The pitching staff has been augmented by the purchase of Carlos Moore of Birmingham and Herbert Pyle of Chattanooga. While neither won as many games as he lost in the Southern association in '29, each showed he had a lot of stuff and might prove to be a star with capable coaching. Washington, however, is strong in pitchers with Sam Jones, Fred Marberry, Irving Hadley, Ad Liska and Myles Thomas, right-handers, and Braxton, Brown and Burke, southpaws. Pyle and Moore are right-handers.

Ruel Still On Deck.

Behind the bat, Washington will have the ever-capable Muddy Ruel, Roy Spencer and Benny Tate again. Joe Judge will be stationed on first base, with Boss, former Little Rock player, as his understudy. Joe Cronin inched his job at hort last season. Ossie Bluege, said to have recovered from his injury in mid-season last year, will be on third again and when Bluege is right, there are few hot corner guardians any better. There will be a battle at second between Jack Hayes and Buddy Myer. The latter will bat the better, but Hayes is more efficient fielder.

New Garden Sass.

The complexion of the outfield has been changed but little. Goslin, Barnts, West and Sam Rice will be on hand again, unless Griffith engineers some trade with some other club in the league. As each of the four bats left-handed and Washington was very weak against southpaws in 1929, there is an excellent chance of George Loepp, purchased from Baltimore, grabbing a regular berth, as he hits right-handed. Both Powell and Freeman, the outfielding free agents, may need minor league experience before they are ready.

Sport Briefs.

The new Chrysler-built De Soto Straight Eight, offered at a base price of $965 (f. o. b. Detroit), is proving the dominant value in the field of low-priced cars. Neither America nor Europe ever before produced so fine an eight at so low a price. It was the sensation of the New York Automobile Show. In performance that results from serene, smooth power delivered by a superbly-designed engine—in distinction of design, beauty of appointments and riding comfort—the De Soto Straight Eight possesses an even greater margin of superiority than that which made its triumphant companion car, the De Soto Six, the largest-selling first-year car in the history of the industry.

BUILT TO OUT-PERFORM

. . . . the vital reason why BUICK outsells every other fine car by 2 to 1

Keep in mind, when you buy your car, that you are buying miles—and that you will get more and better miles in a Buick, as more than 2,400,000 owners have proved.

Buick builds so thoroughly—builds such extra strength and stamina into the Buick Valve-in-Head engine and sealed chassis—that many Buicks, five, ten or fifteen years of age, are still in service . . . and the speedometers of many of these cars register 100,000 miles and more.

You reap the full benefit of Buick's extra mileage whether you drive your Buick 10,000—50,000—or 100,000 miles. You enjoy finer, more faithful performance, day after day and mile after mile. You obtain greater motoring satisfaction all the way through—greater power, greater stamina, greater value.

Buick is built to out-perform. This, together with the beauty and comfort of Buick's Bodies by Fisher, explains why America is driving 700,000 more Buicks than any other car in Buick's price class . . . and why Buick today wins from two to five times as many buyers as any other car priced above $1200.

Come, see Buick's wide range of body types. Then take the wheel! A single drive will convince you that Buick is the big motor car value of the day.

Buick offers 15 body types, priced from $1260 to $2070, f. o. b. factory.
Marquette offers 6 body types ranging from $990 to $1060, f. o. b. factory.

Special equipment extra. Convenient terms can be arranged on the liberal G. M. A. C. time payment plan. Buick and Marquette delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing. Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values.

Dinner Dance and Beaux Arts Ball Feature Week

Social Event Opening Art Exhibit Will Be Held Wednesday At Morrill Hall; Gay Valentine Party Planned At University Club.

THE social spotlight is to be turned on two colorful events this week, the Beaux Arts ball Wednesday evening at Morrill hall, and the Valentine dinner dance Saturday evening at the University club. The ball on Wednesday evening will no doubt be the most elaborate event in many weeks, considering the groups of living pictures which are to be presented twice during the evening, and which are to be done by some of Lincoln's very prominent women.

Mrs. Fred Caldwell, Mrs. James E. Lawrence and Mrs. Fred Sidles will be in one picture, and in another will be Mrs. Lyle Holland, Mrs. H. W. Meginnis, and Miss Margaret Ames. In this picture, William Cotter, a student at the University of Nebraska, will be in the role of Harlequin. Flavia Waters Champe is to depict the modern age, the machine age, and a group of dancing students at the university, under the direction of Miss Beatrice Richardson, will portray Paris choosing the most beautiful of the three goddesses, Minerva, Juno and Venus.

The guest list at the Beaux Arts ball is limited to membership in the art association.

At the University club Saturday evening, a number of special features of entertainment have been planned. The decorations for the party are to be done by Victor Krause and Al Du Teau and Robert Ferguson will plan the entertainment. Accommodations will be made for 12 couples.

On Friday, Mrs. Dierks will entertain twelve guests at luncheon at Oak hall.

Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnicle are entertaining a small group of guests informally at dinner at their home, 1845 South Twentieth street, honoring Dr. and Mrs. Fred Wrightman and Miss Lillian Dreibelbis, all of Sabetha, Kas.

On Saturday evening, Mrs. C. W. Sanford will preside at a dinner for the members of the M. M. card club. The dinner will be given at Oak hall with bridge during the evening.

Mrs. Burks Harley entertained the members of her luncheon bridge club last Wednesday at Oak hall, and on Thursday, Mrs. John M. Stewart entertained at a luncheon foursome at Oak hall.

In honor of Mrs. F. G. Atkinson of Minneapolis, first vice president of the American Association of University Women, who is to speak at the meeting of the Lincoln branch Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Vance Traphagen, president of the Lincoln group, will entertain at luncheon at 12 o'clock Saturday at the University club. ..fashion favors A HAT With More Individuality

IT is most interesting to note that smart lines and becomingness are essential in a hat. But this season perfection of style cannot be attained by that alone. Due consideration must be given to the type garment with which the hat is worn, as well as the occasion. No longer can the twenty-four hour golfing crusher be accepted with all type garments—at all times of day.

For this reason we are finding a wider variety of shapes and materials—ALL FOR EXPRESSING INDIVIDUALITY.

THERE seems to be no doubt that this will be a cape season, for wherever one turns, in the wholesale or retail markets, in the reports of the Paris openings and in the accounts of what "They Are Wearing"—(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) at smart resorts, one is sure to meet with some version of this treatment. Capes appear on coats, dresses and suits, and, as mentioned before in these columns, embrace a wide variety of styles. On dresses and coats, the shorter versions prevail, the elbow type meeting with the most widespread favor. Many frocks endorse epaulette capes or flared caps on sleeveless models, which just cover the top of the arm and suggest capelets. The short types are also favored for the suits, but one also finds a few elbow-length models, often detachable.

REPORTS from the smart California resorts indicate that jacket suits are meeting with widespread approval. They appear in knitted fabrics, in lightweight woolens, and in sports silks, such as shantung, the latter frequently favoring cape treatments and indicated higher waistlines. White and soft pastel shades are regarded with much favor.

A fabric which has met with much favor for evening wear during this winter season, and which is finding equal favor in the spring collections of the haute couture and domestic manufacturers, is fine lace. It lends itself admirably to the soft femininity of the the current mode and is approved in youthful, cobwebby types, as well as in more mature versions. Frocks of lace are invariably of the slender, clinging type, with fulness introduced low on the skirt, and the slender aspect preserved in spite of the often extreme width of the skirt.

Paris Approves The Short Sleeve

CABLES from the recent openings of the haute couture have proved that Paris regards the short sleeve with ever-increasing favor. Lucile Paray even extends this treatment to the sleeves of dark coats, which are cut off at the elbow to show the sleeves of light frocks underneath. Little puffed sleeves appear in a number of collections, and short fitted sleeves are likewise approved.

How To Be Popular With The Boys Is Outlined Today By a Masculine Reader — We Wonder What The Nice Girls Are Supposed To Do While The Frivolous Girls Have Their Innings.

Masculine Advice.

How to be popular with the boy friends, is answered today by a man. Here you are girls. Read his advice and profit thereby.

Only, I can't help wondering what the nice girls are supposed to be doing while the boys run around with the frivolous girls.

The advice given by the masculine contributor, who signs himself "Uncle," is as follows:

"In the first place, girls, don't read trashy magazines and take them seriously. The mushy, scatter-brained, vampish types pictured in the cheap magazines do not typify a man's ideal of womanhood.

"If you want respect from boys and men you must act as if you had some brains and are smart and indifferent. Above all, be nice.

"It may seem I am wrong for a few years, and the boys may run around with those girls who don't use their brains and think only of a good time. After they get older, however, those same boys become sick and tired of that kind of girl and quit her for one who uses her head for something more than a hat rack.

"Never cheapen yourself by acting as if you were interested in nothing but having a wild time. Talk to a man sensibly. He may quit you and go to playing around the giggling, fast kind, but, if he is the right kind of man, he will sooner or later come back to the nice, clean girl who does not drink, smoke or act goofy.

"If you only knew what men think of girls that flirt and try to show off and be worldly wise and act bad, you would know I am right.

"No man will marry a girl whom other men don't admire and respect. I don't expect you to be a prude or a touch-me-not. Just be yourself and you will have more boy friends than you can keep up with."

Cannot Change Him.

Janet: Temperaments are fixed. The man who is the intellectual rather than the emotional type, is the man who has no flair for courting. The wife of such a man is very foolish to allow herself to be miserable because he is not as responsive as she would have him be.

She cannot change his temperament through her tears, persuasions or brooding. If he seems to take her for granted, that does not mean that he loves her the less. It means that he is quet, undemonstrative by nature.

The wife of such a man is wise if she will cultivate a taste for books and keep herself in intellectual trim to be the companion of his mind as well as the keeper of his love. There is one comforting thought, also, that the husband of this type is not the philandering type. He is not whispering sweet nothings in any woman's ear. He simply does not have a gift for that sort of thing, but his quiet love is the steady, lasting kind.

Too Many Promises.

Dear Minerva: I have been married five years. My husband and I have been separated three times, and every time he cries and wants me to come back to him, always promising me he would do better. Every time we separated it was because of other women.

I work every day and try to also keep up my home as nicely as possible. Until recently I gave him my check. Then I started keeping it myself, but pay part of the bills. He makes good money and I never know what he does with it. He says it is none of my business.

If I leave him again, he will again come begging me to return. He claims he loves me, but he likes to play around with other women, leaving me at home. He says they are merely an amusing diversion and do not affect his love for me.

I refuse to do like he does and go out with other men and have a good time, and consequently I lead a lonely, bleak life. I have done everything I can to make him see the good side, but believe it can never be done. What should I do? —BABE.

A—Your husband has no sense of fairness and does not know the meaning of the words love, responsibility or fidelity. His idea of money seems to be "what's yours is his, and what is his is his own."

I cannot see any good reason for remaining with him. But, if you leave again, make it a permanent break. You are self supporting. I am sure you would be happier without him. The clinging to a selfish, unfaithful husband is a bleak undertaking. Independence should mean a great deal to you.

The Childless Marriage.

Dear Minerva: I am engaged to a girl who frankly says she will never have any children. This is a disappointment to me for every time I visit the home of married friends and I see how they enjoy their boys and girls I shrink from the prospect of a childless home of my own. Do you believe that marriage would change my fiancee's attitude, or do you think I should break my engagement. It will cost me dearly to do the latter, for I love her.—ED.

A—A man aspiring to be the father of a family should not marry a woman who decides against motherhood. His desire for children and her refusal to have them will be a cause for contention, or if they do not mention the subject, it will still be a barrier between them.

The woman, who has children grudgingly, is not fit to rear them. She is too cold and selfish to be a good mother and such care as she gives them will be mechanical. As soon as possible she will urge them to fly from the home-nest and she will find a thousand excuses for neglecting them. She is likely to taunt her husband about the hardships imposed upon her in the care of them until he is sick with discouragement.

Answered Briefly.

Worried Blue Eyes: I can't see why you should leave your home and husband for his sister. Where is her husband? Of course if she is friendless and ill you would want to share what you have with her until she gets stronger and able to care for herself. But it wouldn't be fair to your husband to take the baby and leave. If you can help in any way to finance the home until the sister gets stronger, it would be all right, but she is the one to take her baby and go elsewhere, not you.

Val: A girl may learn to be an airplane pilot just as a man. No special amount of school training is necessary — I mean general schooling—but I should surely advise you to garner yourself a good schooling before you specialize in this or any other field. The best aviation schools are quite expensive. After you have taken a stipulated amount of training and have qualified as a solo flyer, you must qualify before the inspector from the department of commerce. There are many women pilots in the United States, as you know, but only a small hand full who have qualified as transport pilots. But it can be done.

The American War Mothers magazine has some suggestions for the women wishing to make the overseas pilgrimmage to the graves of sons or husbands. All mothers of sons or widows who have not remarried and whose sons or husbands are buried in France or who were reported among the missing are entitled to make this pilgrimmage. These suggestions are particularly applicable in Nebraska at this time, as those eligible from this state are to make the first trip to the French cemeteries. The United States will pay every expense of the actual trip. A lower berth ticket and the money in cash covering her per diem expenses for the time required to go from her home to New York will be provided. She will be given a badge with her name and destination, will be met by a U. S. officer at the train in New York, and taken to her hotel. The next day each one will be taken to the ship, where there will be an army officer acting for the quarter-master general.

In Paris, the mothers will be placed in groups of twenty-five and will be given an officer and a special bus. The officer will remain with the group until it returns to the train on the way home. He will accompany them to the cemeteries, and will pay hotel and laundry bills, all gratuities, and every legitimate expense of the trip. Relatives of Gold Star mothers may make the trip at their own expense, probably at reduced rates. Information can be obtained from Capitol chapter, American War Mothers, in Lincoln.

The chapter attended the funeral Wednesday afternoon of Mrs. Rebecca J. Ryons, the oldest member. She became a member last summer.

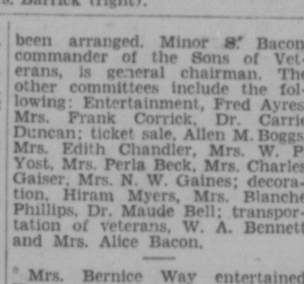
FOOD FOR THE FAT

TWO GRAINS OF GLAND FOOD DAILY THEN THE FOODS YOU LOVE



FAT people, of course, should not over-eat. They rarely do. But starvation is a very risky way to reduce.

Modern science finds that a common cause of excess fat lies in an under-active gland. That gland largely controls nutrition. People grow fat when its secretions are scanty, despite all exercise and diet.

So physicians everywhere, in treating obesity, now feed a certain gland food. They combat the cause. The results are amazing, and they come in the right way.

A famous medical laboratory embodies that method in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years —millions of boxes of them. All can see the results on every hand. Excess fat is far less common than twenty years ago.

The Marmola prescription is not secret. The formula is stated in every box. All the good results are explained. So users know why the flesh reduction brings such extra health and vigor.

No abnormal exercise or diet. Simply take four tablets daily until you reach the weight desired. Then you will know that the cause is corrected. An abnormal condition has been changed.

Try Marmola. It has served so many for so long that you owe this to yourself. Watch the new youth and beauty as it comes, the new health and vigor. Then tell your friends. Go start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

WHEN the Federation of Nebraska Retailers meets in Lincoln for its twenty-fourth annual convention Wednesday and Thursday, a large group of the pioneer merchants of the state are to be honored. All those attending the conference who have been in business in Nebraska for twenty-five years are to be awarded medals.

That honor number is very large, and a few have seen thirty-five years, forty, a half century pass by since they first opened the doors for business and hoped they would safely surmount the vicissitudes of low prices, high costs, bad accounts, hard times, intensive competition, and changing conditions to a solid and prosperous business life. A few of the long time merchants of Nebraska, outside of Lincoln, are mentioned in this story.

One of the pioneer merchants of Nebraska has served the public behind the counter for nearly three score years, and for a half century of that time he has been in Nebraska. William Freidell of Dorchester has spent fifty-one of his seventy-two years of life in Nebraska retailing and another seven working in New York state. Except for illness or a vacation, he has been on the job since he was fourteen, learning his lessons in the school of experience.

At that age he left school to gain his first actual business training, working for a grocery and hardware merchant at a salary of $2.50 to $3.50 a week. The store was located in his home town of Dansville, N. Y., where his father, Fredrick Freidell, had come from Germany in 1854. When but a lad he recalls helping deliver ice, receiving ten cents per day. He was paid at the end of the month in small paper money, "shin plasters," in five, ten and twenty-five cent denominations.

When he was twenty-one, he decided to come west. Having heard of the opportunities of the far west and through the advice of Dr. C. D. Dildine of Kearney, formerly of Dansville, he immediately went to Kearney. Returning late one day with Dr. Dildine from a visit to a sick child southeast of Minden, the snow had fallen to such a depth that it was hard to distinguish the cross roads, and there were no fences or trees to guide their path. That night the two slept on a bunk in a Nebraska sod house.

In telling how he received his first job in Nebraska, Mr. Freidell said:

"My good friend, Dr. Dildine, took me down to the store of Stein and Kramer and introduced me to Mr. Stein. He gave me the 'once over' and told me he was just leaving for Chicago on a market trip and would not be back for a month. He told me he would pay my board and room at the hotel if I wanted to work and upon his return he would make up his mind what he wished to do about hiring me. I made myself as useful as possible about the store, winning favor with the ten clerks.

He Made Good.

"When Mr. Stein returned, I saw him making the rounds and talking with the boys of the store. When he came over and asked me how I liked the work and if I wished to remain, I knew I had made good. Telling him I was very well pleased, he said the boy thought I was 'hot stuff' and that if I wanted to work work for $30 per month besides room and board I could stay. I stayed."

Mr. Freidell stated that ranchers and homesteaders would drive from 25 to 200 miles into Kearney to do trading. After their own produce was sold and the money received, they would shop for a three to six months supply of goods. He also told of a homesteader and his wife requiring from 6 to 11 o'clock at night to complete their purchases, a supply for six months, after having come in at the afternoon hour to buy a suit of clothes.

"You can see the patience it required on the part of the clerk in those days," he remarked.

In the fall of 1880, Mr. Stein and his partner sent Mr. Freidell to Bloomington to take charge of a branch store they were to open in the thriving Republican valley. He managed the store when the stock was removed to Republican City the following year and then again to Sutton, when hot winds destroyed the crops near Republican City. He remained in the employ of Stein and Kramer until the firm dissolved its partnership. He then went to work for C. Armstrong jr., of Sutton at an increase in salary.

Mr. Armstrong, knowing of the good judgment and business he had displayed while employed by his former firm in Sutton, sent him at once to Chicago with a letter of credit to John V. Farwell and company, with instructions to purchase several thousand dollars worth of goods for the Sutton trade. It was his first trip to a large market, and he was praised highly upon his return for his selection.

Moved To Dorchester.

Mr. Freidell was then sent to Dorchester to buy the bankrupt stock of Baker brothers from George Sawyer, now a Western, Neb., banker. He made the deal for forty-five cents on the dollar, and remained to run it for Mr. Armstrong until the fall of 1883.

With his ten years of business experience and management in New York and Nebraska as a background he opened a store under the name of William Freidell and Co., taking in Wolf and Baltzday of Crete as partners, in the fall of 1883. In 1892 Mr. Freidell took over the business, and later that year sold part interest to W. P. Hanley, and the firm was known as Freidell and Hanley, until 1896 when a big fire destroyed most of the Dorchester business section.

Mr. Freidell lost most everything he had, and while it was partially insured, after all debts were paid, money divided between the two partners, Mr. Freidell had little or nothing on which to start anew. Times were hard and even the $4,000 in book accounts were sold at 50 cents on the dollar.

In the fall of 1896, Mr. Freidell borrowed money to work his way back to business prosperity. He has since that time refused to go into partnership, and his records shows he has spent forty-seven years of active business life in Dorchester.

An Active Citizen.

During those years, Mr. Freidell has served fifteen years on the city council and the greater part of the twenty-five years he served on the board of education, he acted as secretary. He was a vital factor in the erection of the Dorchester high school in 1890, has sponsored all civic and modern improvements, boosts good roads, and owns his own home. He is a member of the Methodist church and the Masonic lodge, of which he has been master at various times.

With all his business cares, much of his time has been spent about his home with his family. His greatest desire has been to give his family the comforts of life and to educate his children that they might not have as hard a time as he had. In 1884, he was married to Miss Ida Egolf, who died two years ago this January. Three of their five children are living. W. Russell Freidell, his

STORY OF PREHISTORIC MAN IN NEBRASKA MAY BE REVEALED

DISCOVERIES WHICH INDICATE NATIVE AMERICAN DATES BACK MANY THOUSANDS OF YEARS PROVE IN CENTIVE TO STUDY IN THIS STATE

(Editor's note: The following article was prepared by Dr. William Duncan Strong, professor of anthropology at the University of Nebraska, and a noted field worker in anthropology. Before coming to the University of Nebraska last fall Dr. Strong was assistant curator of North American ethnology and archeology at the Field museum of Chicago. He accompanied the Rawson-McMillan expedition of the Field museum to Baffin island and northern Labrador in 1927 and 1928 as anthropologist. He has also made field studies in British Columbia, Oregon, Washington, California, and northern Mexico.)

BY DR. WILLIAM D. STRONG.

THE last decade has seen a tremendous advance in our knowledge of the ancient peoples of the new world and with this increase in knowledge has come the need of revising some quite generally accepted ideas of American prehistory. Ten years ago the anthropologist felt certain that the American Indian had only come into the American continent about ten thousand years ago, that is after the retreat of the last Pleistocene ice sheet. Now he is not so sure. Evidence contributing to this uncertainty has come especially from that great area of plains and plateaus extending west from the Mississippi river to the backbone of the Rocky mountains and it is this new evidence that we will briefly consider.

Not so many years ago western archaeology largely confined itself to the so-called "southwest," that is Arizona, New Mexico, southern Colorado and Utah and here, amidst the wealth of ruins, it contented itself with speaking vaguely of ancient "cliff dwellers" and more recent pueblo peoples. The intensive archaeological work and new techniques of the last few years have greatly changed and amplified this picture. The cliff dwellings have been shown to represent only one phase of pueblo life, a phase induced by the invasion of nomadic and warlike groups that made small villages in the open insecure. But more important than this we now know that both phases of life were the outcome of a long series of civilizations in the region. The earlier people in the southwest lived in rock shelters or in the open, and only last year were positive evidences of their small rock-slab houses discovered, although their storage pits had been known for some time. Since they made no pottery, but used a great variety of baskets, they are known as the Basket-Makers. They, and their successors, the Post Basket-Maker peoples, were characterized by having long heads, by using the atlatl or spear-thrower instead of the bow and arrow, and by growing some food plants such as Indian corn. For many hundreds of years these people cultivated their small corn patches and hunted deer, mountain sheep and rabbits throughout the southwest. Of their wider relationships we must speak later.

Lived In Adobe Houses.

They were succeeded by a broad-headed people who lived in small adobe houses, made pottery and used the bow and arrow. These were the Pre-Pueblo people and from them were descended the modern Pueblo peoples. At first their houses were small and separate, forming small villages, but later they were combined into large communal dwellings and so one large apartment house or pueblo of from one to four stories, came to house the whole village. At about this time nomadic and warlike raiders from the north, such peoples as the Apache and Navajo, disturbed the even tenor of southwestern life and we find the sedentary pueblo people reacting in two ways. One way was to combine small villages into these stronger, larger units, thus contracting the pueblo territory; the other way led to building villages high on the steep-walled mesas or in hidden precipitous canyons where defense was easier and thus were built the famous cliff dwellings that today excite the wonder and admiration of every traveler in the southwest. So, from the isolated small house ruins of pre-pueblo times the development of southwestern life can be traced to the huge, five-storied pueblo towns that gave rise to the fabulous Spanish stories of the "Seven Cities of Cibola." Careful excavation or sites where one town had been built on top of others, combined with the detailed analysis of potsherds which in their changing designs and techniques characterize the successive periods, have revealed this fascinating story of the rise of a truly unique American civilization.

Strange to say the latest and most important discovery in the southwest was announced this year by an astronomer, Professor Douglas of the University of Arizona. As a result of the study of sun spots and climate, Professor Douglas found that the annular rings of growth of southwestern trees were delicate recorders of seasons of varying rainfall over the whole area. The oldest living trees provide records back some 250 years and beyond these are the trees cut as roof beams for the successive pueblo dwellings in the area, which extend the record back 1,200 years. It is therefore possible to take a beam from any of the ancient pueblos and cliff dwellings within this period and by seeing where its ring sequence fits into the long tree ring record, date to a year the time when it was cut. As a result we now have a year by year positive chronology for the southwest back to 700 A. D., and a relative chronology as well for the adjacent parts of North America. Thus we have not only the story of the rise of this native American civilization but the means of timing the cultural changes. Future finds of still earlier roof beams will undoubtedly extend this chronology into Basket-Maker times.

Discoveries Iu California.

Passing from the southwest proper to the adjacent region it is interesting to note that remains closely akin to the Basket-Maker culture were discovered last year in eastern Colorado, in the "panhandle" of Texas, and in Oklahoma as well. These peoples seem to have been at a somewhat more primitive level of culture than the Basket-Makers of the southwest but with their complex basketry, rudimentary agriculture and use of the dart and spear-thrower there are close resemblances between the two. Still farther to the east an interesting series of comparable sites were uncovered in the Ozark mountains of Arkansas in 1926. Mr. Harrington, their discoverer, has named these people the Ozark Bluff Dwellers for they lived in caves or rock shelters under the overhanging bluffs of the Ozarks. There, too, we find the rudimentary agriculture, the atlatl of spear-thrower, the woven fiber sandals and other artifacts suggesting a culture akin to the Basket Makers. Similar remains have been found recently in caves as far west as Nevada and it thus appears that this early agricultural civilization which reached its highest point in the southwest was formerly much more widely spread: In Arkansas the camp sites of the Bluff Dwellers are overlaid by later remains suggesting the historic Siouan culture of the plains and from the distribution of these earlier Basket Maker cultures it seems quite possible that future work may reveal a similar situation in western Nebraska when more is known of this region.

While these early manifestations of native American culture extend back many thousand years they alone would not overthrow the belief that man had only been in the New World since the last glacial period. For evidence bearing on this possibility we must turn to another set of recent discoveries in the west. In 1923, in excavating the skeleton of an extinct species of bison at Lone Wolf creek in the Texas "panhandle," three, carefully equipped, flint dart points were found associated with the fossil remains. This discovery was supplemented in 1926 by the discovery at Folsom, N. M., of several more skeletons of an allied species of extinct bison which had evidently been killed by the chipped flint points found in association with their bones. The chipped points resemble those from Lone Wolf creek in general type, but show a remarkable degree of skill in flint chipping, being beveled on the edges and hollowed in the center by the removal of exceedingly long flakes. Interestingly enough all the bison at the Folsom "kill" are minus their tails suggesting that these early hunters purloined them for trophies, soup, or fly-swatters. The finding of worked stone implements in a Pleistocene deposit near Frederick, Okla., also occurred in 1926, and here too the implements were associated with fossil bones of extinct animals. Such finds leave little room to doubt that man and various species of extinct animals were contemporaneous in the new world, but whether this association took place before the time of the great ice sheets or immediately after remains for the geologists to decide. They certainly constitute the earliest positive records we have of human beings in America and since shipped flints of the Folsom type have been found just west of the Nebraska line in Colorado, it seems probable that future work in both these states will reveal new and important evidence concerning these early bison hunters.

Describes Fossils In Nebraska.

At the Des Moines meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, in December, 1929, Harold Cook described and showed pictures of a series of objects of fossil bone found in the Snake creek beds of northwestern Nebraska. Mr. Cook is inclined to believe that these objects show human workmanship and therefore prove that man lived in America even before the Pleistocene or glacial period, for the Snake creek beds are Pliocene in origin. This assumption that human beings capable of using tools lived in the new world many thousands of years before the ice age began is startling. The oldest implements which authorities agree are of human origin in the old world date from the early Pleistocene or late Pliocene and it is only in the old world that the earliest human fossils have been found. Thus, in general, it may be sad that the probabilities seem to be against Mr. Cook's claim but it is certainly a situation meriting careful and unprejudiced investigation.

Whatever the decision as to Pliocene man in Nebraska there can be no doubt that the state offers a highly significant and interesting field for archaeological research in general. It is a region rich in the remains of Pleistocene animals and considering the above mentioned finds in nearby states it seems very probable that equally important discoveries will be made in Nebraska. The archaeological investigations of such men as Dr. Robert F. Gilder, Dr. Fred H. Sterns, A. T. Hill, and of Dr. A. E. Sheldon and E. E. Blackman for the Nebraska State Historical society, have revealed a tremendous number of interesting and significant sites extending from historic to very early times. We have only time to sketch the barest outline of Nebraska prehistory so far revealed.

Lived in Earth Lodges.

The first white explorers in the region found it occupied in the north and along the Platte by various Siouxan tribes such as the Omaha, Ponca, Oto, and Dakota, while the central and southern parts were controlled by Caddoan peoples, notably the valous bands of the Pawnee. These tribes practiced a little

Training of Teachers A Most Important Part of Nebraska Educational Program

The public school system in Nebraska that challenges the attention of other states and is so pealously regarded by its patrons is not the result of good fortune and chance. It is the result of very careful planning, in which scheme of education the training of the teacher holds a major part.

Four teacher training colleges, or normal schools as they are commonly called, are located advantageously in the state where they may easily be reached by students. Chadron, Kearney, Peru and Wayne have these schools and they are doing an outstanding work in Nebraska in training teachers and giving advanced students the benefits of higher education.

These schools have a total attendance of 2,074 students in the college courses, divided as follows:

Kearney	683
Peru	488
Wayne	589

The school system of Nebraska consists of three distinct types of schools—the common schools, the University of Nebraska and the state normal schools. The function of each class is defined in the state constitution and that of the normal schools is outlined: "The exclusive purpose of normal schools is training and instruction of persons, both male and female, in the arts of teaching and managing schools, and in the principles and practice of the various branches of learning taught in our public schools."

The normal schools are governed by a state board of education of

LIFE'S INTANGIBLES.

It is characteristic of The Chicago Journal of Commerce to quarrel with that which partakes of idealism. Hence when John D. Rockefeller, Jr., replying to a question from The Yale News, writes that the "real purpose of our existence is not to make a living, but to make a life—a worthy, well-rounded and useful life" the Journal is inclined to turn up its nose.

Young men not born with a silver spoon in their mouths it observes may as well understand the first duty of a well-managed life is in fact and in truth "to make a living." A man who does not do this fails in the first essential when dependent on his own exertions for a livelihood. "Mr. Rockefeller seems to belittle this duty at the beginning of adult life."

That's a strange greeting for a young man, who has contributed more to idealistic and spiritual values in America in recent years than any other rich and powerful industrial leader. In their family life no American more splendidly exemplifies the virtues of industry, thrift and simplicity than John D. Rockefeller, Sr., or John D. Rockefeller, Jr. One reads very little about young Rockefeller wasting his time in recreational or social diversions. He is a busy man with business, and yet not so much so that he has not had time to devote his time or contribute his wealth to the greatest philanthropy ever undertaken. The Rockefeller Foundation has accomplished more real good in the world than any agency of its kind.

It should not be forgotten that among all of the wealthy and influential men in America, not one stepped forward to rebuke Colonel Stewart for his part in the Teapot Dome investigations until John D. Rockefeller, Jr., opened the struggle to oust an old friend and co-worker from the Standard Oil company of Indiana. That was not a pleasant task for the young man but he conceived it to be his public duty and he carried it through regardless of what personal cost it entailed.

Nor can it be said that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is the type to chase bubbles to the neglect of the practical affairs of life. In the vast concern with which the Rockefeller name is linked, there has been the disposition to encourage ability. There has been a keen interest in the welfare of thousands of employes to the end that the individual should improve himself. These workers have been urged to become saving, to invest wisely, to live well within their income, to establish homes and to observe all requirements for useful citizenship. There is no justification for the assertion that either by word or action young Rockefeller has ever belittled the all-important task of becoming self-sustaining and independent.

The more complicated life becomes the more need there is of placing emphasis upon some of its intangible values. Living close to the soil, under rigorous conditions, it has seemed that the finest virtues develop. Perhaps it is because resolution, courage and sacrifice are required to overcome the obstacles which must be conquered. In the main it is the homes of the humble and the poor where the most heroic qualities are developed. From the earliest day it has been the accumulation of wealth which has led people into excesses and flabbiness. The man who waits, as the Journal suggests, until he has become rich, to consider a "well-rounded" life generally spends his remaining years in endeavoring to add to his pile.

From the day he attains maturity he needs to consider the objectives of this existence. He must decide upon what is real and what is false. He, who scornfully sneers at the intangible elements which make him respected and loved, may live and become wealthy but he does not live fully. He will finally realize before death overtakes him that he lives only to the degree in which he has lightened the burden of humanity.

THE MAYOR'S FIGHT.

The members of the city council are on the eve of sitting down at a conference board to frame a financial program to submit to the voters, probably in August. Whatever this program contains, it should be the belief of the commissioners that it will meet the city's needs for the future.

The program is expected to contain three proposals. One will ask authorization for the expenditure of $50,000 annually for ten years for sewer extensions, an improvement of vital need to the health and growth of the city. The second will ask a specific amount yearly for five years to erect fire, police, health and other public buildings, also necessities. The third will seek more money with which to carry on municipal affairs.

The third proposition will be one of two plans now being advanced. One contemplates a limited mill levy and the other a flat sum beyond which the council will not be permitted to spend. Except for the size of the figure there is no difference between this scheme and the present plan.

The fallacy of this latter was demonstrated within six years after it was voted. To re-enact it with a larger amount will simply mean that experience has not been a good teacher, and that the voters want to see municipal affairs choke up and stagnate again in a few years, just as they have been stifled since prior to 1926.

Had a mill levy been voted in 1919 it would not be necessary to ask more money now. If a mill levy is approved next fall there will be no need to talk five years hence of municipal affairs failing to keep pace with civic development. Lincoln is growing and added property valuations will care for increased activities of city departments, if the number of mills voted is a proper figure.

The city government needs more money. Every mayor during the last five years has stressed this need. It is being stressed again and once more is to be submitted to vote.

Whether it succeeds depends upon the nature of the proposal. Another factor will be whether the campaign is backed by adequate leadership. Lack of this alone will suffice to defeat anything that is suggested. If Mayor Love adheres to his expressed intention of pointing out the way after outlining what he knows is needed, and then complacently sits back and waits for outsiders to assume the responsibility which is the mayor's, he will have gone more than half way in defeating what he has aided in framing and submitted to the electorate.

If the mayor really believes more money is needed to allow the city government to function properly, and he has said so repeatedly, it is his duty as the city's chief executive to lead the fight to get it. Any act short of this could be construed in no other light than as a failure to meet the obligations of his office. On his shoulders alone will rest in a large measure, success or failure of the campaign.

FROM INDUSTRY TO COLLEGE.

Rarely does a man, who has tasted the romance and the thrill of outstanding business and industrial success, seek to complete a distinguished career in the cloistered halls of the college campus.

Such, however, is the decision reached by John D. Clark, former University of Nebraska graduate, business genius and lawyer, who is retiring from a most responsible executive post in the Standard Oil organization to become a member of the faculty of Denver university. Mr. Clark is yet a young man. He received his degree at Nebraska in 1905, and then took up the practice of law. He became counsel for the Rockefeller interests, and later president of the Midwest Refining company. He was a director of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, and vice president of the Pan-American Eastern Petroleum company. He resigned all these position, entered Johns Hopkins university for post graduate study, and expects to receive his Ph. D. degree in 1931.

The university where Mr. Clark proposes to take up his educational activities will be enriched. He has had the outside contacts, and the revealing experiences with business and industry which should make him intensively alert to the problems of humanity. In his efforts it is readily to be imagined there will be a judicious mixing of the broad philosophies acquired outside with the cultural values and educational training of the specific subject which he will teach. He will have the fine enthusiasm which success engenders, the deep faith and confidence in this era and its people, which are necessary for fullest realization in business.

His entrance to the fields of education after a brilliant business career suggests something new. All colleges would be strengthened by the addition of men of his calibre to the instructional forces.

SEVEN INDIAN CIVILIZATIONS.

To understand the archaeology of Nebraska it is essential that we gain full knowledge of the historic Indian tribes as well as the pre-historic peoples, declares Dr. William Duncan Strong, professor of anthropology at the University of Nebraska, in a feature article which appears in the Sunday issue of the The Lincoln Star.

The certainty that man lived on this continent many thousands of years ago, possibly even before the great glaciers covered most of the land, fascinates us. We follow with interest the efforts of scientists to trace human existence back to the earliest possible time. Every discovery which tends to throw some light on the life of the native Americans interests us, even though that evidence is nothing more than a bit of chipped flint.

Because of this fascination which pre-historic man holds for us there is danger that the investigation and study of the historic Indian will be slighted. Yet how little we really know about the Red men, even those that are living today.

The average person thinks that at the time Columbus discovered America this entire continent was overrun with uncivilized savages, who fought among themselves but lived in about the same manner, acting and thinking much alike and having habits, customs and traditions that were almost identical. But investigation has indicated that the Indians had not one but several civilizations which were the outgrowth of past development. It is believed that there were seven distinctive Indian civilizations. While there was an intermingling of culture there was as much or more differentiation between any two of them as would be found between two European nations.

We are almost totally lacking in knowledge as to the origin and development of the Indian civilizations and even as to much needed information about the life of the Red man at the time the whites first came in contact with him. Certainly here is a field that warrants a great deal of study.

Dr. Strong's advice of working from the known into the unknown is worthwhile. Study of the historic tribes not only will assist the archaeologist and anthropologist but it should yield information that will assist in our present day problems of dealing with the Indian. The survey recently made under direction of Secretary Wilbur of the department of the interior has shown that the herding of Indians on reservations has had many unhappy results. More information about the origin, development and organization of Indian life certainly would help solve the problems of adjusting these people to modern civilzation.

THE GLORY OF SPARTA.

The glory of Ancient Sparta was a race of men physically perfect, of dauntless courage and bravery. Now from the same racial stock comes the loviest flower of European womanhood.

It has just been announced that Miss Alice Diplogakou, a beautiful 18-year-old Greek brunette, has been awarded the title of "Miss Europe" to compete in the international beauty show which will be held in Rio De Janiero for the purpose of crowning Miss Universe. How fortunate it was for Miss Diplogakou she was born centuries after the Spartans had attained the zenith of their power. The ancient Spartan had no reverence for femininity. Only the male youth were worthy of attention, care and training.

The outstanding beauty of Europe departs radically from accepted standards of beauty in America. None of this slender figure for her. She is the average height of the American girl, yet weighs 130 pounds, some 15 or 20 pounds more than the physically perfect daughters of Uncle Sam. Her features are ancient classical, which means she has a full brow, a straight nose, and a straight chin, which is far too masculine for those who fix the beauty standards of the United States.

Then again in another particular we fear she could not pass muster in this land of the free and the home of the brave. Miss Diplogakou is far too modest, it is related, to show the dimples in her knees. Heavens! Over here grandmothers, who have no dimples to show, have been revealing their knees until the novelty of short skirts has palled upon us all. What will all of our modernists say if this Greek girl is crowned Miss Universe. Shades of Horatius, the prospect is appalling!

A PEACEFUL DICTATOR.

Events which have transpired since General Primo de Rivera retired from office as the dictator of Spain occasion wonder that he should remain at the head of the government for so long a period as he did.

The role of a dictator is not an easy one. To be successful, it has been generally believed despotic and ruthless measures were necessary. The Spanish dictator adjured such tactics. He freed more civil prisoners during his regime than had been liberated in the ten years preceding it. He resorted to methods of conciliation in every crisis which confronted him rather than to brute force. He was essentially a pacifist, a fine gentleman, who did all within his power to promote Spain's progress.

It now comes to light that one of the officials whom de Rivera supplanted challenged him to a duel upon his retireme. t from office but an explanation from the ex-dictator eliminated that formality. It must be a relief for de Rivera to be liberated from a role which was as distasteful to him as the dictatorship must have been.

Progress At the Conference

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, but as I havent seen a paper to read for over a week, and then for the three weeks previous to that I dident get ahold of any that had any American news in them.

So I dont know what has happened with you all here on the home grounds. All I can hear that has happened is prohibition. Congress is still argueing over it. So I guess I haven't missed much by being away, for I have heard everything there was to say for either side in the first six months it was in existence.

So that leaves us nothing but London and the conference, and that trip home. Now you have often heard people say, "The captain said it was the worst trip he had ever experienced." Now I know its terrible to pull that. But honest, that's just what he said. He said that there was especially one day that it was not only a storm but a hurricane. Well old Claremore just keeled over and dident show up for days. We was on the French Lines crack boat the Ile De France, and its a great one in rough water. Of course we wasent making much time, but it did stand the weather great. It pitched a lot, of course, but it dident do any of that side rolling that is so popular with most boats. We come in right along side of the Aquatania that left a day and a half ahead of us. I was awful anxious to get the papers to see what had been done at the conference since I had been on the boat. Of course we had a little paper on board that give us a few lines of each event that come over the wireless. We couldent tell if they were doing anything or not, so when I landed I grabbed the papers to see what had been done, and do you know we hadent missed a thing. There was something in there about Jayan and America conferring on the tonnage of submarines. Well when the conference started, everyone had been led to believe that they would be abolished alltogether.

Predicts High Building Cost.

Now they are discussing the amount of tonnage and it is far in excess of what either country has, so it will take a lot of money to build up to the amount that the country dissarms down too. They are talking about giving Japan equality with us on submarines. Well thats one of the coming war weapons, why that will mean just what I told you one time that a one-eyed man can tell you who will win the conference, it will be Japan.

Our ratio in battleships are England, 5, America, 5 and Japan 3. 5—5—3. Now they are talking of giving Japan 5-5-5 on submarines, Why the more submarines? Because Japan wants them, thats why. Mind you, with all joking and kidding aside, its going to be a pretty tough thing to really do anything worthwhile over there. You are bucking human nature. Its simply an economic conference and not by any means a dissarament conference.

Nobody is going to dissarm in the least. You know the men that every nation that is gathered there are not the "Idealists" that think, "Oh we cant have war its too terrible, we must not have war." Well thats wonderfull, but these men know history too well, they know each other too well, they know that is not only a possibility but a probably. They know they cant go back home and tell their people that they have left them unprotected. England was raised on her navy. Her navy is what has made her great. Every British kid 8 years old knows that. Do you think they are going to let a bunch of their statesmen just sit down around a table and agree to let somebody else be absolutely as big as they are? You know those things are not being done. Something that you have held for life and you know its been your weapon that has made you, you just dont give up that without a struggle, you dont just hand it over.

Sounds Great, But—

It sounds great, this parity, but you are not going to get it. In the first place, it would take us years to build up to them and its a cinch they are not going to sink till they arrive at our level. Then there is France and Italy, they were given equality at Washington. Why? because France was down and out at that time, 1922, they couldn't demand more. Now they are a different France than in 22. They are the "cockiest" ones at the conference, they want to be given a much higher rating, they feel, (and rightly so) that they are one of the world's powers, and they are not going to be humiliated by being called any less. They have a tremendous submarine building programme. Its their only weapon against England's already great fleet. And you can bet they wont give up a pound of that.

Italy will demand the same rating with France, and she wont get it. Now what will the Italiam deligation do? Will Mussolini bring them home if they dont get it? You know those birds over there have a pretty tough time of it. Its all right to joke about them not doing anything. But when you have fought each other as much as they have this old trusting each other to never have another war is a lot of beautiful stuff, but not just exactly what you would want to bet all your whole mode of defense on. One thing we can rest assured, we have some fine men there, we got a great deligation. They are not thinking the world is going to kiss each other from now to eternity. They want peace, but they want a gun to help get it with. You must always remember that their is more national pride in this conference to divide up than there much to protect their little gunboats is ships. Nations are not there so as they are their national prestige. And always remember they are not there to stop wars, they are there just to put some kind of a stop if they can of this nation and France of making them build too many.

The Farm Board.

LAMAR, Neb., Feb. 8.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I would like to add a few lines to the Forum communications.

When our farm board was appointed, we thought we were going to get a hunk of cheese, but it's as the story goes about the monkey and the cats. "Hold, hold," cried the two cats, "give each one of our share." But the monkey bit first one share, then the other. So the monkey got the cheese. The cats are still mewing.

We farmers are still mewing. The only salvation for the farmer is for the government to set a minimum and maximum price on wheat, corn, cotton, etc. Wheat at Kansas City, minimum, about $1.40, maximum, $1.60. Corn, minimum, about 85 cents, maximum, $1.00. Make it a five-year deal.

The beet grower knows just what he is going to get. Why not the farmer? When the board of trade wants wheat up, it says: "Simon says thumbs up." When it wants wheat down, it says "Simon says thumbs down." But when you step on the gamblers' toes, well that just won't do.

The government would not have to use $50,000,000 to handle overproduction. It would take care of itself.

I am sixty-seven years old. I have never heard of any wheat being dumped in the ocean. It would be a shame to dump it in the ocean with 2,000,000 people starving to death.

Why this crop of over-production? Leiter, of Chicago, raised the price of wheat from 70 cents to $1.15 in ten days. Was it under-production that did it? Some say "yes." In ten days more it was seventy. Was that over-production. No, his money ran out.

So if poor Uncle Sam's money runs out, wheat should go down. But if not, wheat should go up.

Talking of reducing crops— well it makes a fellow stop and scratch his head. First, we have agricultural schools all over our land. What for? To teach the farmers how to raise more wheat, corn, rye, barley, cows, calves, etc. I sent my son to agriculture school at Fort Collins to learn how to raise better crops.

Now our board has $500,000,000 at its disposal. Is it going use the money to tell us how to raise less wheat, corn, and cows. Why not start an agricultural school on that line.

Well we don't need our county agents any more. We had one in Oklahoma. He was at my place several times, but to get advice as several fellows drove several miles to find out how I raised several cribs of corn when the other fellow did not. I told them. Now I would send them to the fellow with the empty cribs.

Why all this? Just for the simple reason our government does not dare lay its hands on the gambling lair of trade. Maybe I am too old to give advice, but Taft left a man eighty-eight years old to fill his place. So I am just getting to the age to give advice.

I have been on the farm all my life except three years I was in the car business. I have been a retired farmer for about three years.

I see wheat is going lower every day. Is there any way we can quiet our farm board? More they say, the lower wheat goes.

Now I have given the only salvation for the farmer.

H. W. NEWMAN.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 8.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The present depression in the dairy industry accompanied by low prices, is not due to over-production of milk and its products, but rather to a lack of consumption. In 1929 we produced about fifteen and one-half million pounds more butter than we did in 1928, but in 1927 we produced some four million pounds more than we did last year.

Our increase in population is about one and one-third million, which, according to our average consumption of seventeen pounds of butter per capita, would require that we produce some 23,000,000 pounds additional per year. From figures available we know that we consumed some 37,000,000 pounds more imitation butter in 1929 than we did in 1928, but we must also add to this some 10,000,000 pounds of so-called cooking fats which are used by many as a butter substitute.. We can safely say that at least 47,000,000 pounds more imitation butter was used in 1929 than in 1928, which would more than account for the surplus we now have in storage.

Some effort has been put forth to find out where this imitation consumed and we have been greatly surprised to find that the bulk of it has kone into rural districts. The Department of Agriculture of Iowa has recently made a survey of ten Iowa county; the inspectors of the state conducting the work. This survey was very carefully and systematically done and it was found that 420 stores, during one week, sold 37,782 pounds of butter, and 29,883 pounds of butter imitations. In percentage this is about 56 per cent for butter and 44 per cent for imitations. The counties selected did not have large cities, but were considered strictly rural counties.

These facts are certainly startling when we consider that Iowa, probably the best farming state in the Union, ranking second in butter, with nearly 200,000,000 pounds, and certainly having a high standard in city as well as in country, should use such an enormous amount of imitations per capita.

Studies carried on in other states have resulted in similar findings, especially in the middle west, or the butter-producing area. Now this is not a very pleasant situation for we are certainly mindful of the fact that in order to receive good consumption. Surely the dairy farmers of the middle west cannot ask the laborers of the east to eat butter when they themselves refuse.

There may be some good excuses for this questionable economy; the necessity of saving and economizing, but even that is questionable when we consider the value of butter and its superior flavor over imitations. The dairy farmers in Iowa who bought imitation butter in order to save, really lost twice as much as they gained, for the shrink in price of butter, due to surplus, caused them a loss of something like twenty cents per pound. Mr. R. G. Clark of the Dairy Division of Iowa, has figured that while the farmer saved one dollar in buying imitation butter he lost two dollars on the price of his product.

The American people, without doubt, have the highest standards of living of any of the peoples of the earth, and we are inclined to live as well as we can. It may be assumed that some of this lack of consumption was due to unemployment and a business depression in all channels of our trade, farm included. Surely butter has a better flavor ,and surely most people understand the food value of butter; its high vitamin content; its excellent flavor when used for spread and cooking, for this is nature's own food.

So much has been said and written about this subject that the people are actually increasing their consumption and it would not be at all surprising to see this surplus disappear by spring. This would in-

HERE and THERE

Almost Its Only Reward.

(New York Times)

If most people continue to be honest, it is probably not because of any expected financial premium. Not long ago The New Yorker published a table demonstrating the literal truth of the old saw, "Virtue is its own reward," with examples gleaned from current news items. A poorhouse pensioner returned a $90 necklace and received 4 cents as a reward. A policeman returned an automobile and was rewarded with 33 cents. A theater usher returned $100,000 worth of bonds and got $10 for his trouble.

To this list should be added the case of a Britisher whose action saved a ship and its crew. During one of the recent terrible storms he was listening in on his radio in his home in Surrey and picked up an S O S from a Russian boat in the Channel. A former operator, he was surprised that no response was sent, but gathered that the land station was jammed with the unusual load of traffic on the air due to the storm.

He phoned the station, transmitted the S O S and was thanked by the officer in charge. Returning to his set, he found that all other ships in the Channel had become quiet, the S O S was going through, and in a few minutes three tugs were starting toward the vessel in distress. Not only were the crew rescued, but the ship was towed to port.

The reward was a brief official letter expressing "the Postmaster General's appreciation of your promptitude." As for the money reward set on a rather fine action, the closing sentence revealed "that the charge for the telephone call to the North Foreland Station will not, of course, be debited to your telephone account."

Stephen T. Mather.

(New York Herald Tribune.)

The name of the late Stephen T. Mather is eminent in the story of the national parks. He was an exceptional example of a man highly successful in business stepping into the government service to pursue a grand hobby on a grand scale—an ideal employment, from the public's point of view as well as his own, of his time and money. Mr. Mather entered the department of the interior, at Secretary Lane's invitation to devote himself to the couutry's natural masterpieces, in which his heart was wrapped up. It was largely owing to his initiative that the national park service was established. He was its first director. Under his management the park system was correlated and expanded and its policies were defined. He carried on the duties of his office under three presidents and five secretaries of the interior with unfailing enthusiasm and fine judgment.

In all those years there was the threat of exploitation and of the lowering of park standards. Mr. Mather ably resisted both. He also guarded the parks against industrial encroachment. He provided access and conveniences for the vast influx of motor tourists without impairing the beauty of the park wilderness areas. It was a tribute to his sincere persuasiveness that he regularly got the needed appropriations from congress for park maintenance. He always had a good press; he was not the less articulate because he was an alumnus of the New York Sun. His own writings, indeed, did a great deal to crystalize the popular appreciation of park values. He was a generous contributor from his private purse to park improvements and his gifts were supplemented by friends in closest touch with his unselfish work. It was the country's good fortune to have the national parks during a critical period administered by one so competent and so eager for the task.

Protecting the Eagle.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger)

For years bird lovers of America have been waging a campaign to protect the bald eagle, our national emblem, from possible extermination. This species is specifically protected by law in five states, and in thirty-nine others is safeguarded by inference under the Audubon law, which protects nongame birds. But it is reported that eagles are being wantonly killed in many sections. There is even a bounty of $1 on the bald eagle in Alaska, due to the popular belief that it catches live fawns, lambs and foxes on fox farms. However, such cases are so rare, in the opinion of investigators, that they afford no excuse for the wholesale slaughter of eagles.

Bills to insure greater protection for this species, which is becoming rare in many localities, have been introduced in congress by Senator Norbeck of North Dakota and Representative Anderson of Minnesota. They provide a heavy fine for anyone who kills a bald eagle "within the continental United States, Alaska, Porto Rico or Hawaii." This legislation is indorsed by the leading organizations devoted to the protection of wild life in America. Its enactment at this session of congress will be taken for granted, but whether or not it can get by the Supreme court is another question. Previous federal laws to protect birds have been declared in conflict with the tenth amendment to the constitution. It would seem anomalous to suggest that the government does not have the power to protect the American eagle. At any rate, there is no question about the authority of congress to stop the killing of these birds in Alaska.

Protection for Jackson Barnett.

(Kansas City Star.)

There has been widespread interest in Jackson Barnett, the Creek Indian whose land allotment by the government made him rich through the discovery of oil underlying his property. An ignorant and mentally incompetent old man of large wealth, his situation promised rich rewards to those who could take advantage of it. His marriage was followed by huge inroads on his fortune.

Part of the money so taken now has been ordered returned by federal courts. Other suits are pending and it is probably that the government eventually will reassemble for its ward the rest of the funds which had been gathered in by others. So Jackson Barnett has not proved such good picking after all.

It is interesting to note that the raids on the Barnett fortune were authorized by Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior at the time, the same Fall who has been prosecuted criminally in connection with his government land transactions, and whose grants of oil leases on gvernment lands have been canceled.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1929, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

Oakland, Calif.

I want to be a New Testament preacher. But I need guidance and teaching. When I sermonize on topics of the day I feel that I have somehow missed the mark. How can this be avoided?

ANSWER.

Become thoroughly acquainted with the books of the New Testament. Memorize their great passages, quote them correctly and know what they mean here and now. St. Paul's phrase, "Rightly Dividing the Word," is used by Professor Newton Davies, of Drew Theological college, as the title of just such a book of methods as you need. Get his volume and master its contents.

You do not have to be a Greek scholar to understand his simple yet learned and attractive discussion of how to make profitable use of the Gospels and Epistles. Their scope and function as interpretations of Christ's person and message are there admirably expounded. This volume is an aid to effective preaching. After studying it you need not ransack the news of the day for subject matter, nor postpone the lasting interests of eternity to the perishing issues of the hour.

I know that many ministers are doing this, but they walk in a vain show. The clergyman who plunges into the vital tide of New Testament teaching, supplemented by the magnificent backgrounds of Old Testament prophecy, will not be stranded midway in his pulpit career, nor offer his people stones when they ask for bread. I have been trying to preach Biblical verities for nearly half a century and I find them exhaustless, ever old and ever new, always fascinating and always applicable.

QUESTION.

Lincoln, Neb.

In your opinion is R. Warner's "Life of William Jennings Bryan" a fair book? Some of us who were Mr. Bryan's neighbors have had numerous discussions about it.

ANSWER.

Mr. Warner has written very readable biographies of Mr. Barnum and Brigham Young, in addition to his work on Mr. Bryan. He relates the story of the latter in an orderly way, showing considerable skill in the arrangement of his material, and giving valuable information about one of the most influential Americans of our time. Lord Oxford's oft quoted remark that the Great Commoner was a product peculiar to our nation is justified by this book.

But the work loses focus when it comes to the Dayton episode. After all, the monkey trial was incidental to Mr. Bryan's public career. His views on the Bible and its impeccable authority had been familiar to his fellow citizens long before his final appearance at Dayton to defend them. Nor does Mr. Warner do justice to Mr. Bryan's positive and constructive gifts. Surely the man who was thrice chosen by the democratic party as its candidate for the presidency was something more than the incomplete character depicted in these pages. Something more, I repeat, for in that moreness were the counterbalancing traits which are here unduly suppressed.

We still have to wait for a satisfactory biography of one of the most persuasive and popular leaders of our period. It cannot be written by authors who are prejudiced against the man or his intellectual methods.

QUESTION.

Buffalo.

I had a wife I was learning to love more and more as the days passed and just beginning in a measure to realize what a wonderful treasure and companion she was when she passed away after a very brief illness. Since that time I seem to be unable to get hold of myself and drift from one job to another without making any progress.

Feeling just a little blue now because of unemployment, I thought I would ask you for a word of encouragement. I am about at my wits' end.

ANSWER.

Of course you are at your wits end. Who expects a man staggering beneath this blow to act as if nothing serious had happened to him? Your way is dark and its loneliness is only appreciated by those who have trodden it. Yet it leads to her and to a fellowship with her which death cannot sever again.

So why not pull yourself together and press on till the goal is in sight? Perhaps you relied a little too much on her and her translation removed the prop that held you up. If this sorrow causes you to stand erect on your own feet, it will not be without benefit.

The finest tribute you can pay to her memory is to behave in a courageous and hopeful manner, and could she speak to you she would request this of you. Place her ideals before you. Resolve to realize them, to earn your bread and also do some good in the world. Take the sting out of your grief by assuaging the griefs of others.

When a famous poet buried his poems in his wife's coffin he acted weakly under the impulse of his loss. Bury nothing worth preserving where your wife's dust sleeps. She is not there. She awaits you above as her eternal companion and the meeting must be well made. I believe it will be and that from now on you will gird yourself for the fight that wins the crown.

A Canadian Correspondent's View of Mr. Hoover and His Policies

(Tom King In The Winnipeg Free Press.)

President Hoover has been only ten months in office. That is not a long time, but it is often the most important period of any president's administration. Woodrow Wilson, after ten months in office, could point with pride to many great achievements. During that time the tariff had been revised by the passage of the Underwood act, and the federal reserve banking system had been established. Even President Harding had many useful laws, including the one establishing a budget system, passed during the first few months of his administration. Yet Mr. Hoover's administration up to date has been barren of legislative achievement. The half finished tariff bill is about all that has been seriously atttempted. True, the federal farm board was created, but that was only an experiment which to date has not functioned to any great extent.

It may be said that the fault is not with Mr. Hoover. The president is an able man, with marked executive ability, and he has a strong hold upon the confidence of the people. As an executive, he is probably superior to many of his predecessors. If his administration has accomplished little, the cause is to be sought in the inability of the president to deal with the congressional situation.

Mr. Hoover is an engineer, and seems unable to fathom the congressional mind. This was painfully apparent when he undertook to deal with the tariff. There was no demand from any quarter for a general tariff revision, but there was possibly some room for a readjustment of some of the tariff duties. It was plain to Mr. Hoover when he brought congress to Washington in extra session, that congress ought to make the necessary readjustments but do nothing more with the tariff. Yet everyone except Mr. Hoover foresaw what was certain to happen. True, the president in his message to congress recommended that the revision of the tariff be "limited." He might as well have turned a lot of hungry horses into a cornfield with the advice that they eat moderately. The moment the house committee on ways and means began to hold public hearings a multitude of people rushed to Washington demanding tariff favors. Lawyers and lobbyists were retained and publicity men set to work. Those interested in the tariff duty on sugar, for example, began an expenditure on propaganda which soon mounted up to more than a million dollars. Whatever may have been the good intentions of the president, there is no one today that does not admit that he made a fatal mistake in stirring up the tariff question.

Mr. Hoover was elected with an unmistakable mandate to enforce the prohibition amendment. In both houses of congress the drys had a four-to-one majority. He had only to go ahead and enforce the law, confident that congress would supply him with all the men and money he needed for that purpose. It was quite apparent that the prohibition enforcement activities of the government, which were divided between the treasury and the justice departments, should be consolidated under the attorney general. A bill for that purpose could have been passed by congress last April without any difficulty. Indeed, it was so simple a procedure that Mr. Hoover at one time thought he could make the necessary adjustment by an executive order, without even going to congress.

A president and congress fresh from the people after a presidential election usually march forward with great enthusiasm. Under that impulse they usually accomplish more in the first year than during the three remaining years of the administration. Yet to date, the Hoover administration has practically no achievement in the legislative field. The senate is out of line with the president and the house of representatives. Nine months have been consumed in a quarrel over the tariff which will continue perhaps three months longer. The prohibitory legislation really needed by the administration could, and should, have been passed almost without discussion last April. Now it is in such shape that floodgates of oratory will be opened at both ends of the capitol, and nothing much will be thought of this session except the tariff and prohibition. And this is the all-important session, because nothing can be hoped for from the short "lame duck" session which assembles next December.

Here and There

(Kansas City Star.)

Kansas stormed into the Union sixty-nine years ago today as an apostle of ideals and national righteousness. She has been storming about ever since, never wildly radical, mind you: just open-minded and experimental.

After the first flush of war idealism she became the feudal barony of the railroads. Revolting against that, she installed the populist regime. Disappointed in that, she returned to the old reliable G. O. P. Its tempo did not suit, and she fell into step with Roosevelt. In the ranks of the progressives she felt at home, and she is still marching with Capper and Allen and Reed.

She was early in the field with prohibition, railroad regulation, Mary Ellen Lease, the guarantee of bank deposits, Carry Nation, the industrial court, William Allen White, the regulation of railroads and Ed Howe. Her guiding principle has been the text from First Thessalonians: "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good."

As Old Bill White wrote in the Emporia Gazette in his comment on Mrs. Asquith: "There is just one way to stop progress in America, and that is to hire some hungry earthquake to come along and gobble up Kansas. But, say, Margot, listen! That earthquake would have an awful case of indigestion for two or three epochs afterward."

PARAGRAPHS

Americanism: Pretending to be smarter, braver, tougher, richer and more righteous than we are—kidding ourselves because lack the courage to face life as it is.

You might write something to shame the fellow whose head is swelled by a little authority, but alas! the poor oaf falls asleep when he tries to read.

The talkies accomplish some good. They bring out a new tune before an old one becomes a pest.

America, the home of freedom and fair play and sporting regard for the under dog, and the only land that bullies witnesses.

Baffle Board for Dynamic Speaker.

When mounting the dynamic speaker on a baffle and the entire outfit is used without a cabinet, it is advisable to use a board about three feet square. The baffle can be made of wood or other suitable material, as celotex or beaver board, to the thickness of three-quarters or one inch. It is customary to place the speaker in the center of a baffle of the open type. Should the speaker be mounted in a cabinet such as a small music cabinet, the baffle need not be so large, as the cabinet will have a resonating effect. In the event that the speaker is built into a cabinet, it advisable to locate it three or four inches above or below in a direct line with the center of the baffle. This reduces the tendency of the speaker to emphasize the low notes. It is customary to drill the hole in the baffle as wide as the inside diameter of the metal frame on the speaker. The speaker should be fastened securely to the back of the baffle board with a soft felt ring between the frame and the board. If the speaker is mounted in a cabinet, it will be necessary to drill one large vent or two or three smaller ones in the back of the cabinet.

Radio Digest

When to Replace Tubes.

Tubes become soft with age and if an excessive bluishglow is observed, when the tube is in operation, it indicates the presence of gas. In this case, the tubes should be replaced.

Worth Remembering.

If tubes have become loosened in their bases, and if allowed to remain loose, one is likely to bring the plate and filament leads inside the tube into contact. The result will be a short circuit that may blow out the tubes or injure a transformer. The remedy is to bind the tube firmly to the base with friction tape before the short is made.

Importance of Short Leads.

Have the leads as short and as direct as possible when building a set. Long leads are likely to cause feed-back and oscillation in any circuit, and in A. C. sets have the added disadvantage of causing hum. It is the grid leads particularly that must be kept short, but the plate leads require almost as much care when the set is being laid out. The length of the filament leads is unimportant. It is also a good idea to keep plate and grid leads well separated, say two or three inches apart, and still better not to have them parallel or almost so. Filament leads may be as close to each other as convenient, but are better kept some distance away from plate and grid leads. In A. C. sets, the filament leads should be twisted together and kept well away from plate and grid leads. In sets where any leads must be long, it is often advantageous to shield all grid leads or all plate leads. Filament leads need not be shielded.

Faulty Motors Foe to Good Radio Reception.

Motor driven devices are frequent causes of annoyances in the radio receiver. Among these are washing machines, vacuum cleaners, electric refrigerators, fans, beverage mixers, etc. Even if the motors are in perfect condition, there is likely to be some noise by their brushes making and breaking the circuit as they travel over the commutator. The only remedy that will be satisfactory is to repair the motor, if it is defective. Should the sparking not be severe, the brushes may be replaced and the commutator wiped off with a rag moistened in cleaning fluid. It should then be wiped thoroughly dry and allowed to stand for a time before it is run, so that the cleaning fluid cannot be ignited. In extreme cases, it will be found that the commutator is burned or scored. If these marks are deep, due to long neglect, the surface of the commutator will have to be re-ground. This cannot be done at home. It must be taken to a machine shop, put on a lathe and turned down. It the defects are only on the surface, they can be polished off with fine sandpaper. This is done by wrapping the sandpaper around a small block of wood, one surface of which is as long as the commutator face. This block is held to bear firmly against the face and the armature or shaft rotated until the face has been rendered smooth and clean. The residual dust is then carefully wiped away, for if it were allowed to remain, it would soon wear grooves into the face when the motor was run.

For the Notebook.

Occasionally new acid will restore a battery, but should only be handled by experienced workmen.

Distortion will be particularly noticeable on a high-power set on local stations with an oversize antenna.

In constructing a set, care should be taken to see that all joints are well soldered and all nuts screwed down tight over lock washers.

Delay in replacing run - down "C" batteries may cause tubes—especially power tubes—to have their active life greatly shortened. Without sufficient "C" bias, the electronic stream is greatly increased, and the active coating on the filament is soon lost.

Radiograms.

The American radio industry now has facilities to build 15,000,000 sets a year.

Radio owners are taxed $3.65 a year in India. There are six broadcasting stations in the country.

Of the 81 broadcasting stations in Canada, 13 belong to newspapers, six to gram brokers, three to religious organizations, 13 to the Canadian National Railways, eight to radio societies and universities, 15 to radio manufacturers and retailers, and the remainder to private individuals and divers manufacturing companies.

Arranges New Music For Sunday Program

GUSTAV HAENSCHEN.

Some of the music that made "Sally" one of the best-loved of Broadway musical shows will be given both vocal and two-piano presentation when Frank Luther, radio tenor, and Mary McCoy, light opera soprano, sing Gustav Haenschen's arrangement of "If I'm Dreaming" and Ohman and Arden, piano duo, give it a dash of syncopated rhythm during the broadcast of the Choral orchestra Sunday evening over the NBC network. "Sally," which Marilyn Miller made famous, is now a talking singing picture and was shown in Lincoln last week.

Haenschen, well-known radio orchestra conductor, who is director of the Choral orchestra on alternate weeks with Frank Black, also has an adaption of "Marcheta" which will be featured by the group. The program will be transmitted through WOW, Omaha, and WDAF, Kansas City, from 7:3 to8 p. m., central time.

Many Nebraska Retailers, Who Have Rounded Out More Than A Quarter of A Century of Service to Be Honored

oldest son, who has been with his father for many years, taking an active part in managing the business and also managing the branch store in Arapahoe before the war. Dr. Hugh F. Freidell, a graduate of the University of Nebraska and of Rush Medical college, is practicing in Santa Barbara, Cal., and Mrs. Rhea Freidell Schultz, his only daughter, is a university graduate, where she was president of Delta Zeta sorority, and graduated from the Lincoln Business college. She resides in Omaha with her husband, J. F. Schultz, who is studying at the college of medicine.

Mr. Freidell owns and operates a stock of dry goods, men's and ladies ready-to-wear, shoes, and millinery in a modern business building. Mr. Freidell says he has never inherited or been given a dollar in his life, to help him tide over the hard years. Whenever he needed money he borrowed it, and his credit has always been good for the amount asked.

Laughs and Tears.

He does not look his seventy-two years, and he is active in business and social life. As he reminiscenced on the past, he said:

"Fifty-eight years, jumping counters, as I we used to call it, is a long, long time.

"If I could but have the power to reproduce a talking picture in colors, as I pause and reflect back over my checkered pathway of some seventy-two years, that has sprinkled my hair with gray, and filled my life with the orange blossoms of happiness and the thorns of sadness. I'm sure you would get many a hearty laugh as well as shed a few tears along with me.

"I thank the Lord he has spared my life as long as he has and helped me to bear the long grind of service through these years I have served the public. My life seems to have been fashioned for service and to serve is all I know to do. If fate will be kind to me, I'll be good for many more years."

Paralleling in interest Mr. Freidell's business life is that of Oscar Roeser of Grand Island. Mr. Roeser has been in Nebraska fifty-three years this coming May and he opened his store two years previous to the date the Dorchester merchant went into business for himself, nad his working life also extends far back into his youth.

Mr. Roeser was born January 4, 1852, the son of William Roeser, in what is now Freeland, Mich. He assisted his father in the management of his general store for more than ten years, and was later employed as a teacher in the village schools of Freeland.

Nears Half Century.

In May, 1877, he went to Grand Island to work for his uncle, the late Fred Hedde, as manager and salesman in his lumber yard.

A little more than four years later, November 1, 1881, he organized the business he was to operate for the next forty-nine years, and is still operating, and is doing business in the same city block. With the late Louis Veit as a partner, the grocery store was opened as Veit and Roeser.

Exactly five years later, the partnership was dissolved, and Mr. Roeser opened a retail grocery and chinaware store, where he is still in business. The quarters were enlarged with the purchase of the adjoining building three years ago. Mr. Roeder bought the first carload of soap shipped into Grand Island, and before California supplied the market, shipped Turkish prunes in large casks, direct from New York.

In 1884, Mr. Roeser was united in marriage with Miss Minna Stolley, daughter of the pioneer, William Stolley, who settled in Hall county in 1857. They have three children, two sons and a daughter, August 1, 1925, his sons, Emil F. Roeser and Oscar F. Roeser became partners, changing the name to Oscar Roeser and Sons.

Forty-four and one-half years ago, Philip Swanson went into the general merchandise business at Bertrand, and he is now the oldest in the business in Phelps county. He started in the general dry goods trade in Holdrege March 12, 1884 in company with F. Johnson. October 1, 1885, the two opened a branch at Bertrand, and he has remained there continuously. Sunday, January 25, the Philip Swanson company had its first fire, which was quite disastrous.

Started in 1889.

In the forty-year-going-on-forty-one-years class is Nelson Hald of Dannebrog, who has had a general merchandise store there since September, 1889. Mr. Hald, in partnership with A. L. Mojonier, purchased the business from Henry Hansen, September 14, 1889, and the firm became known as Hald and Mojonier.

Three years later, Mr. Mojoinier sold his interest to M. F. Winchester, and the name changed to Hald and Winchester. In 1917, Mr. Hald purchased Mr. Winchester's interest, and has since continued the business under his name alone. In 1902, the old business building was remodeled, and in 1909, the old part of the building was removed, and a new structure of brick erected and is the building now used.

Mr. Hald was born in Denmark in November, 1862, and came to this country with his parents in 1870. The family settled in western Arkansas, and after the death of his parents, Mr. Hald went as a clerk in a general merchandise store to Chatham, Ill., remaining there six years. In 1891, he was married to Miss Valnette A. Jones of Morrisville, N. Y. Mr. Hald has been a member of the school board eighteen years and has been several years on the village board.

F. B. Datel of the Datel and Datel department store of North Bend has been in business for thirty-nine years, thirty-one years of which have been spent in North Bend, and is one of the oldest business men there, in point of view of continuous business. His first investment was $1,500, and from this small beginning, his business has grown to one of the largest general stores in that part of the state. He owns a well-equipped building, a two story brick structure.

A Charter Member.

Mr. Datel is a charter member of the Federation of Nebraska Retailers, and served on the executive board the first three years after its organization. Born in Iowa, Mr. Datel came to Nebraska when only five years of age. From 1891 to 1899, he operated a general store in Morse Bluff, opening his business in North Bend the latter year. He is also on the board of directors of the First National bank.

Gilmore Brothers of Auburn have been associated in business since 1882, when their father, Andrew H. Gilmore, removed with his family from Brownville, and established a general store in the frame building, where the Opera House block now stands. Between 1882 and 1889, the firm was known as A. H. Gilmore and son, Albert D. Gilmore, the oldest son being associated with his father. When W. T. Reed bought into the firm, for a short time it was known as Reed and Gilmore. The store was later sold and the building was razed by fire in 1889.

In its place, the Hentzel block or Opera House block was erected. Andrew H. Gilmore and his son, Walter, bought the Graff and Hamilton store, in 1891, and the following year in June, Paul A. Gilmore became identified with the firm, known then as A. H. Gilmore and Sons. The business prospered and three rooms were occupied as a department store, with large lines of dry goods, shoes, clothing, and furnishings.

Grew Rapidly.

The store remained in this location until 1903, when it was moved to a new building west of the court house, which had been erected for the firm, the Gilmore - Armstrong company, with J. W. Armstrong the new partner. New departments were added, and the firm continued in this fashion for seven years. In that year, 1910, W. A. and P. A. Gilmore took over the dry goods, clothing, and shoes, continuing as Gilmore Brothers, and the other departments were sold.

This business was conducted until 1926, when it was thought advisable to reduce the stock. In the fall of that year, the clothing and shoe departments were sold, and the following spring, Gilmore Brothers, or Gilmores' store, as it is familiarly known, opened a dry goods and women's wear store on the first and second floors of a building formerly occupied by a dry goods firm.

The father and the eldest brother have died. The mother, Mrs. Sarah J. Gilmore, is in her ninetieth year, and resides with her son, Paul Gilmore.

Thirty-six years ago this month, J. H. Eller opened his general merchandise store in Clay Center, and he has continued in business since that time, notwithstanding many trials. Mr. Eller was born on an Iowa farm in 1861, and emigrated by covered wagon to Nebraska in 1883.

He began business in Clay Center under the firm name of Eller and Heasly. After two years of drouth and borrowed capital coming due, he merged the business with H. J. Mitchell, and operating under the firm name of Mitchell and Heasly for six years. Heasly and Eller Brothers followed in proper succession for a few years, and then the firm of Eller and Detweiler was organzed, and continued for five years. Mr. Eller has operated his store as the J. H. Eller and Company for the last eighteen years.

In the spring of 1885, A. L. Anderson, at the age of seventeen arrived in New York, "duty free," as he says. After passing the required inspection at Castle Garden, he left immediately for the west, arriving in Wahoo. With no knowledge of the language, Mr. Anderson says it was natural for him to seek work with a Swedish farmer, one of his countrymen.

Opened Department Store.

Sixteen years later, he was one of four partners to form the Smith-Hultin-Anderson company and to open a department store in Wahoo. The late J. V. Smith was in charge of dry goods, T. P. Anderson of clothing, C. P. Hultin of the grocery department, and A. L. Anderson of the shoe department.

In the intervening years, A. L. Anderson, gave up his farm work, having had little previous experience in that line, and came to Lincoln early in 1887, securing a position with Gustin and Harpham, now Harpham brothers. Though the wages were small, he received some very good advice from the late J. C. Harpham, the president, who proved to be one of his most intimate friends. Having had some retail experience in Sweden, after two years he left the saddlery firm to accept a position in a dry goods store for a short time.

Late in 1889, he went into the shoe department of the H. R. Nissley company, then one of Lincoln's leading department stores. During the hard years of 1893-94, this firm liquidated to its creditors and Mayer brothers bought the shoe stock. As the failure had left Mr. Anderson without work, he was offered a position in Mayers' shoe department, and he remained there until 1901, when the four men bought out the old pioneer Joseph and Graf company department store in Wahoo.

Mr. Anderson says:

"I have been a member of the Federation of Nebraska Retailers from the beginning, and have had the honor to serve as president two years, and have had the confidence of its members to serve on the various boards for a great part of its existence. As far as I can remember, I do not believe I have missed a convention and but very few board meetings."

W. L. Bover came to Battle Creek from Virginia in February, 1896, when eighteen years of age. For four years he was employed on a farm, and in 1899

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor.—So I am perspicacious for hazarding a guess at your identity? On further thought, I have decided that you can't be a woman and be so secretive. And maybe I am writing letters to a strange man! Horrors! Enuf nonsense.

Do you know whether Greta Garbo ever receives or reads her fan mail?

I know nearly everything else about her. Yes, I've "gone Garbo," after all my efforts to dislike actresses. I could think of no higher honor than to be called her friend. Now I want to go to Sweden and see her loved native land.

Who was Mrs. Robert Armstrong before she was married?

Is Conrad Nagel unpopular in Hollywood? How old is he?

How old is Polly Moran, Louise Fazenda and Phyllis Haver?

Of the following, I would like to know the age, height, coloring and matrimonial state: Don Alvarado, Charles Delaney, Jose Mojica, Skeets Gallagher and June Collyer.

When will we see "The Son of the Gods" and "Peacock Alley?"

Please don't deport me for writing so often and so much, because you are such a great help. You see, I'm the local "movie editor" more or less. There there is a discussion to settle or a question to ask, they generally come to me.

Have you been to Hollywood just recently? How often do you go?

MOVIE ENTHUSIAST.
York, Neb.

If you were writing letters to a strange man, you would have one consolation, at least you would not be the only one. There's safety in numbers, you know.

Greta, like all of the other stars, receives and reads her most interesting letters. The requests for photographs are turned over to the studio. It would be impossible for the popular players to read all of the thousands of letters that they receive monthly.

You'll have to hand it to Greta. She gets them all, sooner or later.

Mrs. Armstrong was known professionally as Jeanne Kent.

Conrad Nagel is very well liked and respected in Hollywood. He is a thinker, as well as an actor, and takes an active interest in community welfare work. Mr. Nagel is 33.

Bob Steele was born in 1903, and he's very quiet about his matrimonial status.

John Barrymore is 47. "The Man From Blankney's," follows "General Crack" to the screen.

Polly Moran was born in 1880; Louise Fazenda is 34, and Phyllis Haver is just 30.

Don Alvarado lacks an inch of being a six footer. He is married and has dark hair and eyes. Age 26.

Mr. [illegible]elaney is the same height as Don, 32 years old and married. He has dark hair and eyes.

Jose Mojica is six feet tall, and brunet. He is 29, but I've never heard that he has a wife.

Skeets was married not long ago. He has had gray hair since childhood, and his eyes are blue. He is five feet seven inches tall, and a little shy about telling his age.

Miss Colly[illegible]r is single, five feet three in height and has medium brown hair and gray eyes.

"The Son of the Gods" should put in its appearance in your town soon, as it has already been released. "Peacock Alley" is ready for release, too.

I keep in very close touch with Hollywood, and go there whenever the "spirit moves me," several times a year.

Dear Movie Editor.—This is my first letter and I hope you will find room for it in your column.

What were the latest pictures, and what will be the next pictures of the following: Sue Carol, Clara Bow, Colleen Moore, Al Jolson, Buster Keaton and Buddy Rogers?

Are Sue Carol and Buddy Rogers married? If so, to whom?

Whom did Buster Keaton marry?

Thanking you very much, I am
QUESTION-BOX.
Deshler, Neb.

Of course there's room for you. We hope you will become a regular visitor.

Sue Carol is working on "Road House." "The Lone Star Ranger" is her most recent release. Clara Bow has made no picture since "The Saturday Night Kid." She expects to start work on one soon, probably "Quarantined."

"Footlights and Fools" is Colleen's most recent effort, and she is also "between pictures" at present.

Al Jolson has completed "Mammy" to follow his "Say It With Songs."

Buster Keaton is working on "On the Set" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

Buddy Rogers is single, but Sue recently married Nick Stuart.

Mrs. Buster Keaton was formerly known as Natalie Talmadge. She is a sister to Norma and Constance.

Dear Movie Editor.—It has been a long time since I have written to you, but they say "a bad penny always returns." When I wrote before, I wrote with another person; this time, I'm alone.

I cannot see how movie fans can slam Clara Bow. I don't think she's too fat. She is certainly clever and I'm for her any old time. Please tell me a little of her life's history.

I think Nancy Carroll is the sweetest thing. How old is she? She and Buddy Rogers sure would make a swell couple, to my notion, but I guess they don't think so.

Please tell me something about Buddy Rogers, and John Mack Brown.

Didn't the Duncan sisters play in "It's a Great Life." I recently saw them play but could not recall the name of the show, unless it was that. Will you tell me about them, their age, birthplace, etc?

Well, I better sign off for this time.

AN INTERESTED FAN,
Hardy, Neb.

Don't neglect us so long again.

Clara's climb to the top was not a bed of roses by any means. She can tell a sordid tale of her trips from studio to studio in an effort to win the part that was to be hers by right of winning a beauty contest put on by a magazine in 1922. Her first bit was cut from the picture, because Clara knew nothing about make-up, and she was supposed to cry in the scene. The tears made a wreck of her appearance.

It was Elmer Clifton who first realized Clara's screen possibilities and gave her the role of the little stowaway in "Down to the Sea in Ships." B. P. Schulberg then put her under contract, and it was after he joined Paramount in 1925, that Clara got her first real "break." She has had four years of fame, and that isn't so bad for a "skyrocket." The talkies so far have not been too kind to the little redhead. She has been dieting, and has lost several pounds, so there will probably be no complaints about her weight in her next picture.

John Mack Brown was born in Alabama in 1904, and had won fame there as a football star before he even thought of going into pictures. It was while he was in California for a football game that George Fawcett happened to see him and persuaded him to try his luck on the screen. His first lead was as a basketball coach in Marion Davies' picture, "The Fair Co-Ed."

Mr. Brown's big screen "break" was with Mary Pickford in "Coquette." He is married and has a small daughter of whom he is very proud.

Buddy Rogers is another of the favored few who have played opposite Mary Pickford on the screen, but Buddy has been a favorite since his first picture, "Fascinating Youth." He is a graduate of the Paramount school of acting, and has proven that he learned his lessons well.

Buddy's father was a newspaper publisher at Olathe, Kas., and Buddy went to the university to learn journalism, and probably would have followed in his father's footsteps, had the theater manager of the town not sent his picture into the Paramount school. Now the whole Rogers family is enjoying life in Hollywood. Buddy gets more fan letters than Valentino did at the height of his career, so there's no wolf howling about his door.

And don't try to make any match between Buddy and Nancy, because Nancy has a perfectly good husband of her own, Jack Kirkland, and a baby daughter.

You were correct in your assumption that the Duncan sisters played in "It's a Great Life." They made one picture previous to that, a silent version of their "Topsy and Eva" skit. They are native born Californians, right at home in Los Angeles. The event occurred—well thirty some odd years ago, according to the home town folks, although the girls are not interested in the age question. Rosita is the older. Both are blonde. Vivian is supposed to be a little more beautiful, and also more reserved than Rosita. It is Vivian who is engaged to Nils Asther.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you have your welcome sign still on your door as I have a load of questions to ask you.

My favorite type of picture is a cowboy type. My favorite stars in this type are Ken Maynard, Tom Mix and Hoot Gibson. Why aren't there more westerns released?

Is Pola Negri making any more pictures?

What has become of Natacha Rambova? Is she going to make any more pictures? If so when?

What is Ken Maynard's next picture? By the way, what is Douglas Fairbanks, sr.'s next picture?

Would you please give me the biography of the late Rudolph Valentino? Will any of Rudy's pictures be released in Lincoln? Who lives in Falcon Lair? Have any of the furnishings been changed?

MR. TONY.

I keep the "welcome sign" well polished and prominently displayed.

Western pictures are still made in quantity production, but they have taken on so many airs, you hardly recognize them as such. Just look at the elegance of such westerners as "In Old Arizona," "The Virginia," "Romance of the Rio Grande," and such features,—just plain westerners at heart, but with sound and dialogue added. Ken Maynard will even have a theme song in his next Universal production, "Songs of the Saddle."

Mr. Fairbanks is preparing to start another feature, but the title has not yet been announced. "Taming of the Shrew" was his last effort.

Miss Rambova is not making pictures at present, and there are no future picture plans announced for her. Her pictures were not the "wows" that she expected they would be.

Pola has picture contracts abroad, but she is through on the American screen for the present. With the new production order, of a foreign version of every feature, Pola may come back again.

There's no immediate prospect of any re-issues of Valentino's films, but since there has been quite a call for them, some of his better pictures may be shown again some time in the future, particularly "The Sheik," and "The Son of the Sheik," two of his two most noteworthy hits.

My impression is that the furnishings of his home were all sold. Mr. and Mrs. Curtiz have been occupying the place.

Valentino's real name was Gugliemi, and he was born in Castellaneta, Italy in 1895. He attended an agricultural college there and found work as a landscape gardener when he first came to this country.

He later danced in vaudeville with Bonnie Glass and Joan Sawyer, and other well known vaudeville players. Valentino had had considerable work on the screen with Mae Murray, Clara Kimball Young and Dorothy Philips, before he was chosen by Rex Ingram for "The Four Horesmen of the Apocalypse." It was this picture that started him on his way to fame. He was five feet eleven inches tall, weighed 154 and had black hair and eyes.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the first time I have written, but I read your column every Sunday and enjoy it very much.

When was Fred Thompson born and when did he die? Is Silver King his own horse? Is he still in the movies? Who played opposite Fred Thomson in "The Two Gun Man" and "Arizona Nights." Has Mr. Thomson a son? Is he going to take his place?

I don't see why they can't leave Clara Bow alone.

I hope to see this letter soon. Yours truly, JUST ANOTHER FAN.
Dorchester, Neb.

Come often now, so we may become better acquainted.

Mr. Thomson died just a year ago. He was born in Pasadena in 1890. Silver King was his own horse, trained by him for picture work. Mrs. Thomson, who is now Mrs. George Hill, has pensioned Silver King, and he will not be seen in pictures any more. There's a young son, but whether or not he will follow in his daddy's footsteps remains to be seen. His mother is a famous scenario writer, and his stepfather is very well known as a director, so he should find a place in the movies somewhere.

I have no cast for "Arizona Nights," but Olive Hasbrouck played with Mr. Thomson in "The Two Gun Man."

Dear Movie Editor— This is my first letter to you and I hope I am welcome. I went to see "Sunny Side Up" and had quite an argument about the stars. Would you please give me information about the man that played the role of "Eric Swenson" the Swede? What is his nationality, age color of hair and eyes, and is he from the stage.

I would also like to know about the girl that played the role of "Bee" with Janet Gaynor, if she same from the stage, and her nationality, age, color of hair and eyes and whether she is a new star in fil mland.

Rather a long letter, but will ring off. Thank you so much.

A NEW FAN.

We are glad you had the argument, since it precipitated you into our midst.

El Brendel was the man who had the role of "Eric Swenson" in "Sunny Side Up." He is a blonde, and Swedish in private life as well as on the screen. For a great many years, he was on the vaudeville stage as one-half of the comedy team, Brendel and Bert. "Bert" is Mrs. Brendel in private life. Mr. Brendel made his singing screen debut in "The Cockeyed World." He has played in "Hot For Paris," and is now working in "The Golden Calf."

Marjorie White, the "Bee" of "Sunny Side Up," is another recruit from the vaudeville stage. She was with Eddie Buzzell in "Lady Fingers" before she made her hit in "Sunny Side Up." She's blonde, still in her 'teens, and is also working in "The Golden Calf." You will probably see her often hereafter, as she's going over big.

Dear Movie Editor— I am a real fan. I am very much interested in the "Answers to Movie Fans." I read them every Sunday.

Now get ready to answer a lot of questions, because I am going to inquire about these movie actors and actresses. How old Jack Oakie, Stanley Smith, Helen Kane, the Duncan sisters, Robert Montgomery, Anita Page and Richard Dix. What are their real names, color hair and eyes, if they are married and to whom?

What is Stanley's next picture with Nancy Carroll?

The first time I saw Robert Montgomery in "So This Is College," I thought he was keen. I saw him with Norma Shearer in "Their Own Desire," and it was good.

I love to hear Helen Kane's baby talk and also to hear her sing. I want to see "Pointed Heels" this week.

I know quite a lot about movie actors and actresses from reading the magazines my sister gets. I don't care what people say about these actors and actresses, I like them all, especially Clara Bow. Most everybody likes her.

I am sure you will hear from me again soon. Thank you. FRANCES.

It is always a pleasure to have such an ardent fan visit us.

Mr. Oakie is known in his home town, Sedalia, Mo., as Lewis Offield and he has medium brown hair and blue eyes. Jack is single and 26 years old.

Stanley Smith has light hair and blue-gray eyes. He is in the early twenties, and still single. Stanley will be seen with Nancy again in "Honey."

Helen Kane's real name is Schroeder, and I've never heard of a husband. She is a brunet, just old enough to be interesting.

The Duncan sisters are both blondes. Rosita is the older, and they are in the early thirties. Both are single, but Vivian is engaged to Nils Asther. They go by their own names.

Robert's brown hair and eyes seem to be attracting lots of attention just now. He is 25, and single, unless he's holding out on us.

Anita is single, also, very blonde, and 19. Her name was originally Pomares.

Richard Dix was once known by the family name, Brimmer. He is one of Hollywood's bachelors, and has escaped matrimony for 35 years. Richard has dark hair and eyes.

ROY W—I regret that I have no additional information to give you concerning Robert Castle. He played the role of "Andre" in the silent version of "Marianne," with Marion Davies.

Screen Siftings

Nursemaid To Mule—Stepin Fetchit has moved his make-up box from the Fox lot to the Hal E. Roach studio at Culver City. He will play nursemaid to a mule in the new Our Gang comedy. Stepin made his first screen hit in "Hearts in Dixie."

Janney Takes Lead — William Janney has been cast for the leading role opposite Mary Nolan in her new Universal production, "Young Love." Mae Busch and Alice Lake, two old screen favorites, will also be seen in the picture, and Ralf Harolde is cast in an outstanding role. "Young Love" is based on the well known play, "Carnival," by William Doyle. Lew Collins has charge of the megaphone.

Alice Gets Vacation—Alice White is taking a short vocation after her strenuous work in "Show Girl in Hollywood," before she starts work on her next picture, "Sweet Mamma." The new picture will be made under the direction of Ray Enright who was responsible for the success of "Song of the West" and "Golden Dawn."

Filmed In Busch Gardens— The famous Busch gardens in Pasadena, one of the show spots of California form the background for the exteriors of the new Warner Brothers vitaphone production, "Hold Everything."

Five Girls Suppport Buddy — Buddy Rogers will be overwhelmed with beautiful girls in his next starring picture "Safety in Numbers," which is to follow "Young Eagles." Five girls will support Buddy in the picture, four of whom have already been seleceted. They include Kathryn Crawford, Carole Lombard, Josephine Dunn and Virginia Bruce. Josephine Dunn was with Mr. Rogers in the Paramount pictures school, and also appeared with him in the graduation film, "Fascinating Youth."

Nagel Is In Demand — Conrad Nagel is so much in demand by other studios since the advent of the talking film that he barely has time to register at his home lot, Metro-Goldwn-Mayer. Just at present Conrad is working on one of the leading masculine roles in Norma Shearer's new picture, "The Divorcee." As soon as he completes his part in "The Divorcee," Mr. Nagel will take his make-up box over to the First National studio, where he has an important role in "Jail Break." Chester Morris is the leading man in "The Divorcee" and the all-star supporting cast is composed of Robert Montgomery, Florence Eldridge, Tyler Brooke, Zelda Sears and Mary Doran.

Screen Siftings

Gray To Sing Again — Lawrence Gray will play opposite Marion Davies again in her new picture, "The Gay Nineties." Mr. Gray was Miss Davies' leading man in her first talking picture, "Marianne." He will sing again in "The Gay Nineties," in the role of the romantic lover.

Lon Chaney In Talkies — Lon Chaney has finally capitulated, and will hereafter be heard as well as seen on the screen. Mr. Chaney has held out against talking pictures for some time ,and had almost decided to make another silent film, so his decision to appear on the audible screen will be of considerable interest to his Fans. Mr. Chaney's new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer calls for his services, exclusively, for the next five years.

Work On 23 Pictures — Twenty-three pictures are somewhere in the process of production at the Paramount studio, making it the biggest picture-making drive ever launched at that studio. Eight pictures are in the cutting and editing rooms, seven are ready for release and eight more are in the "shooting" stage. The most pretentious picture underway at present is "Paramount on Parade," in which thirty-five of the Paramount celebrities will take part.

Co-Stars Get Married — Grant Withers and Loretta Young took enough time off between scenes of their new co-starring picture, "The Agony Column" to slip over to Arizona and get married. Their engagement was announced several weeks ago.

The secretary can be consulted as to open dates. The story of the opera, an intimate discussion of the musical setting and illustrations of famous songs from this opera, have been prepared for those who wish a review of "Carmen" before its presentation here in March.

The Chicago Civic Opera Co., which will present Bizet's opera "Carmen" at the University of Nebraska coliseum, Thursday, March 20, was greeted with crowded houses last week in the first appearances of a series of sixteen performances in Boston.

Boston is the opening point on the Chicago organization's tour and the artists started the Boston season with Wagner's "Die Walkere." Press notices received by John K. Selleck, business manager for the Lincoln guarantors, indicate the Chicago civic opera was accorded a real reception.

Three artists, who will appear in Lincoln, were members of the cast which presented "Die Waulkere" the opening night in Boston. Maria Olszewska, who will sing "Carmen" here, appeared as "Fricka". Alice d'Hermanoy and Ada Paggi, who will appear as "Frasquita" and "Mercedes" the two other gypsy girls in "Carmen" at the coliseum sang the roles of "Orthlinde" and "Grimgerde" in the Boston presentation of the Wagner opera.

The travel chart of the Chicago civic opera's two month's trans-continental tour indicates "Carmen," the opera to be presented in Lincoln next March, is one of the most popular with music-lovers on the tour.

The Bizet work will be presented six times, other cities to hear the Chicago company in the popular opera are Boston, Mass.; Louisville, Ky.; Shreveport, La.; San Antonio, Tex.; and Tulsa, Okla.

Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast has just returned from Chicago where he attended the annual meeting of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal church February 3 to 6.

The registrar reports an unusually satisfactory enrollment for the second semester, comparatively few students having dropped out. Most of the discontinuances are accounted for by students taking teaching positions or other employment. Some of these have completed the work for graduation. The number of new enrollments nearly equals the discontinuances.

Prof. P. M. Gregg gave an illustrated lecture Wednesday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church at Wahoo on "Lincoln's Life in Indiana a Century Ago." He will give the same address in abbreviated form before the Wesleyan convocation Wednesday. Professor Gregg will be one of the speakers at a meeting of the Nebraska Schoolmaster's club in Omaha February 11. The major theme will be character education. The land will grow nothing but figs; the diet is almost wholly of sea foods. In all our wars prior to the World war, said Dr. Fox, this island has played a very important part. Francis Scott Key was skirting Tangier when he wrote "The Star Spangled Banner." The present inhabitants are of purely English extraction, the ancestors of whom bought the island from the Indians for an old overcoat.

Sings in Carmen Here

Rene Maison, famous Belgian tenor, who will sing the role of "Jose" when the Chicago Civic Opera Co. presents "Carmen" at the University of Nebraska coliseum, Thursday, March 20.

Maison joined the forces of the Chicago Opera Co. during the season of 1927-28, and has made two coast-to-coast tours with the organization.

Still a comparatively young man, Maison has sung nine years in grand opera. He was born and grew up in Belgium where he attended school. As his fine physique will attest, he is particularly devoted to athletics and during the period of his school days, his principal recreation was tennis. Maison at one time was listed among the leading tennis players on the Belgian courts, until his rise as an opera star cut short such strenuous exercise as tournament play.

The first seven years of Maison's operatic career were seyin in the provincial houses in France, then in Paris and Monte Carol. At the last named opera he spent three seasons. He sings with equal facility in French, German, Italian and English.

Maison considers "Jose" his greatest role and the one which he most desires to sing.

EARLY RIVER TRANSPORTATION

One of the first means of river transportation was carried on in flat-bottomed barges, propelled by hand. Later the idea of using horses to tow them along was brought into effect. The need of river transportation was so great that steam crafts were absolutely essential. It was then that Robert Fulton built the first boat to be propelled by steam—"The Clermont."

agriculture and when so engaged lived in round, half underground earth-lodges, while on their periodic buffalo hunts they used the graceful skin tipi. Many old camp sites of all these groups are known in the state. Before the historic tribes another people lived along the Missouri river who occupied large rectangular earth-lodges quite different from the later round lodges. Further we know that long prior to these rectangular earth-lodge people, who were great farmers and made good pottery, there were other peoples living in the region. This was demonstrated by the work of Dr. Sterns who found the remains of camp fires, fragmentary pottery, and stone implements from ten to twelve feet below the level occupied by the people of the rectangular earth lodges. These older people apparently did not grow corn though they had large caches of gourd or squash seeds and good pottery. Very abundant bison bones around the camp fires testified to their ability as hunters. The interpretation of these findings is clear—long ago a buffalo-hunting people lived near the mouth of the Platte river, for some reason they abandoned the site and in the course of several centuries the area filled in to a depth of ten to twelve feet. At this time the rectangular earth-lodge peoples settled on the site and carried on their corn raising and hunting life, then they too moved on or died off, and last of all one of the historic tribes lived here as evidenced by the round tipi rings and scattered implements.

Must Study Historic Tribes.

This direct evidence of one culture above another, as well as the wide variety of pottery and implement types found in Nebraska, indicates that many other cultures are yet to be distinguished here. A careful study of the ethnology of the historic tribes reveals a similar condition. In their complex and elaborate ceremonies as well as their emphasis on corn-growing, the Pawnee show cultural relationship to the Pueblo peoples of the southwest. Such influences had also reached the Siouxan peoples but in less degree for they had received their greatest cultural stimulus from the east. It is from this direction that the similarities to the mound-building people of more easterly states have crept into adjacent portions of Nebraska. To understand the archaeology of Nebraska it is therefore essential that we gain full knowledge of the historic tribes as well, thus working from the known into the unknown. Eventually we may hope to have a very complete story of the long development of prehistoric man in Nebraska for, as we have already seen, it is not an isolated and unproductive region but a rich area which has ben open to outside influences from earliest times. Future findings in Nebraska will go far to solve many problems of new world archaeology, just as the findings in adjacent states have cast much light on Nebraska problems.

Aided by the Smithsonian institute the University of Nebraska has this year begun an archaeological survey of the state with the foregoing ends in view. Cooperating closely with the State Historical society and the state museum, both of which institutions have already made notable progress in this field, the survey hopes to aid in the scientific study and preservation for all time of the rich Indian lore which is the heritage of Nebraska. If the people of the state will cooperate in preserving archaeological sites from promiscuous looting, which forever wipes out whole pages in the prehistoric record, and by sending in information regarding such sites or chance archaeological findings as may come to their notice, they will be greatly aiding this enterprise.

TRAINING OF TEACHERS IS MOST IMPORTANT PART

normal schools, consisting of seven members, six of whom are appointed by the governor. The seventh member is the state superintendent of public instruction who is a mmber ex-officio.

This board of managers has a sizeable job on its hands. The choosing of the school heads and the teaching force is a task of no small size. Administering the funds after they have been obtained from the legislature by a skillful showing demands business capacity of a high of the needs of these institutions order.

There are 14,377 class room teachers in Nebraska. A large share of these are products of the state teachers colleges. New teachers are being constantly employed and standards are high. Therefore the need for modern and better instruction of teachers strongly continues.

In addition to the four normal schools, 231 high schools prepare teachers for the rural schools, and 4,960 high school students were enrolled in normal training work in 1928-29.

Doane College Notes

At the regular meeting of the biology club, Feb. 6, Prof. C. O. Carlson of the department of biology discussed certain more recent views on human evolution; particularly, certain positions taken by Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn in his recent address at the Des Moines meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

N. R. Baker, '20, manager of the Fairmont Creamery plant of Columbus, Ohio, made a short visit to Crete over the week-end, in connection with the annual meeting of the creamery officials at Omaha Mr. Baker gave a short address at the chapel service Monday morning, Feb. 3.

Rev. J. E. Schatz, pastor of the Second Congregational church of Crete, conducted the chapel service on Monday, Feb. 3, and spoke briefly of the plan which is being promoted to induce Redfield college to move to Crete and establish itself on the Doane campus. Redfield is the only college sponsored by the German Congregational churches in America. The national meeting of these churches will be held in Crete either in March at the spring vacation or in June shortly after commencement. At that time, the question of the removal of the college will probably be decided.

Doane Day services planned and promoted by Field Secretary L. W. Johnson, were held Sunday, Feb. 2, in the Congregational church at McCook and Bertrand. Mr. Johnson was present at the morning service at Bertrand and at the evening service at McCook.

The lecture by Dr. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college which was given Friday evening, Jan. 31, at the First Congregational church as the fourth number of the Doane-Crete lyceum course for the year was a very interesting discussion of the rise of modern Czechoslovakia and particularly the career of its president, Dr. Thomas Masaryk. Although it was a new lecture prepared really for this occasion, Dr. Steiner proved a complete master of his subject. He has crossed the ocean many times himself and knows the thrill of the first experience of the European immigrant to America, as also the American tourist to Europe.

Russell A. Smith of the department of mathematics gave the address at the evening service of the First Congregational church, Feb 2, at the invitation of the pastor. His discussion dealt with the function of the church in our modern world.

The January 28 issue of the Southwestern Miller carries the picture of F. M. Ross, '22, manager of the Fremont Mills at Fremont who was recently elected president of the Nebraska Millers association. This position was held during the past year by E. A. Talhelm, "11, of the Crete mills. But as Mr. Talhelm is also president of the American Corn Millers federation, he declined to accept the presidency of the State Millers association for a second term. D. H. Wilson, "22, also of the Crete Mills was a member of one of the important committees of the convention.

Professor Burlingame brings back a favorable report of the debating trip into Kansas and Missouri last week. Two of the debates, Kansas Agricultural college and Washburn college, were without decision. In the third with William Jewell college, the decision was given to William Jewell by the expert judge. In all of the contests, Mr. Burlingame feels that the Doane debaters, including Ken
